

BILLY AND I AND MR. JAMES

And thus with stately mien and haughty tread we walked through to the smoker, Mr. Billy and I and Mr. James...

"They seem to know you out here," I pleasantly mentioned to Billy. The serious one...

"Do you play cards?" asked Old Seriousness. During which he had endeavored to look fitly out of countenance...

"Do you play cards, friend?" asked Billy, stopping on my feet under pretence that he was telling me something in pantomime...

"Cards?" I hesitated. "I am not speaking reproachfully as though in wonder, that he had made his meaning plain at first..."

stood up and became a commiserator from a rear seat. Then it was that a melancholy man arose plucked up a large parcel and climbed into the vacant seat...

"Oh, cards!" I exclaimed speaking reproachfully as though in wonder, that he had made his meaning plain at first. Oh, yes, I play cards, by all means!

Then it was that I put myself upon my mettle and proceeded to show them a trick or two. First I placed my hat on the end of the stick and started to transfer the hat from the end of the stick to the rack overhead...

In rapid succession I knocked on the hats of Messrs. James, Billy, the serious character, I grew ambitious and extended my operations to the commuters behind me...

They were captured and sent to the hospital, where they had to be put into straightjackets. It is feared that the two men, if they recover from their wounds, will lose their minds permanently...

John Bradley, who claimed to be the oldest man in America, is dead at Fitch's soldiers' home, Noroton Heights, Conn. John Bradley, or "Andy" Bradley, as he was known at the home, declared that he was 136 years old...

The Coward

By ANNA YORKE

Katrina turned slowly from her contemplation of Carraway's master piece, and drew a long breath. It was so wonderful to think of a wonderful that be, Don Carraway in praise of whom the exhibition room should have once been her lover who professed to have held nothing in the world dearer than herself...

"What are these?" I timidly asked him pointing to my cards with my thumb and pointing over to Mr. Billy's as they were your cards, he replied in a low voice.

"Oh, I'm not quite ashamed and picked them up and looked at them furtively while the others proceeded to arrange their hands."

Then Mr. James with a disdainful look at me and a card Billy played, and he had played a card with much deliberation and solemnity and then they all looked at me while I fumbled my cards and looked embarrassed.

"What's the matter?" I timidly asked Mr. James. He pointed to me passionately. "Oh, I'm not quite ashamed and picked them up and looked at them furtively while the others proceeded to arrange their hands."

"What are these?" I timidly asked him pointing to my cards with my thumb and pointing over to Mr. Billy's as they were your cards, he replied in a low voice.

GREAT FUTURE FOR ELECTRIC POWER

A Simple Device to be Carried by Anyone Desiring News

Within a few years a simple and inexpensive device readily carried, about will enable one to receive on land or sea the principal news to hear a speech, a lecture, a song, or play of a musical instrument conveyed from any other region of the globe.

This invention attempts to imitate in a very simple way the radio system in the human body. It was the outcome of long continued tests demonstrating the impossibility of satisfying rigorous conditions of requirements by my earlier system based on simple piecing in which the selective quality is dependent on a single characteristic feature.

That electrical energy can be economically transmitted without wires to any terrestrial distance I have amply established in numerous observations, experiments and measurements qualitative and quantitative.
