Baker Theater.

"The Spoilers," a thrilling and sensational drama of life in Alaska during the frenzied rush to the Klondike regions, will be presented by Bert Lytell and his company at the Baker Theater all next week commencing with the matinee on Monday January 3rd. There is more force and realism to the play than to the book, because in the drama the characters are given life, and the environments in which they work out their problem are shown in a series of beautiful and impressive scenes. The play is in five acts, each a picture of Alaska, showing with true fidelity the wild life in the frozen North shortly after its settlement by the white man. Matinees will be played on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

Temple Theater.

May Elmore and Irene Jarmon, will present a singing comedy called "The Strolling Players," while Palfrey & Barton, the extremes of comedy acrobatic cyclists, and the Temploscope pictures, will round out the bill.

Cook Opera House.

"The Gambler of the West" will play a week's engagement at the Cook Opera House, beginning Monday, January 2, with matinees Monday and Wednesday. A. H. Woods has given "The Gambler of the West" the most elaborate and beautiful stage production of any melodrama on the road this season. The company comprises actors, Indians and cowboys, and trained horses and real Western paraphernalia are used. The story of the play carries sympathetic heart interest and there is an abundance of good comedy running through it. Boston Jake, an Eastern Jew, who gets entangled in its plot and Bridget Farley, a whole-souled Western woman, divide the honors in causing continuous roars of laughter every moment that the hero and heroine are not causing thrills by narrow escapes and daring deeds.

Auburn, N. Y.

New Years day in this city will be remembered by the local members of the Knights of Columbus as a day never to be forgotten. The district third degree for the Auburn district was given in the council chambers of the local order. The visiting brothers to the extent of 600 arrived by special trains. The degree work was in charge of District Deputy Cavanagh of Ilion Council. The candidates numbered about 75 and were made up of the different councils of this district. After the degree work was over a luncheon was served to the entire assemblage. The work of the degree fell upon the shoulders of the members of Auburn Council. Every detail was carried out in the style and as the brothers left the lodge home they were all loud in their praise of the hospitality of Auburn lodge.

The funeral of Marie P., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nolan, occurred on Monday from the family home in Franklin Street. Marie was in her twelfth year and a pupil of the Holy Family school where she was the joy of her class and a general favorite. One of Those Foolish Questions.

A certain man of rather a waggish position, contends that his wife is so inclination. A writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger tells why thinks so. At dinner one night he iced to mention a tragic circumance which he had read in the evenpaper on the way home.

It seemed that a passenger on a ansatlantic steamer had fallen overard in mid-ocean, and had never en seen again.

"Was he drowned?" asked his wife.

"Oh, no," answered the husband, but he sprained his ankle, I believe."

Paper from the Okra Stem.

From extended experiments that ve recently been made at Macon, a., it has been found that a fine ade of paper can be made from ulp prepared from the okra stem and plant for [illegible] per from this ource is likely to be erected in that ity at an early date. Okra is easily rown in the southern states, and ould be produced in large quantities a a papermaking plant. The plant s an herb belonging to the mallow mily, genus hibiscus. Its botanical ame is hibiscus esculentus.

Limited Monarchy.

A limited monarchy is one in which he power and prerogatives of the overeign are limited by constitutional provisions or by custom recognized as law. The British empire is governed by a limited monarchy. A limited monarchy differs from an absolute monarchy in that in the latter case the will of the monarch is absolute and the sovereign is limited by no constitutional barriers [illegible]

DON'T MUMBLE YOUR WORDS.

Or Chew Your Cigar—At Least Not While You Are Dictating.

"Have you wondered your stenographer has sure mike you was not too timid to ask her a repetition of what you said way down in your throat or with a cigar tightly clamped in your mouth.

"I often knew a competent young man who lost his position in a railroad office," says a writer in the Bookkeeper, "because the official who did the dictating gave more attention to his cigar than he did to his articulation.

"There some men have a habit of pacing back and forth as they dictate. When they make the turns or stand looking out of the window you can imagine their words, especially if they slur syllables. Of course the wise stenographer explains that she failed to hear and understand, but many employers [illegible] this, and they were stigmatized as incompetent."

Modern Elephant Musings.

Some time ago an enterprising department paper boldness contracted for the services of an eloquent elephant, and the Chanel Exchanged Gazette. The elephant had become speedy and it was necessary to have the circus. The business of new promotion of transforms the huge carrier into President messages.

According to report he was able to manufacture not less than [illegible] pounds, which [illegible] owing to their moral origin. They also plainly heart, which, weighed about forty pounds, was also used in offices. This story is suggestive of the report from Paris that a banker had used the carcass of a [illegible] ling "Lyons messages."

Self-Advertisement.

Crankiness and eccentricity in scientists, according to the British Medical Journal, are due not so much to conceit as to their high appreciation of the greatness of science. This makes the inappreciation of the public—so often the satisfaction only comes [illegible] late. "The hardest thing for a scientific man to bear is the attribution of his discoveries to men who have come into the vineyard at the eleventh hour and received the reward of his labors. The history of science is full of examples of such injustice; they all point the moral that it is the inevitable fate of the man who has not the gift of self-advertisement to be overlooked."

Friend More Fortunate.

Gen. George H. Harries, [illegible] of Columbia, is the busiest [illegible] in the land. In addition to being a soldier, he runs an electric light company and manages a [illegible] company that is the wonder of those who know what good car service means. Also, he is a member of all sorts of civic organizations.

"I met Mrs. Harries just a few minutes ago," said one of the general's friends by way of making talk when they met.

"Yes, I'm very glad to hear it," returned the general. "I met her my self last week."

Strange Failure.

Some men make a vanity of telling their faults; they are the strangest men in the world; they cannot dissemble; they own it in a folly; they have lost their abundance of advantage by it; but if you would give them the world they cannot help it; there is something in their nature which abhors [illegible] and constraint; with many other [illegible] topics of the same attitude.—Swift.

High and Low Wages in France.

The highest paid workingwoman in France are said to be the cutters of precious stones. They receive about $1.40 a day. The lowest wage is 4 cents a day and is paid to dressmakers. There are 14,000,000 women in France, and the majority of them earn their own living.

France is not Singular.

There are persons in France who [illegible]
