Mrs. Davis, Who Caused Roosevelt's Outburst at Chicago.

By American Press Association.

Mrs. W. A. Davis is enjoying the popularity attending her recent excited rush for fame on the floor of the Chicago national convention.

This impulsive lady caused the delegates to cheer for twenty minutes by waving a large banner bearing Colonel Roosevelt's portrait. Mrs. Davis explains the happening in the following way: "While I was sitting there I saw a handsome large picture of Roosevelt by a man's lap. I said, 'Oh, give me that, won't you?' I did not wait for him to answer, but snatched it away from him. I was so excited. They were cheering wildly, you know, for some one else, and I've always been a strong admirer of Roosevelt. I grabbed the picture and waved it wildly. I hardly knew what I was doing. I guess I'm rather excitable by nature. I hardly realized what they were doing when they took me down. I was too excited to be afraid. I fell perfectly at home, for some reason, although I never have appeared in public before."

The Useful Rees.

More in number than the count of its petals are the present day uses for the silky rose crocheted in baby Irish style out of the heavy mercerized cotton or twisted silk of white or cream color. The bags on which it is the chosen trimming are the very newest design to be seen in the shops that make a specialty of "the latest thing," but I use still more novel is as the trimming for one's new girdle.

As has been often said, the knack of forgetting them once learned is invaluable. And in this heavy thread there is not the eye strain to be guarded against which makes the finer work rather trying to those with sensitive vision. Once started, the little box of bag of single roses soon begins to fill.

Progressive Orientals.

Mrs. Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage alliance, writing from Egypt, says: "I find a liberal princess who is a pronounced suffragist and has written some excellent papers to prove that the Koran is not opposed to liberty for women. A Moslem woman has lectured at the newly founded Egyptian university on women's rights, and a Syrian girl has studied law and is employed in a law office. Leaders are thus coming forward, and a woman's movement has surely begun. In the constitutional agitation of the past few years the women have taken a keen interest, and representative government has become a popular theme of discussion in the harems."

Dented Furniture.

When furniture becomes dented and bent broken the marks may easily be made to disappear. Treat it in this manner:

For the bruised spot with water. Double a piece of brown paper five or six times and soak it in warm water. Place it upon the bruise and apply a warm (not hot) saturation till the moisture has evaporated.

To Remove Ink Spots.

If an ink spot gets on the carpet slip a pan under it immediately, pour cold water through it and then cover it with a little heap of salt. When the salt has become dark with ink remove it and put a fresh layer in its place. (An ink stain is less likely to be spread by pouring water through it than by dipping it into hot water.)

Give Her the Right Tool.

A WOMAN CAN'T DRIVE A NAIL. There has been too much slandering of women. A woman may not be able to drive a nail with a hammer, but you give her a hammer, and she can drive a nail as well as anybody.

The Latest Development.

Kansas City is to have kind courts with speeches on suffrage in the afternoon on the program.

Cookery Points

Combination Marmalade.

Wash the rhubarb without peeling it, cut it into inch lengths and weigh it. Then to every pound of rhubarb add the pulp and juice of one orange and for every three pounds add the thin yellow peel of one orange. Put the rhubarb and oranges into a stone jar or an agate kettle, add a tablespoonful of water for every pound of rhubarb, set it in the oven and cover tightly. Bake until very tender, then rub through a sieve and put the pulp into a preserving kettle with a pound of sugar for every pound of rhubarb before it was cooked. Let boil twenty minutes, stirring it all the time with a silver or wooden spoon. Put it into small pots or glasses and cover as you do jelly.

Cocunut and Raisin Cake.

Take a scant cupful of butter, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, three eggs, a teaspoonful of vanilla, a salt-spoonful of mace, half a cupful of milk, three cupfuls of pastry flour, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar and half a teaspoonful of soda. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, also the yolks of the three eggs, beaten separately, and then the vanilla and mace. Sift the flour and mix the soda and cream of tartar with it. Add the milk and flour alternately, a little at a time, and lastly the whites of three eggs, beaten up to a stiff dry white foam. Bake in shallow round pans. As soon as baked split and spread with a thin layer of currant jelly.

Rolls Sandwiches.

For refreshments there are no daintier, prettier sandwiches than these, the making of which is very easy. Take a rather large loaf of bread, trim off the crusts and cut lengthwise into thin slices. Dip the slices in water, lay them in a pan, cover very closely and leave in a hot oven fifteen or twenty minutes. Remove from the oven and when partly cool spread with fresh sweet butter and very thin slices of cold boiled ham. Then roll up like jelly cake and place each sandwich so it will not come unrolled. The steaming gives them a fresh, sweet taste and makes them pliant, so they may be easily rolled.

Frozen Orange Cream.

This is a delicious dessert. Take the juice of six large oranges and two lemons, beat the yolks of six eggs thick, add two cupfuls of sugar, soak one-half package of gelatin in a little cold water to cover it, add a little boiling water to dissolve it. Mix all together and strain. Turn into the ice cream freezer and turn crank until it begins to set. Have a pint of cream whipped thick; take out dasher and beat in cream with spoon until the mixture is smooth. Pack in ice and salt the same as for ice cream. Let stand three hours to ripen, turn out on platter and serve with sponge cake.

Chocolate Leaf Cake.

Chocolate leaf cake with walnuts sprinkled through the dough is often served under the name of "fudge cake." This name, however, is more appropriately given to a layer cake spread with a thin layer of chocolate fudge. Pecans or hickory nuts may take the place of the walnuts, and they may be sprinkled through either the dough or the filling or through both. Two layers of white or yellow cake may be spread between and over the top with chocolate fudge containing nut meats.

Trick of the Oven.

If you wish to bake something quickly in the range with no fire started get together a collection of fine wood chips, start your fire and let the top lids of the stove get very hot. Put these in the oven on top of the grate, put the article to be baked on these hot lids, and these will furnish bottom heat while the quick fire will almost at once furnish top heat. The baking is very rapidly done with little heat in the house.

Frozen Custard.

Make a boiled custard with a quart of rich milk, the beaten yolks of three eggs and three-fourths of a cupful of sugar. Cook and stir until it begins to thicken. Remove at once from the fire, cool and flavor with a tablespoonful of vanilla. Add a cupful of cream and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Mix and freeze.

Green Pea Cakes.

Heat and mash two cupfuls of peas that have been cooked tender. Season with butter, salt and pepper. Let the peas cool, then add two eggs well beaten, a small cupful of sweet milk and half a cupful of sifted flour well mixed with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Fry on a hot griddle well greased.

Cocunut and Raisin Filling.

Take one cupful of stoned raisins chopped fine, half a cupful of chopped almonds, half a cupful of freshly grated cocunut and the white of an egg beaten stiff. Beat all together thoroughly.

Soft Cream Cakes.

Take one and two-thirds cupfuls of sugar, half a cupful of butter, one cupful of cream, three eggs, half a teaspoonful of soda and three cupfuls of flour. Do not let the butter melt.

ADVANCE STYLE.

Fall Model Designed For September Bride.

SUIT OF BLUE SATIN.

This French costume—an early fall model designed for a September trousseau—is of navy blue satin draped most gracefully in modified pannier style. The little yoke of hand hemmed batiste is modish.

LOOKING WELL IN SUMMER.

Keep the Hair Neat and the Face Hygienically Clean.

One of the duties in summer is to look cool, and no woman can look cool if her face is a flame, her brow sticky and her nose peeling. Rosewater and glycerin and a bit of chamomile and powder carried in the hand bag quickly remove shine.

Neat hair is a harder problem. The woman whose locks are flat and sticky in hot weather is to be pitied. She need not be a sight if she makes the best of the inevitable. Discard useless curling irons and adopt another style of hairdressing. Wash the hair once a week to keep it free from oil, brush hard to further check oil and use a net to prevent straggling ends. If at night the hair is wet, tied with diletta and combed up between it will never be entirely flat.

Summer nerves are hard to conquer. Heat is enervating, it is uncomfortable to exercise, so the liver suffers, and appetite falling, digestion is deranged.

One will feel much better by taking a moderate amount of exercise even on the hottest days. A walk early in the morning or after sunset can be taken without fear of prostration. Eat sparingly of nourishing foods and do not live on iced drinks and sweets. Excessive perspiration is a sign of physical weakness and should be checked. An ordinary amount is not dangerous, but can be made endurable by the use of talcum powder and sponging with alcohol. Powdered borax will help.

Water For Nervousness.

"If people would only drink more water they would not be so nervous," say physicians and trained nurses.

Nearly all doctors will recommend one who is suffering from nervous prostration or nervous exhaustion to drink lots of water between meals. Those who need not come under the care of a physician would look and feel better if they would drink at least a quart of water during the day.

Those who know say that water is a nerve food and that it has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually. Water drunk slowly and gradually has somewhat the same quality as deep breathing.

About Women.

Women, says de Maule in Clavier, are not so frail as people are pleased to say. They are frail only when they wish to be.

It was in the manufacture of textiles that woman first appeared in industry outside of the home.

In China women carry their children from baskets that hang from a bar that crosses the mother's shoulders. Twins are desirable as preserving the balance of weight, if not for other reasons.

The Busy Begum.

The begum of Bhopal, India's famous woman ruler, has just donated $5,000 toward the establishing of a girls' school at Delhi. In a public address not long ago she urged the women of India to make the education and liberation of their sex the chief objects of their lives, declaring that female education is the foundation of all national success and progress.

Women's Progress in Russia.

The czar has adopted a bill permitting women to practice law in Russia.

NOW THE MONOCLE.

The Modish Summer Girl Wears an Eyeglass.

SILK COAT OVER NET FROCK.

Fetching summer out of door costumes are accompanied by monocles, which hang on long jeweled chains or ribbons with jeweled slides. This costume shows a silk coat worn over a net frock, and the monocle gives a dash of knowing smartness echoed by high heeled satin boots with glass buttons.

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS.

Ways to Overcome Difficulties Encountered by Housekeepers.

Roasting in a gas stove causes meat to dry, as gas causes a very dry heat. The simplest way to prevent this is to place a common jam pot half filled with water in a corner at the bottom of the oven, and when the water heats the steam will keep the air inside quite moist, and it will be found when the meat is done that it will be quite juicy.

A woman who has tried it declares the best way to mend china is to apply a little carriage varnish carefully with a camel's hair brush to the edge of the broken china, the parts being neatly joined together. The fracture will, when thoroughly dry, be hardly perceptible, and the china will stand fire and water.

Old kid gloves are excellent for putting in iron and kettle holders as padding when making them. With such padding the hot handles will not scorch the hands.

When ironing circular centerpieces or tablecloths see that the iron moves with the straight grain of the cloth. In this way only is it possible to preserve the circular edge in its true line.

Her New Harem Bathing Suit.

Divided skirts are having everything their own way in bathing suits this year. Even the youngest suffragette has her bifurcated swimming garment. An up to the minute bathing suit with knitted jersey and divided skirt of mohair is shown here with trimmings of checked taffeta silk. The cap is a knitted affair with a huge Alsatian bow of the checked silk.

Value of a Laugh.

When you go to visit the sick do not forget that a good laugh is one of the best tonics and a bit of humorous gossip or piquant saying is better than any drug. Make the invalid smile if you cannot start up a laugh, but make your visit short. Remember that too much of a good thing is as bad as too little.

Mr. Henpeck's Version.

Mr. Henpeck—is your beef tender today? Butcher—Yes, sir; it's as tender as a woman's heart. Mr. Henpeck—Then I'll take a pound of steaks.

Good Form

Consideration For Others.

It goes without saying that consideration for others is one of the twelve pillars of the law of good breeding and a very important one. Everybody recognizes this in a general way, yet many people do not realize how large a share it has in the technical rules of etiquette. Thus punctuality is said to be the politeness of kings, but punctuality is dictated by a consideration for others as well as by the desire to have everything move in a smooth and orderly manner. Guests at a dinner must arrive at the hour named or five minutes after lest they keep the party assembled waiting for them. Fifteen minutes is the utmost limit allowed to tardy comers.

A hostess who invites friends to visit her simply because she is bored and wants them to amuse her violates, perhaps unconsciously, the laws of hospitality. People who have a great deal of money and little to do sometimes offend in this way. Time hangs heavy on their hands, and they are delighted to have some bright girl or clever young man come to stay with them to brighten them up. If they provide amusement for the visitors or give them something desirable which they do not get at home, such as automobile, coasting or skating, there is no objection to their expecting thereafter to make them some return in the way of agreeable talk.

Elderly persons or those living quietly in the country should remember that the daily routine of their existence may seem dull to active young people accustomed to more life and excitement. Let us all beware lest we become social vampires, draining the vitality of those who come near us.

The woman who throws open her house for the sole purpose of displaying its expensive furniture and appointments is worse than her "bored" sister, because she adds pride to selfishness. A story is told of two rival leaders in a large American city which shows to what depths of vulgarity one may descend if one permits pride to replace good feeling toward others. Mrs. X. appeared at a ball wearing a costume of magnificent brocade which quite eclipsed the gown of Mrs. K. The latter congratulated her rival on the beauty of her dress and urged her to wear it at a reception which she (Mrs. K.) proposed to give a week or two later. Mrs. X., not dreaming of any treachery, unwisely complied with the request. Imagine her feelings when on arriving at the house of Mrs. K. she found that the latter had had all her drawing room furniture covered with the admired brocade!

Do You Sit Correctly?

In the good old days a lady would no more think of sitting with her elbows on the table and of crossing her legs than she would of eating with her knife. Now such actions are so common as to pass almost unnoticed.

The girl who leans habitually on her elbows soon ruins them. The skin roughens and reddens, eventually becoming callous and horny. Worse yet, the pressure of the body on the elbow stops the circulation and reddens the skin of the entire arm.

More dangerous is the habit common to men and women alike of sitting with one leg swung over the knee of the other. The pressure comes at a sensitive part of the leg and knee, a spot where there are a number of large veins, arteries and nerves. The pressure stops circulation, crowds the tissues together and produces various ills. Many a woman who suffers from headache or numbness will find it relieved if she ceases to sit with her legs crossed. The habit long continued produces varicose veins, a red nose, bruised spots and other ills attendant on stopped circulation.

It will be easier to conquer this bad habit if a woman makes a practice of sitting erect on chair or sofa with the end of her spine pressed close against the back of her chair. This will throw her feet in a natural position on the ground, and the temptation to loaf or sit cross legged is minimized.

Good Form For Week Ends.

The girl who goes on a summer visit with little baggage and a small purse often finds herself feeling very soiled and crumpled before many days are over. Especially is this the case when the holiday takes the form of a little tour abroad. It is difficult and expensive to get washing done, and much baggage is out of the question, yet the strenuous round of sightseeing has its effect on one's clothes, and the fact of being among strangers does not in the least make lack of daintiness excusable or more easily endured.

A great friend at these times is a split iron. Its cost, several dollars, may seem a considerable item in the outfit, but will soon be repaid in comfort, and there will be no temptation to rush out and buy (often quite unsuitable) blouses or scarfs to substitute for the original crumpled supply. A fine handkerchief, a jabot or a few fine handkerchiefs are easily washed out in one's own room.

A bottle of soap jelly and another of gum water should be brought from home. This is made by dissolving gum arabic crystals, two ounces to a pint, in hot water. It serves instead of starch for the muslin things, and, besides, can be used to freshen up clothes and gowns, necks and veils.

For the Children

A Smart Terrier, Which Likes to Play Tennis.

Billie, who is seen enjoying a game of tennis in his own particular fashion, is owned by an English army officer who is a member of the Fortrose Green Tennis club of England. Billie is a wire haired terrier and is a tennis enthusiast. He is so well trained that he never crosses a court during play. It is only at the close of a game that he appears in true dog fashion for a partner. Then he is all life and can catch a ball no matter how swiftly it is hatted to him.

Billie's chief duty, however, is to retrieve balls lost over the walls among the borders. He can distinguish perfectly the Fortrose club balls from those of other clubs. It is said of Billie that he has been known to sit for hours watching a ball lodged in a tree, waiting, the club members assert, for the law of gravity to operate.

The Cat and the Heron.

In a garden a green heron, confined by a long cord to a tree in the yard, spent much time by day standing upon one leg, his shoulders bunched up, as though asleep—a most stupid looking fowl. F. Sten, the cat, was much struck by his singular appearance and watched him furtively for a week or so before venturing nearer. She was puzzled how to classify the newcomer. A capture did not look difficult, as he did not fly away when she approached. So one day she sidled closer.

Plunkett's eyes were slightly opened, but he moved not a feather. Puss crouched and advanced a step.

Still there was no motion. Nearer she crept, her tail beginning to twitch and her hind legs working for a spring, when, a loud "Quawk!" wings outspread and flapping, long bill stretched wide, the drowsy bird was transformed into an avenging fury. He sprang at puss, and she fled up a tree in a flash.

She decided that she must have been mistaken.

Anecdote of Lessing.

Absentmindedness has been frequently a characteristic of men of fame. It is to be supposed, no doubt, that their minds have been so wholly absorbed by great matters that the smaller, more trivial things of life have been considered unworthy of their attention. Among men of this stamp, who have suffered in this way was Lessing, a famous German writer of plays and books of criticism. Lessing discovered at one period of his life that he was being robbed of his ready money by some person in his home, and, unable to determine who the culprit was, he put the servants of his household to a test by leaving a handful of gold upon his breakfast table one morning.

Meeting a friend, he told him what he had done. "That was risky," said his friend. "How much did you leave there?" "Dear me!" cried Lessing. "I quite forgot to count."

Sounds Made by Animals.

Here are the proper words to use in describing the different sounds made by various living creatures: The bullfinch pipes, the cat mews, the cow lows, the crow caws, the donkey brays, the dove coos, the duck quacks, the elephant trumpets, the frog croaks, the hen cackles, the horse neighs, the hyena laughs, the lion roars, the monkey chatters, the owl hoots, the peacock screams, the rooster crows, the serpent hisses, the sheep bleats, the turkey gobbles, the wolf howls.

These are all distinctive words and should always be used in their proper connection, because it would be just as wrong to say that an elephant roars as it would be to say that a duck sings.

Which Was Kept.

There were two little kittens, a black and a gray. And grandmamma said, with a frown: "It will never do to keep them both. The black one we'd better drop." "Don't cry, my dear," to tiny Bea. "One kitten's enough to keep. Now run to nurse, for it's growing late. And time you were fast asleep."

The morning dawned, and rosy and sweet came little Bea from her nap. The nurse said, "Go into mamma's room. And look in grandma's lap!" "Come here," said grandma, with a smile. "From the rocking chair where she sat. 'Get thee hence you two little kittens! Why, what do you think of that?'"

Bea looked at the black, a moment. With their wee heads yellow and brown. And then to grandma's lap she ran. "Which was the black one, grandma?"

"The black one," said grandma, with a smile. "From the rocking chair where she sat. 'Get thee hence you two little kittens! Why, what do you think of that?'"
