"Where did you meet your wife, Campbell?" I asked.

Wise or Innesent?

He met her one night at a reception and asked her to go to the theater with him. She accepted, and as they liked each other, they went again later.

A GRIM VISITOR

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC
To be Watched.
From Stuart, Neb., writes Mr. Joseph Babb: "March 14, 1911—My son was very ill from nervousness, could not sleep, had to be watched all the time, and was afraid he would hurt himself. I tried two doctors, who treated him for 4 weeks without any result. But after taking 10 bottles of Father Koenig's Nerve Tonic I can testify that my son is entirely cured, and God, I have to be thankful to the Tonic for the astonishing results."

Ghiberti's Famous Doors.
The world renowned doors of the baptistry at Florence represent marks of the entire lifework of Ghiberti. He when man and woman and children began the first pair when he was twenty struck down by this something like three years old, and when he finished the second pair he was seventy.

Unfeeling.
Orator I ask yer, wot is this life we 'old so dear? Soon 'll be lyin' with me forefather. The Voice—An' givin' 'em points at the game tool—London Tit-Bits.

The Dear Girl.
Maybelle—See the beautiful engagement ring Jack gave me last night? Estelle—Gee! Has that foot got around to yer?—Toledo Blade.

Not Carrying It.
An Irishman met with an accident, but was only away from work two days. "Why didn't you stay home for a week?" a friend asked him. "You were carrying an insurance policy, weren't you?"

As Usual.
Jokely—I got a batch of aeroplane jokes ready and sent them out last week. Boggs—What luck did you have with them? Jokely—Oh, they all came flying back.—Lippincott's.

Where Every One is a "Majesty."
Who are the polittest people in Europe? If common speech is any criterion, surely the Spaniards must carry off the palm. The author of "Heroic Phrases" tells of many high-frown phrases still in common use. You bid farewell with "Buenos V. is mano" (I kiss your hand) or "Los pies de V." (I kiss at your feet). The Usted, shortened to V., with which you address high or low, is a corruption of "your majesty." The love of abbreviations is a curious trait in a people with such leisurely ways; thus a row of cabalistic letters ends a letter. S. B. R. Q. B. M., which means that the opposite exponent kisses your hand—"no seguro servidor que besa su mano."

A King Who Could Change the Wind.
King Ericus of Sweden publicly confessed that he was a sorcerer and magician. He was the owner of an enchanted cap, which he pretended enabled him to control the spirits and change the direction of the winds at pleasure. So freely did his subjects believe in the supernatural powers of their ruler that when a storm arose they would exclaim, "Ah, the king is again wearing his magic cap!"—London Mail.

Synonym.
"Say," asked Coakley, looking up from the letter he was writing, "do you know any expression that means the same as 'talking shop'?" "Well," replied Jockley, "there is 'conversational emporium' and likewise 'hair-cutting parlor.'"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Explaining It.
Mrs. Posey—Mercy, Hiram! Them awful society women dress like they was goin' swimmin'. Mr. Posey—Of course, Jerusha. Hain't you heard th' 'in th' oeshin' swim th' wimmen try to outstrip each other?—Milwaukee News.

Sensitive.
Stranger (in Pittsburg)—Do you have a beard on large in this city? Native (shrilly)—Oh, try that stuff in Vanderbilts' Park.

What a stiff family these new rich people are!
"Tea; you see, they made that money in stocks."—Baltimore American.
