Cook Opera House.

Marcel's beautiful pictures will head the vaudeville bill at the Cook Opera House next week and Angela Dolores & Co., in the satirical farce "Cupid at Home," will be the special feature attraction. Miss Dolores is a leading woman, one of the most beautiful and talented on the stage. There will be any amount of comedy in this line being Stuart Barnes, the premier monologist, and the three Leightons, in their very clever singing, dancing and comedy sketch "A One-Night Stand in Minstrelsy." The other acts on the bill are: Bobby Pandin and brother, European strong men; Sue Smith, "the American Girl"; the Banks-Breazale duo, refined musical artists; Myers and Rosa, western whirlwinds; and the Mooreoscope, with new pictures. The following week Manager Moore will offer Charles Mack & Co., in the delightful Irish musical comedy "Come Back to Erin."

Baker Theatre.

Commencing Monday night, Vaughan Glaser and his company at the Baker Theatre, will produce the first comedy of their present engagement, Leo Ditrichstein's "All on account of Eliza," in which Louis Mann scored his biggest hit. This piece is of special interest to Rochester theatre-goers as the scenes are laid in one of the small suburbs just a few miles from here. In order to get the entire time while he was writing this play in this little village of Hemlock. Every character is controlled by Wall Street, are true to life. Mr. Glaser as Old Hochstetl will have his first dia-lect part, and the rest of the large company who are becoming more popular every day, will all have congenial roles. Matinee will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

HERMAN S. SEARLE Nominated for Congress by Democratic Convention

Mr. Searle, the nominee for Congress, spoke as follows in accepting the nomination:

Mr. Chairman and fellow Democrats—I thank you for the nomination and for the expression of confidence that it implies. It is with a deep feeling of responsibility that I accept this nomination and with the realization that my thankfulness can best be expressed by upholding as best I can the standards of Democracy and striving to bring victory to its standards of honesty and truth. As a nation we hold our head high, this "land of the free and the home of the brave," but precious as our friends, the Republicans, say we are, we cannot every day national conditions which proper and unselfish legislation would remedy. It isn't a time for stand-patters, for dilatory conservatism; but it is a time for action, and active men, Saturday morning at 5 o'clock not stand patters, are needed in the halls of legislation.

Let us take courage and throw out the Democratic picket line to see that our enemies, discontent, self-interest and jealousy, are kept without the camp.

There is much that I would like to say on the tariff question. The duty on many of our imports needs to be reduced, and there are some from which the duty should be entirely taken off, and at once, without waiting for any favored few to say "Yes."

For instance, the duty on lumber, needed for building and other purposes is a menace to our forests and an unwarranted tax upon our home building and other enterprises.

The duty on pulp, which promotes a paper trust, strangles our newspapers and periodicals, and enhances the temptation of unsuccessful papers to accept of corrupting subsidies. Our newspapers are our bulwarks against the concealment of evils and exposure of wrongs, and the only means of disseminating news. We should stand shoulder to shoulder with them to see that they have their paper and other materials without any tariff, or other oppressive burdens.

The tariff on hides is another unfair tax. It adds to the cost of shoes which we must all pay, and does not benefit labor. It benefits only the beef trust and packers, adding to their already enormous wealth.

I might continue down the list of duties with discussion as to their merits of retention or revision, but I must for brevity omit further remarks along this line.

Another question of greatest importance is the financial situation. The present hard times are principally the result of a "do-nothing" Congress in which stand patters were at a premium together with the financiers who goers as the scenes are laid in one of the small suburbs just a few miles from here. In order to get the entire time while he was writing this play in this little village of Hemlock. Every character is controlled by Wall Street, are true to life. Mr. Glaser as Old Hochstetl will have his first dia-lect part, and the rest of the large company who are becoming more popular every day, will all have congenial roles. Matinee will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Over 85,000,000 of people, who stand in abeyance to the pleasure of Wall Street, which has been shocked, insulted and outraged by the financial bill passed at the last session and signed by President Roosevelt.

It is possible that people can not rise in spirit and determination and send representatives to Washington who will pass laws for their benefit. Who will tenaciously insist and push opposition aside to give the people of these United States such laws as will lead to an immediate solution of the financial as well as other problems?

This financial stringency should never have occurred. Congress was warned and it was pointed out two or three years ago that we would have a money famine unless something radical was done to expand our circulating medium, and Congress deliberately refused and failed to give us a remedy. They looked on with indifference at the struggling masses reaping the whirlwind of loss and desolation.

I would push with all possible progress, the enactment of a law giving to this country sufficient currency to meet all requirements; so if some part of our population saw fit to lock up what money was coming to them there would be ample left for the usual transaction of business.

When a few men can stop the progress of our country by influencing the legislation against proper laws to provide ample financial relief, it is full time to elect congressmen whose party stands for what the people need and want, and who will energetically work for, not only financial relief, but needed reforms.

No permanent financial relief or continued good times can come until sufficient money is provided to meet the demand.

It is therefore for the voters to decide if they will allow the Republican party to continue their refusal to give us relief, they have been in full control and did not do it. Now let the Democrats show the people that they will do it.

Rochester Conservatory of Music.

The boys and girls with dramatic or elocutionary talent can now secure able instruction at the Rochester Conservatory of Music. The Conservatory has secured Edgar George Frazier for this work. Courses in public speaking and oratory are also offered.

More of the Trimmed Hats, $5

A Group of New Arrivals This Morning Makes a Very Complete Collection for this Saturday. Of this thousand Trimmed Hats with which we started the selling this week, less than a hundred of them remained last evening. To them, we shall add this morning upwards of a hundred entirely new ones that have just reached us from the same maker. We know of patrons of the store—who have bought three, four and five of these Hats at Five Dollars—simply because they prefer to own a number of Hats at lower price, than to put their money into one expensive creation. As seen through the windows of the store—with all semblance of price removed, you'd pick any number of these Hats as ten to fifteen dollar kinds. In fact, they would sell for as much in most millinery stores. To buy them at Five Dollars is to take advantage of the greatest possible economy.

We cannot promise more after to-night. You'll likely find one to your fancy to-day, for assortment is most excellent as we start the selling.
