A DAUGHTER'S PEACE OFFERING

Unusual Gift Softens an Obdurate Father.

You know pa wouldn't censent to Del's marriage with Jim, wouldn't allow the wedding at the house or allow either Del or Jim to come here afterward. This was because Jim had been wild and hadn't settled down. It was hard on us all, for Del was my only child, she had always been her father's pet, and his treatment almost broke ber heart.

The years went by, and pa instead of softening appeared to harden, though Jim made Del a splendid hushand and grew rich. They had one child, a boy, the prettiest little chap you ever saw. One day an artist saw him in his bath and was so struck with his little form that he asked leave to copy him into a picture he was painting. The picture was a sucstation, all on account, everybody
