No Catholic Schools There!

It appears that there are practically no Catholic schools in Adams County, Ohio, where the wholesale purchase and sale of votes took place that has attracted so much attention all over the country.

There are no Catholic schools in Adams county, or at least few. The people there who sold their votes by the wholesale are products of the great American public school.

My friends, it is because these men in Adams county, Ohio, and many elsewhere grew to manhood without getting proper religious training in their youth. In vain they went to some place of worship from time to time and heard sermons or exhortations.

Our Duty Made Plain

Rev. Dr. Roche in his travel letters from Europe declares that the American secular press does not present the real facts about present conditions in Italy, France, Spain or Portugal and suggests a way in which American Catholics might offset the "doctored cable dispatches."

Modernism in our own day raises its head and strikes at the fundamental dogma of Christianity, the Divinity of Christ. The Holy Father puts his heel upon the serpent's head, and the cry goes out: (See the old intolerance of the Papacy.) We expect it, but we should be ready to defend not only in our own papers, but wherever truth is attacked.

Bishop Matz of Denver, says rightly that to be lavish in support of the sensational press and lax in support of the Catholic press is the grossest stupidity.

hearing last week. "Your daily papers want the truth and will print it. Our papers in Italy do not want it and will not print it. And yet you cannot realize how sensitive these people are to American newspaper criticism and how persistently they work to keep their side of the case before your public. You can strengthen the Holy Father's hands greatly by putting the real facts in the case before the fair-minded people who read American newspapers."

Unlucky Question

George Wise is a stalwart, virulent and needless to say, bigoted Orangemen of East Liverpool, who never misses an opportunity to abuse the Jesuits. The other day according to the London Catholic Weekly he was hoisted with his own petard.

Mr. George Wise—such is the account now envenoming the columns of the Liverpool papers—entered a tram car. He is a man of somewhat large proportions, and the car being full, was at a loss where to deposit his person.

It is nice to find such politeness nowadays among schoolboys. Your behavior is a credit to yourself and to your school. May I ask what school you attend?

Prompt and deadly came the reply: "St. Francis Xavier's School, sir."

That, as many of our readers know is a school under Jesuit management and anyone who has read the gruesome chronicle of Mr. Wise's public speeches and militant deeds will see at once that praise of the Jesuits—even an indirect kind—was the last thing he would willingly have accorded. So keenly did his fellow passengers appreciate this irony of fate—for Wise is well known in Liverpool—that the boys answer was greeted with general laughter. Mr. Wise subsided moodily into the place which he owed to Jesuit training, regretting, no doubt, his indiscreet curiosity.

Had the teaching of a Kempis entered into his philosophy, he might have meditated fruitfully upon the words: "I have often regretted having spoken, but seldom having kept silence."

A Signal Honor.

Rev. Henry H. Wyman, superior of the Paulist Fathers at San Francisco, has been re-elected chaplain of the California Legislature. He is the first Catholic and forms their own conceptions, and now what is their conception of right, of justice, of citizenship?

Senator Wolfe, a Jew, in seconding Father Wyman's nomination, which had been made by one of the opposite political party, took occasion to express the regard of his colleagues thus: "Every one here at the last session learned not only to respect Father Wyman, but to love him for his modesty and goodness." He added that Father Wyman commended himself to the Senators because his prayer is sincere and short, and never attempts to influence the particular legislation under consideration for the day. For these reasons said Senator Wolfe he was sought and prevailed upon to accept the position for another term.

The prayer which Father Wyman uses is the familiar prayer for authorities composed by Archbishop Carroll in 1800.

If our schools are and must be non-sectarian, why is it that the Masons laid the corner-stone of the new high school in Long Beach, California.

A motion was made in the Pittsburgh Evangelical Lutheran Association to censure President Taft for appointing a Catholic chief justice of the United States Supreme Court but the presiding officer ruled it out of order.

Archbishop Quigley of Chicago

recently criticized statements of Thomas A. Edison, who denied the immortality of the soul.

"Mr. Edison is a brilliant and gifted inventor," he said, "and yet with all his wonderful knowledge he does not know the character of the force that constitutes electricity. How much less can he know of spiritual things? And yet he presumes to pass upon them."

There will be no children in the United States in the year 2020, babies having ceased to be born as early as 2015, according to the mathematical conclusion of Professor Walter F. Wilcox of Cornell university, announced on last Friday to the American Statistical association at its concluding session in St. Louis, Mo.

There is proportionately more race suicide in the United States than in France," said Prof. Wilcox.

When is that senatorial deadlock to be broken?

The Good Friday collection in the United States for the Holy Land amounted to $20,570.22.

There were 146,000,000 pennies coined in the Philadelphia mint last year, yet the street car company don't want them.

Cranston, R. I., has a mayor who refuses any salary. Cranston is the youngest city in the state.

At a meeting of the council a resolution was introduced allowing the Mayor Edward M. Sullivan a salary of $1,000. He declared that if the motion were passed he would veto it and if the council then passed it, he would not accept the money any way. The motion was withdrawn.

Miss Howland, who is a Roman Catholic philosopher of a metrical narrative in lofty an impressive style of some great historical event, de same being a part of a classic course prescribed in our institutions of learning.

"No, Mr. Tickwell, I confess my inability to discern the points of differentiation. Will you set forth categorically the reasons or reasons why a Roman Catholic philosopher should not be confounded with a lofty and impressive metrical narrative of some great historical, mythological or imaginary event, legend or tradition or cetera?"

Rosa Bonheur's Humble Lover. When asked why she had never married Rosa Bonheur always answered: "Nobody ever fell in love with me. I have never been truly loved." More than one man, however, really worshipped her. But she inspired such deep respect that no man seems to have dared to reveal his feelings to her.

Schoolboy Pranks. The University respondent recently offered a prize for schoolboy mistakes. Here are a few examples. "Mute, inglorious Milton"—these epigrams are used by a writer who was envious of Milton's being post orient.

A Famous Parler Maid. Sydney Smith, the famous author and wit, in describing his early married life in a Yorkshire parsonage told how he made a butler out of a village girl.

When the Danes Were Skinned. In former times the Danes used to sail up the mouths of the English rivers to pillage the churches. When they were caught they were skinned and their skins nailed to the door of the church they attacked in course of time all the exposed portions would peel off, but that covered by the nail would be protected and thus bear testimony to the cruelty of the ancient Englishmen.

Were Kind to Him. A West Philadelphia man who was severely injured some months ago when his horse took fright at an automobile and bolted, upsetting the carriage, has only recently been released from the hospital.

A Cold Ride. All through his life Senator Dolliver of Iowa had a horror of fast trains and possible railroad wrecks. Once he was on a train with Vice President Fairbanks.

Necks and Legs of Animals. With few exceptions there is marked equality between the length of the necks and of the legs of both birds and quadrupeds, and whether they be long or short is determined chiefly by the place where the animal must go for its food.

A Story Peppy Tells. Peppy tells in his diary that in the reign of King Charles II a customer bargaining with a London merchant for a coat which he had the art of doing upon a deal board and to ruin and halt—that is, make the noise of so as to give them a pretense of undervaluing their merchant's wares, by saying the thunder would spool and turn them, which was so reasonable to the merchant that he did abate two pils tolls per tun for the wine in belief of that.

A Mighty Defiance. Brougham used to tell an anecdote about the flight from Waterloo. Napoleon was greatly depressed. His aid riding beside him thought he might be sorrowing over the loss of so many old comrades at arms and tried to comfort him by saying that Wellington also must have lost many friends. "He has not lost the battle," was the reply.

Utterly Useless. "Pa, what is a futile remark?" "The one a man makes for the purpose of changing the subject when his wife complains because he has forgotten their wedding anniversary."—Chicago Record-Herald.

She Was Wise. "I asked Miss Jumps to bring something, and she refused point blank. Is she grumpy?" "No. She's trying to make a hit with you. Cheer up."—Toledo Blade.

A Sound Reason. Mistress—Didn't you hear me calling, Jane?—Yes, but you told me the other day never to answer you back.—Throne and Country.

A Famous Parler Maid. Sydney Smith, the famous author and wit, in describing his early married life in a Yorkshire parsonage told how he made a butler out of a village girl.

"A manservant was too expensive so I caught up a little garden girl under like a millstone, christened her Bunch, put a napkin in her hand and made her my butler. The girls taught her to read, Mrs. Sydney to wait, and I under took her morals. Bunch became the best butler in the county."

"Coming down one morning, I found Bunch pacing up and down the passage before her master's door in a state of great perturbation."

"What is the matter, Bunch?" "Oh, ma'am, I can't get no peace of mind till I've got master shaved, and he's so late this morning!"

"This getting master shaved" consisted in making ready for him with a large painter's brush a thick lather in a huge wooden bowl as big as Mambuzo's helmet, which she always considered as the most important avocation of the morning."

Can Sleep Well and Has Splendid Appetite. Industry, Tex., Feb. 1, 1904. The person for whom I used Koehn's Nerve Tonic is a 54 year old lady, she suffered from want of appetite of sleeplessness and was so weak that she could hardly walk a distance of about a mile, which she had formerly done with ease without having to take a rest several times, she also had spells of dizziness and fainting when in presence of other persons, as at church. After using one bottle of the Tonic she is as strong as a young girl, she has splendid appetite, can sleep well and is strong again. Rev. W. Koehn, Pastor of St. Ignace Church, Louisville, Ky. Write for a valuable book on the value of Koehn's Nerve Tonic to J. S. Flannery Drug Co., 156 N. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.
