

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

What the Dominican Nuns Say.
 Under date of September 6, 1908, The Dominican Nuns of Newark, N. J. write: "Two members of our community have tried Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic with favorable results. It has a most charming effect on the nervous system."

The student of the Good Shepherd at Florida, Ill., writes Sept. 4, 1908: "We used 2 bottles of Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic for a case of aggravated and obstinate insomnia, with extreme nervousness. The second bottle is not finished and a cure has been brought when a physician worked in vain for 7 months. The patient sleeps like a child and his performance is less each day."

Handolph, Va., September 1908: "For months from weak nerves, Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic it has been possible to make the feeling of anxiety disappear at once upon sleep. Badly and look like getting stronger. This remedy is also good for bad stomach, it could not be better. I shall recommend it to all nervous people."

St. Anthony's Mission

In the Presence of Northampton
 Father Koenig, S. O. F. A.

THANKS TO ALL OUR BENEFACTORS THROUGH THE GENEROSITY OF THE catholic public we have been able about to secure a magnificent site
 for a parish Presbytery and Schools.
 We have already built the Presbytery and Sacrally the latter of which is now being used for a temporary school until sufficient funds are obtained to build the Church. On account will our good Bishop allow us to go into debt. Personally I am glad because to go into debt would mean ruin to this poor Mission and would undo all the good that I have been struggling so far to perform.

I have no financial gain, remember, and no settlement except hope for a great deal of enjoyment you will say good reader. For what I have done for my means I should feel I am to be thanked. Much has been accomplished in the past and much more to be done.

Good reader I am sure you will be interested in the fact that the money which has been given for the building of the

A SNOWED-IN THANKSGIVING

By EFF HATCH

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

LAWRENCE GERTRUDE looked out from her bedroom window and saw nothing but snow as far as his eye traveled. It was snow in the window panes, snow on the roof and hill, snow everywhere, a soft, quiet, and beautiful snow. The first big snow of the season was descending on the night whither he had come two days before to spend his Thanksgiving at home. Already the old and the young were gathered.

"Hello, Lawrence," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

"Hello, Gertrude," said the voice of his uncle from the next room.

Soon there was a quick step and a laughing "Hello, Uncle Law" as Gertrude came forward with a greeting that for its simplicity and heartiness and but for the rippled flower of wistfulness before him might have carried him back a half dozen years.

Lawrence Greer was not one easily to be carried off his feet but he was the evident fact in the air this time even to diagnose the fact of being.

"But I say, Gertrude, how on earth did it all happen?" looking but over from head to foot.

"Years, Uncle Law, just years and the getting into touch with new kind of life. You said it would be just as I've found it and also that I would some day forget my Uncle Law and that he told me so. But you see I haven't forgotten either." And she smiled as frankly as in the days when he had been sitting on his knee of the world that she would go into through the gateways of a good and experience and of the world whose doors had not then opened to her.

That she had forgotten him and those talks to the child Gertrude gave Lawrence a thrill of real pleasure.

That afternoon and evening was a rare day. Lawrence's experience of the old days was a rare day. Lawrence's experience of the old days was a rare day.

GERTRUDE SO WROTE.

snow-pow and, mounted one on each horse, make their way to the Bennett farm.

"Worst storm ever!" said the widow as she welcomed the two. "It doesn't look as if we should get out for days. I was telling Gertrude it was mighty lucky for her that she came yesterday for she couldn't possibly have escaped a snow blockade had she taken a train later."

Lawrence was all attention. "I say little Gertrude isn't here, is she?" he asked.

"Well, I don't know as she is," quizzically replied the grandmother. "Little Gertrude hasn't been in evidence for some years, but Miss Gertrude isn't far away."

"Our Noblest Bird. The noblest of birds is the turkey. As the baldheaded eagle is king. And now when the weather grows murky, With pottles out of the fling. Other goods we may look at and long for While our hearts are with thankfulness puffed. But the bird of our hearts is all ready And waiting, poor dear, to get stuffed."
