Signs of Life.

Reference was made a few weeks ago to the Knights of Columbus starting to raise $500,000 for the Catholic University. All over the country we hear good words for this great order of Catholic men. Even Rochester council has caught the spirit and following the suggestion of the Catholic Journal, has set about arranging an appropriate observance of the first Columbus day in New York state, already observed as a legal holiday in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Colorado, California, Montana, and Illinois.

In the class for the fourth degree in Kansas or Memorial day were two bishops, Rt. Rev. Bishop Hennessey, of Wichita and Rt. Rev. Bishop Mearns of Oklahoma City.

From the lips of Rt. Rev. Peter J. Muldoon, D.D., Bishop of Rockford, and State chaplain of the Knights of Columbus in Illinois, there has come to the order a new catechism of knighthood. In a forceful address delivered at the banquet given in his honor in DeKalb, Ill., he dwelt upon the possibilities of the order, and the fact that much that might be done by the members of the great organization is being left undone.

"What are you doing?" interrogated the distinguished orator, fraternalist and prelate. "Are you true to the order, membership in which you boast? Are you true to the Church of which you boast? Are you true to the Church of which you claim your order is a strong supporting arm?"

"Not one of my hearers would answer me other than in the affirmative to both of these questions. Then let me ask: "Have you a pew in your church?" "Do you contribute to the support of your pastor?" All these are hopeful signs.

Moving Along.

That the world moves and that Edward VII is not the biggest of his predecessors were seen by the following press despatch:

"The King of England, during his recent visit to Malta, has made history by the conferring of a Knight Commandership of the Royal Victorian Order on the Archbishop-Bishop of Malta, the first prelate of the British order. The See of Malta takes rank as the oldest in the British Empire, since it was founded by St. Paul about the year 61, having for its first occupant St. Publius. Another Bishop is recorded in 601, and there is a regular list of succession from 1082 onwards. The present ruler of the see, the Most Rev. Pietro Pace, was born in Gozo seventy-seven years ago, and was educated and ordained in Rome. In 1869 he was named Prelate Referendary to Pius IX, and was consecrated Bishop of Gozo in 1877, where he continued for twelve years. In 1889 he was translated to Malta."

To Be Expected.

The Catholic Sun sums up a situation concisely in the following editorial paragraph: "Cornelius P. Shea, former president of the International Teamsters' Union, who, four years ago, deserted wife and children for another woman, has now virtually slain the other woman down in New York. She might have expected her fate. She was once a Catholic but deserted the Church for Freemasonry. Then he deserted his wife. A man who cannot be true to either his God or his home surely cannot be true to his 'affinity.'"

General John B. Frisbie, "the grand old man of the American colony in Mexico, died a few days ago. He was eighty-five years of age, and had been an active leader in the strenuous business life of the Mexican capital for nearly three decades. It has been said of him that he was the leader of more enterprises, bigger enterprises and more successful enterprises than any other two men in the country we hear good of. Born in Albany, General Frisbie was a convert to the Catholic faith, and since his entrance into the fold he was a model of Christian manhood. To his energy was due the introduction of the Knights of Columbus into our day in New York state, already observed as a legal holiday in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Colorado, California, Montana, and Illinois.

Says the Milwaukee Catholic Citizen. "Colliers' Weekly has a mean thing at Co. Kerens, whose appointment as ambassador to Austria, it says, 'is outrageous.' In manners, Kerens would be as absurd as his record is undeserving," says Colliers'. What did Kerens do-refuse to admire some of the book junk that Colliers' gives with subscriptions?"

Coquelin, the celebrated French actor, who died recently, was a practical Catholic, and one of the pieces which won him warm applause was a poem, written and recited by him, and entitled "Si le bon Dieu n'existait pas" ("if the Good God did not exist"). In terms calculated to reach the heart of the humblest, he pictured the anarchy and chaos that society would fall into if it lost faith in the great Creator and Judge.

A recent death, that of W. H. Bliss, provides another example of the influence of Rome upon men of wide information who have any leaning toward the true Church. He had been an Anglican minister, but after a visit to Italy he became a convert. The "Athenaeum" (London) recently devoted nearly two pages to a sketch of his career and spoke of him as "one of the most learned men of our time." He had been for many years the representative in Rome for certain English papers and was looked upon as one of the best informed foreign correspondents.

Archbishop Gillow, of Oaxaca, Mexico, has ordered all parishes without Catholic schools to make immediate preparation for the establishment of schools for both boys and girls.

Mother Rose, the superior of the exiled Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary, died last Thursday at the convent of the order at Irvington, near Baltimore, Md. Mother Rose was 63 years of age and had been a nun for forty-six years. She was a member of a wealthy French family and her name was Marie Wehrle. She has a brother who is a priest and lives at Belfort, Elsie, France, where her body will be taken for interment.

The first church in Ireland erected in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes was dedicated last month at Whitehead, County Antrim.
