THREE IS NO
PLACE LIKE IT

"Home!" said Mrs. Lummy.
"Home at last!"
She opened one of the long-closed shutters and made a careful examination of the house to her right.
"The Blumers have a new pair of curtains in their upstairs hall; they have had the floor of their piazz painted and another brick has been put in their chimney."
"Poor devil!" said Mr. Lummy from behind his coat of tan. "They couldn't go away."

Mrs. Lummy opened another shutter and made a careful examination of the house to her left.
"Home!" she said.
"Well!" said Mr. Lummy, with impatience.
"Somebody has bought a new lawnmower!" she exclaimed, with scratching sarcasm.
"Well, well!" said Mr. Lummy bitterly.
"A new garden hose."
"Somebody," said Mr. Lummy more bitter than before, "is getting quite cozy in their old age." Mrs. Lummy closed the shutter with an emphasis of marked displeasure and, sitting down with a good comfortable bounce, she opened her mouth and yawned to a frightful extent.
"O-o-o-o!" she yawned, making the exclamations a staccato one by clapping her hand on and off her mouth with every evidence of enjoyment. "But it's good to be home!"
"Yes," said Mr. Lummy fretfully, "but you needn't yawn so blessed much!"

"William Lummy!" she cried with spirit. "I'll give you to understand that I shall yawn all I please in my own house. Why, there have been times this summer when I have nearly died because I couldn't yawn when I felt it. O-o-o-o!" she yawned again, closing her eyes and using her right hand, and "O-o-o-o!" she repeated using her left hand. She opened her eyes to see how he was taking it and cried at once:
"William Lummy!"

"Well!" growled that gentleman.
"Here I am."
She merely looked at him, all eyes and indignation.
"Well!" he asked again, raising his voice a few notes. "What is it?"
"You know right well what it is!"
she cried.
"No worse than your yawning!" he cried back.

"William Lummy, you take your foot off that chair then, because I ain't instant!"
"Well, then, you stop yawning!"
"I shall yawn all I want to!"
"All right; then I shall put my foot on the chair all I want to."
"No, you won't!"
"Yes, I shall!"
"No, you won't!"
"Yes, I shall!"
"No, you won't!"
"Yes, I shall!"

And with an impudent look Mr.
Lummy threw his other foot upon a chair and gazed at his wife in such a tantalizing way that she arose to her feet, her back comb trembling with indignation and enjoying herself immensely.
"William Lummy!" said she, "for the last time! You will either take your foot off those chairs or else you will take the consequences!" And her eyes flashed so that the back of William's neck ceased to exert a pressure against his collar and he faintly grumbled.

"Well, if you'll stop yawning—" "I shall stop yawning, or I shall not stop yawning, just as I please, but if you—" Slowly and reluctantly Mr. Lum-my's feet came out of their respective chairs.
"There!" cried Mrs. Lummy, beaming. "Now I'll make you a memorable for dinner!"
She leaned over, embraced him fondly and with the light of victory still in her eyes she peered in the door on her way to the kitchen and turned around, saying:
"Isn't it good to be home again!"

Legend of Magpie and Robin.
The peasants of France, in accordance with a tradition, pierce the head of a magpie with a thorn whenever they catch one. According to the French legend, after Jesus had been nailed to the cross two birds alighted on the extended arms of the instrument of death. One was a magpie with a beautiful agrette on its head and a long wavy tail, then the handsomest of birds but the wickedest, chirping insult at the suffering Jesus. The other bird was a modest little bird with gray plumage, which approached the cross timidly, uttering cries of grief. With its beak it tried to pluck away one of the thorns. A single drop of the blood fell on the plucky little gray bird and gave the robin reborn.

Austrian Bureaucracy.
Austrian bureaucracy, especially in matters connected with the collection of taxes, is often extraordinarily pedantic. In a large village in lower Austria there died last November a brick layer named Stephan Schmidt. A few days ago his family received an official letter from the district tax office addressed to Herr Stephan Schmidt and reading as follows:
"You are hereby officially notified that on account of your death taxes for 1938 have been withdrawn."

ROYAL COMPASSION

Henry VIII's Anthonie Bury by Catholic Choir—Prince Albert's Works.

The first of the English sovereigns was born in a country where Henry VII. Many of his subjects are only lords, by catholic faith. He died a revolutionary soldier. Now Henry VIII. Fairly off every day, to quote the original title for the marriage of his sister Margaret with James IV. of Scotland, said Miss Alva Lorraine.

Charles I. was another sovereign, and an including in my programme his effective cutting of Thomas Carroll's name from the beautiful Nora.

"I think everybody knows that Queen Victoria was a Big sister and a good patriot, and the late Prince Consort was most anxious in popularizing the art in this country. The marriage of Prince Albert's compositions have been collected and published by the present members of the royal family the most distinguished as a composer in Princess Henry of Sol-schtern.

"Turning to the foreign courts the German Emperor has been moved for his 'Song to Logic' which is included in my programme. The late Emperor's work of Prince Consort, the brother of the Prince Consort, who once several operas.

"Nadia Antonetti will be represented in the programme by her contributions of 'The Last Days of Florence's 'La Mamma' and 'The Mamma's' by the Queen, who died in 1898. I have chosen a song he composed in celebration of the birth of his nephew, Prince Edward.

"Who was the greatest royal composer? Well, I should think that would fall to the pope of Frederick the Great. Prince Louis was head of Prussia, who was killed at the battle of Moltow.

Some Old Facts in Geography.
New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London.
It is, however, despite its far more numerous animals, also situated nearer the equator than in the British capital. The black coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the northern part of the eastern side of the continent of North America and Siberia and Kamohaka, and Siberia and Russia in a line. It is astonishing to reflect on the fact that Mon-tral, with its millions of great city, is three hundred and fifty miles nearer the equator than is London.
Montreal, indeed, is on the same line of latitude as Sydney. Another illustration of the unexpected in geography is found in a comparison of Paris, Newfoundland, with Paris and London. London is only one hundred and fifty miles from the equator.—Daily Advertiser.

Cheer Chinese Blind Men.
A blind street musician, reports Chinese paper, stood on the steps of a river, panted how to cross the stream. He implored an oil dealer who happened to come along, to assist him. The oil dealer had pity on the helpless man, took him on his shoulders, gave him his money bag to hold and carried him across. When he deposited his burden on the other shore the blind man refused to return him his money bag, said 'I no longer and declared that the money was his property. The man came before the judge, and each man said only that the money belonged to him. The judge finally ordered the bag of money emptied into a water tank, and then conducted announced that the oil dealer was the owner.
When asked for the reason for his decision, he declared that the money of the oil dealer must certainly show traces of his business, and indeed on the surface of the water traces of oil were found.

Berange Wedding Customs.
Among the Celts of Western China it is customary for the bride on the wedding morning to pour herself on the highest branch of a large tree while the bridegroom stands on the ground. The bride, however, is armed with sticks. When all are duly stationed the bridegroom comes up the tree, mounted on all fours by blows, pushes and punches from the dowagers, and it is not until he has broken through their lines and captured the bride that he is allowed to carry her off.

A New Sort of School.
The proprietor of an institution proposing to start a school, told of the arrangement with which a visitor the interior of the State contemplated the huge gift sign displayed over the entrance to the school.
Stammering Institute.

"Upon my soul!" exclaimed the ex-al Father-in-law, "if that don't bear all I knew their duty to every thing these days. But with the wants to learn stammering!"—Lippis Globe.

The Age of the Human.
People just now are living in a state of almost morbid apprehension concerning what they should eat and drink. There have been the phre-nologic and the red sandstone and the present age which seems to be known as the bacilline, microbe and tuberculae age.
