ONLY NERVOUS

Is What the Family Doctor Said.

Reader, did your physician ever examine you and say, "Oh, you are only nervous?" If so, then he at least showed his ignorance of nervous diseases. When a physician speaks of a disease of the nerves in such a way as to lead his patient to think it does not amount to anything, or that they are sick only in their mind or that the disease is not amenable to proper treatment, he at once shows his inability to cope with the disease, for disease it is, as certainly as typhoid fever. All of these symptoms have a cause.

Neglected, nervous maladies deplete every organ of the body, the brain is affected and the mental powers weakened, the mind wanders, ideas are confused and concentration of thought almost impossible. The heart is affected and circulation disturbed, producing cold hands and feet, flushed face, dizziness, dots and webs before the eyes, depressed spirits and a tired, tingling feeling. In early stages, and suicide is contemplated. A single, practical illustration from the case of a gentleman well known at the county seat of Steuben county will explain this.

"I feel that I am only doing justice to Dr. Wild of the Rochester Sanatorium in forwarding in unsolicited testimonial. I had been troubled for years with nervous exhaustion with all its train of horrors, although constantly under professional care. I obtained no permanent relief or cure until I received your system of treatment. Miraculous indeed has been my recovery and I heartily recommend your methods and wish you would announce my cure to invalids, that they may learn of the efficacy of your system and be freed from the awful tyranny of broken down nerves and their terrible consequences."

George C. Buell & Co. One of the most prominent and best known wholesale grocery houses in Rochester is George C. Buell & Co., Exchange Street. The firm consists of George C. Buell, W. A. Petas and J. H. Childs and was originally established in 1844. Growing with the city's growth they have become prominently identified with its most progressive business interests, and today their reputation extends throughout the entire western and southern districts of the state and the northern parts of Pennsylvania where their goods find a market among retailers.

In addition to their premises on Exchange Street, which consists of a substantial three-story building, including the rear of the old Livingston Hotel, the firm have large ware houses on the Erie Canal, also an important branch at Auburn, N. Y.

They carry a general line of groceries, domestic and imported, and are large handlers of teas, spices and animal goods. Their leading specialties are in coffees, they having a complete and well equipped plant for blending and roasting of the best grade varieties.

In an interview recently Mr. Buell stated that the outlook in the grocery trade was for a normal year's business.

Monroe County Savings Bank.

Since its incorporation in 1852 the Monroe County Savings Bank has been steadily growing until to day it occupies one of the foremost places among this city's financial institutions, having resources of over twenty million dollars. Naturally it is best known among those Rochester citizens of more moderate means those who are able to lay aside a portion of their earnings and who wish to be absolutely assured that they are in a safe and competent hands, at the same time earning something. The Monroe County Savings Bank supplies both these wants. It is as sound as a banking institution can be and it pays as high a rate of interest as is possible under wise bank management.

It is a noteworthy fact as evidence of its high reputation in the community that this institution made large loans in connection with the building of Catholic schools in Rochester.

At the head of the institution as president is James E. Booth, while associated with him in office are Rufus K. Dryer and Alexander M. Lindsay, vice-presidents, David Hoyt being secretary and treasurer. The bank's offices are located at 13 State Street.

John Luther & Sons Co.

An old established business in the general contracting and building lines is the John Luther & Sons Co., 162 North Street. Originally founded in 1865, the concern has been closely identified with the city's development and has grown with its steady growth. Able management, integrity and the faithful fulfillment of its contracts have earned for it a large measure of public confidence and patronage.

The business was incorporated in 1902, the following being the executive: John Luther, president and treasurer, Charles W. Luther, first vice-president, John W. Luther, second vice-president, and Charles M. Williams, secretary.

THE AMERICAN UNION LAUNDRY COMPANY.

Mr. H. I. Davis, president and manager of the above laundry, established his enterprise in Rochester six years ago. Few people, who are not connected in a business way with the modern laundry, realize its importance among the commercial interests of the community. A laundry of this grade is a benefit to any town and should receive the liberal support of the people.

By giving the public many years of reliable service, this gentleman has built up a splendid business and an enviable reputation for a high grade of work. Prices are as low as the American Union as can be found anywhere else in the state. They call and deliver to any part of the city.

No one makes any mistake in patronizing this reliable and energetic laundry.

Their place of business is at 77-79 South Avenue, corner Aqueduct. Home phone 3994. Give them a trial and assure yourself of their ability.
