Macaroni Instead of Meat.

With the price of meat so high and still soaring, it is wise to consider some foods that will take its place. Woodcock Macaroni made from Arget-wheat granules contains four-fifths of the elements necessary to life and health—twice as much nourishment as meats at one-third the cost. More easily digested, it is not only possible, but a very pleasant substitute, because of the many appetizing ways in which Woodcock Macaroni can be prepared. Order a package to-day. 15c. at all grocers.

Cook Opera House.

J. H. Moore vaudeville at the Cook Opera House appears to be getting better and better as the season advances, and by the time this high standard of vaudeville reaches the new Temple theatre it is expected that Rochester vaudeville patrons will just revel amid a feast of attractions never before seen here. The bill for the coming week is headed by Carter DeHaven, who will appear in a selection of songs ably assisted by a pianiste of class, Jesse L. Lasky will again be to the fore in his new act "The Imperial Musicians." This act consists of eight men and four women, all of whom were selected by Mr. Lasky for the particular instrument they play. "Tactics" is the name of the well known comedy that the Barrows-Lancaster company will re-introduce to the patrons of the Cook. In most striking contrast to this act is that of Silbon's Felines, a trained company of cats that will bring forth much enthusiasm from the lovers of household pets. Fred Duprez, a monologist and singer, will make his first appearance here. The Artois brothers, in a comedy bar act; Susanne Rocamora, singing comedienne; and the Juggling Barbons, together with the Moorecope pictures, will round out the bill to a perfect whole.

Baker Theater.

Commencing with the Monday matinee Oct. 4 and continuing for the balance of the week Bert Lytell and his company will present for the first time here in stock a dramatization by Harriet Ford of Stanley Weyman's celebrated novel, "A Gentleman of France." The scenes are laid in the Courts of Henry III of France and Henry of Navarre. Unlike most plays this one is not divided into acts but into seven scenes, thus affording frequent change to the eye and sustaining the interest closely. The play possesses all the qualities which make for success in the romantic drama, being full of action and color and affording splendid opportunities for picturesque scenery and costumes of which full advantage will be taken in this production. Mr. Lytell will be seen as Gaston De Marsac, the role originally played by Kyrie Bellew and Miss Adair will essay that of Mlle. de la Vere in which Eleanor Robson appeared. The cast will be largely augmented and a brilliant production and performance may be looked forward to. The usual matinees will be played on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Dandelion as a Barometer.

Clover Leaves When Rain is Coming — Poor Man's Weather Glass. The dandelion is a dandy barometer, one of the commonest and most reliable. It is when the blooms have faded and are in the fluffy, feathery condition that the weather prophet faculties come to the fore. In fine weather the ball expands to the full, but when rain approaches it shuts like an umbrella. If the weather is inclined to be showery it keeps shut all the time, only opening when the danger from the wet is past. The ordinary clover and all its varieties, including the trefoil and the shamrock, are also barometers. When rain is coming the leaves shut together like the shells of an oyster and do not open again until the weather is assured. For a day or two before rain comes their stems swell to an appreciable extent and stiffen so that the leaves are borne more upright than usual. This stem swelling when rain is expected is a feature of many flowering grasses. The fingers of which the leaves of the horse chestnut are made up keep flat and fanlike so long as fine weather is likely to continue. With the coming of rain, however, they droop as if to offer less resistance to the weather. The scarlet pimpernel is nicknamed the "poor man's weather glass" or wind cope and opens its flowers only in the air it shuts up and remains closed until the shower or storm is over. The common garden convolvulus crumbles up its delicate blossoms within the space of half an hour if raindrops are on the way, and it keeps them thus until the bad weather has passed.

Porch Gossip.

Porch talk: On hot evenings it is impossible to light up the house and read, so people gather on porches and talk and talk. Here are some things discussed on an Atchison porch on a recent night. One woman said she had a bird girl who ate lard by the spoonful, the girl said she "adored" lard. Another woman said she had a friend who ate toilet soap; one woman, with children, said that not long ago an Atchison baby cried and cried. The mother sent for Dr. Bryning a great baby doctor, and he addressed the baby himself to see that no pins were sticking in and that it was not broken out with heat; when he found nothing of that kind was the matter he gave the baby a quick cathartic and found it had swallowed twelve potato bugs. That reminded some one on the porch that her brother-in-law ate peaches with sugar, cream and salad dressing. A great little girl on the porch said: "Well, when we have hash always eat it with sugar." One of the women on the porch insisted blue and finally began to talk. She said she did not know what to do; that a relative had told her to write frankly, and say whether it would be convenient for the relative to visit her. The woman had written to say that it would be very inconvenient this summer for her to have company, and the relative replied that she was coming anyway!

Lumbering on the Pacific Coast.

"Of all the ingenious mechanisms that help to quicken the process of dissecting a Pacific-coast log, there is none so half-human, so gorilla-like in its suddenness, its more than brute strength, as the 'digger,' writes John Kimberly Mumford in Harper's Weekly. "There comes a trembling of the woodpile, a grunt of unseen beams and rocker bars far below, and up into the air, seven, eight feet, sweeps an awful bent arm of solid steel. In its hand is a spike a foot in length and perhaps three inches in diameter at the base, and sharpened down to a point. For an instant this grisly thing poises high above the prone log, then like the leap of the bullet to its mark, quicker, more deadly, even, it strikes—a human, sickening blow."

Czar Owns Radium Lake.

The Czar of Russia is richer by many millions to-day than he ever was before. Prof. Glavin, the famous Russian chemist, has demonstrated to the St. Petersburg Academy of Sciences that the waters of Druskenie Lake and the hundreds of square miles of marshy land surrounding it are brimful of radium. This discovery is expected to reduce the price of radium materially. The lake and surrounding territory are the private property of the Czar.

One for a Family.

Penguin eggs are rich in fatty phosphorized constituents. They are easily digested, and English physicians feed them to invalids. One is big enough to make an omelet for a family. A man lined with a penguin's egg is good for a hard day's work. It takes twenty minutes to boil a penguin's egg, but the result is worth the wait.

When Anesthetics Were Unknown.

In 1839 Velpeau, one of the greatest surgeons of his time, wrote as follows: "The escape from pain in surgical operations is a chimera which it is idle to follow up to-day. 'Knife and pain' surgery are two words which are always inseparable in the minds of patients and this necessary association must be conceded."

Too Fond of Domestic Animals.

From a Japanese newspaper: "A man named Uyedan Rikimatsu, aged 23, of Kobe, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for stealing a young dog belonging to the proprietor of a place-food store at Tachibana-dori, three chome, Kobe. It appears that the accused had previously been convicted of stealing a cat."

Patterns by the Hundred in Brussels Rugs.

Just think what it means to be able to make your selections from more than one hundred patterns in these splendid, serviceable rugs.

The assortment which we have collected here far exceeds any previous showing we have made in the Rug section, and embraces some of the choicest patterns one could wish for in this particular class of rug.

There are small figure, all-over and medallion patterns, in wonderfully pretty light effects for the chamber—two-tone blues, two-tone greens, tan, old rose, French grays, and combinations of French gray and gold—while for the library and dining room the rich Oriental colorings and designs lend themselves most effectively.

You can hardly fail to find here the rug that will just fill the requirements and be in perfect harmony with its new surroundings.

Sizes run from 6 ft. x 9 ft. to 10 ft. 6 in. x 14 ft. 6 in.
