Must Promise to "Obey"

"Unless a young lady is willing to promise to love, honor and obey her father and mother, she cannot be admitted to the altar," said Rev. Albert F. Fiacco, pastor of the Mt. Vernon Roman Catholic Church last night, during his sermon on the subject of matrimony. "I shan't officiate at her wedding," he said, "unless she promises to love, honor and obey her father and mother. What service do you use?" I tell them the Episcopalian service. Then the girl says, "Do I have to promise to obey my father and mother?" "Yes," said the priest. "If a young man and a young woman are to be united in matrimony, they must promise to love, honor and obey their father and mother. It is the word 'obey' then they are not ready to take the step."

An Indefinite Number

Three-year-old Andrew was in a rather petulant mood, and in order to restore his customary good humor his mother promised him some preserved strawberries if he would be a good boy. Calling a servant, she said, "Jennie, please give Andrew about four strawberries."

Jennie proceeded to fulfill the wish of her mistress, and counted out the berries. "One, two, three, four."

"I want five," protested the child.

"But our mother said four," said Jennie.

"Mamma said 'about four,'" replied Andrew.

And he got the fifth.

Waistcoats and the Sunday Law

A self-governing democracy never justifies itself more completely than when it converts an irreconcilable quarrel between those who believe in tight-closed Sundays and those who believe in wide-open Sundays into an innocuous dispute as to how purple a waistcoat a man may wear and how large and indelicate the flowers on it may be, when singing a song of a Sunday.

Reformed

Mrs. Henpeck "I married you to reform you."
Mr. Henpeck "You succeeded. I never marry again if I live to be a thousand years old."

Origin of the Club Sandwich

Alan Johnstone is said to have originated the famous club sandwich and the story runs that on going to the club one night between midnight and daybreak he found the cafe closed, the cooks gone and being very hungry he invaded the larder, toasted himself some thick slices of bread, sliced them through, buttered them while hot and laid thereon anything he found in the refrigerator—cold chicken, ham and lettuce, a couple of raw oysters.

The result was such an epicurean discovery as is not often made, but the story was too good to keep, he divided the recipe to his cronies and it straightway became one of the popular dishes of the club menu and the father of the club sandwich, so successfully popular is the present British Minister to Copenhagen.

Yearning for Light

"When it comes to consuming gas in large quantities blind people can't see their way out of it," said an inspector of the gas company. I like on two families where both husband and wife are blind. The husband is a doctor in the hospital at night and is not going at that rate up to 12 o'clock. Light and darkness are all the same to the doctor, but they least upon illumination brilliant enough for a reception. And that partially for light is a blind person's lot. You could see that blind people feel that way. They don't see light and in all private homes and institutions where the blind are cared for the gas bills vouch for the strange fancy."

Dental

The characters in this tale are called A and B. A has a frightful toothache. B is playing the part of a doctor.

"My dear A," says B, "you must not succumb this way to the pain. You must not frown around and bury your head in your pillow and in fact, in such indegent and thunderous language. Be a stoic, A, be a stoic!"

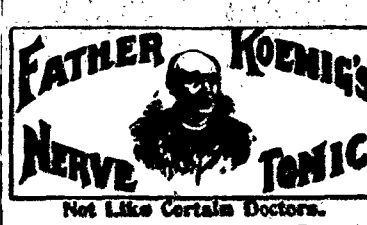

A sits up.

"Rats," he roars. "Stoicism leaves off where toothache begins."

Sickness Seasons

It seems strange to the uninitiated that there should be a "season" for sickness and one for health, but such is the case, according to a trained nurse.

"Everything is very quiet just now, said one the other day, so many nurses are out, the doctors have plenty of time and the druggists are complaining of slow business, but a little later it will be different. Our busy season begins usually when the open doors, though the two have no connection. Late November finds us busy. February is one of our best months."

Not Like Certain Doctors.
Dr. J. J. Koenig of St. Johnsbury, Vt., writes Feb. 20, 1907. I am not so certain doctors are antagonistic to proprietary medicines, when I know their value. As to Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic, I have tested its quality a long time ago and have often prescribed the same for persons who applied for it repeatedly afterwards.

Hopewell, W. Va., Sept. 6, 1907
As far as being often exposed to the rain I was frequently troubled with Rheumatism and my stomach was also afflicted. The doctor's diagnosis of my case was indigestion. Last fall I was troubled frequently. A pain beginning in my right side would move towards my stomach and would become so violent that I suffered as much as a human being could endure for hours at a time. I then began to take Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic and after having taken the first spoonful the pain stopped. I took the rest of the bottle and the pain has never returned.

FREE A Valuable Book on Nervous Diseases and a Sample Bottle to any address. Please send this card to the publisher, Koenig Med. Co., Chicago, Ill., 100 Lake Street. Sold by Druggists at $1 per Bottle, 6 for $5. Large Size, $1.75; 6 Doz. for $9.

WOMAN'S LONG NIGHT AT LIGHT

Miss Hecox Has Tended a Pacific Coast Beacon for 27 Years.

Miss Laura A. Hecox, who for twenty-seven years has tended the light of the Santa Cruz Lighthouse, has been recently returned to her post from one of the six vacations she has been enjoying during the past year. Since she returned she has had absolute charge of the light, and in all that time it has not gone out during the night.

Miss Hecox followed her father in the profession of a lighthouse keeper. She was a young girl who cared for him as he aged. During the thirteen years her father was kept from his post she was his faithful mistress of the light. When his death came she got the light and she has tended it ever since. She has been steadily at her post, and her work has never been interrupted by a day.

Her mother died in the early part of her life and she was left to her own resources. She was a very young girl when she was left to her own resources. She was a very young girl when she was left to her own resources. She was a very young girl when she was left to her own resources.
