Wesley's "Narrow Neck of Land" The actual first and last house in England is a shed where a woman sells specimens of rock. Just below this, as one goes down the zigzag path between the rocks, on the neck of the peninsula is a flat stone about two feet square and rising six inches above the ground.

Wesley's "Narrow Neck of Land" The actual first and last house in England is a shed where a woman sells specimens of rock. Just below this, as one goes down the zigzag path between the rocks, on the neck of the peninsula is a flat stone about two feet square and rising six inches above the ground.

It is also stated that Wesley wrote other hymns there. Apparently he had at this time (July 30, 1748) experienced a bad spell of weather at Land's End, for he writes, "I saw a strange sight - the sun shining in Cornwall." - English Illustrated Magazine.
