BY JULES THEROW.

Plainly cut and fixed gowns of butcher's linen beautiful with heavy hand embroideries are conspicuous among the season's choice fashions. A suggestion of the elevated waistline is given in this dressy model which can be carried out in a number of other materials than linen. It is fitted to the figure with tucks running several inches above and below the waistline. The front panel is made of heavy eyelet embroidery and at the hem an edging of Valenciennes lace is worked in with the embroid-
