Bishop Hendrick Dead.

Dispatches from Manila tell of the only high honors in his studies, but death of Rt. Rev. Thomas Augustine Hendrick developed an interest in wholesome Philippine Islands.

Man of Many Friends. For all his high office, the Bishop of Cebu was affectionately saluted as "Father Tom" by those who knew him.

Man of Varied Interests. In connection with his vice-presidential sitting in New York the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Preparation for Priesthood. After studying in the schools of Europe he was later to be a student of the Jesuit Fathers at St. John's College.

Father Hendrick was averse to this publicity, and refused his picture, although it was generally known that the contributions were the work of a priest.

Appointed Bishop in 1903. In 1903 Father Hendrick was appointed Bishop of Cebu, P. I., being the first American bishop of the new island possessions.

After his consecration, and before his journey to the Far East Bishop Hendrick returned to Rochester, where he received such a welcome as few men receive in a lifetime.

At this meeting there were addresses by Judge William E. Werner, Mayor Adolph Rodenbeck, and other notables.

Work as Bishop Prospered. The welcome which the Bishop received at his new charge was cordial.

In September of this year the first alarming reports of the Bishop's health were made public, and it was then that his brother, Mgr. Hendrick.

The Philippine Catholic, in its report of the consecration of the auxiliary Bishop of Cebu.

One of the most affecting scenes after the consecration service was when the new auxiliary bishop entered the palace from the cathedral.
