HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Teakettle Cover With Safety Pipe Attachment.

How many women have scalded their hands when lifting a teakettle from the range because the steam that was escaping from the spout was blown back upon them? Probably most women who have handled teakettles. Now two Oregon men have designed a kettle with an attachment to prevent this accident. The cover of the kettle has a telescoping steam escape pipe rising from it and extending horizontally in the direction of the spout. This pipe can be extended until the end rests on the tip of the spout, and in this position all the escaping steam is blown straight out from the kettle and cannot flow back and burn one. With these two openings air can enter through the spout, for example, and by its pressure blow the steam through the pipe with sufficient force to prevent a "flareback."

Fried Chicken, Southern Style.
Cut a nice, tender chicken into small pieces, cutting at the joints. Have ready a hot frying pan in which has been fried one-quarter pound of salt pork. Roll the pieces of chicken in flour in which have been mixed salt and pepper to season; place the largest pieces in the pan first and cover tightly with a large tin cover. As the larger pieces are browned add the smaller. Give constant attention not to let burn. It will require twenty-five to thirty minutes to cook the meat through to the bone.
When nicely browned place on platter and pour over it the gravy made as follows:

Cream Gravy—Stir in flour into the hot fat in which butter the size of an egg has been melted. Salt and pepper to season and pour in milk until it is of a thick ness to suit your taste.

Stewed Eels.

Take a couple of eels that have been skinned, had the heads removed and been cut into pieces a couple of inches long. Cover them with boiling water. Turn in a tablespoonful of vinegar and cook slowly for ten minutes. Then drain and make a sauce with the liquor of the eels and a tablespoonful each of butter and flour for every cupful. Season the sauce with grated onion, salt and pepper. Simmer for twenty minutes. Before serving pour one of the imprisoned soldiers sending to the table sprinkle minced parsley over the top of the dish and garnish with bits of toast. Some persons add to the seasoning a little lemon juice and a bunch of sweet herbs. A little rich cream may be turned over them before they go to the table.

Macaroni and Cheese.

Break the macaroni into briskly boiling salt water and let boil twenty minutes. While it is boiling cut up your cheese into small pieces, take one tablespoonful of butter and one of flour blend in a pan over the fire and add cheese. Let the cheese soften, but not brown, then add salt red pepper of paprika and a pint of milk. Stir slowly until milk is hot and all smooth and thick. Take macaroni from fire, drain and turn cold water over quickly and rinse. Put into a baking dish, add cheese sauce, stir and bake until brown. If more milk is needed to cover it may be added. This distributed the cheese evenly and is delicious.

Tomato Marmalade.

Pare and cut into small pieces seven pounds of ripe tomatoes, add half cupful of salt and let stand overnight. Next morning drain water off and add five pounds of granulated sugar, two pieces of ginger root, two sticks of cinnamon three pinches of cloves, two level teaspoonfuls of allspice and small piece of red pepper. Cook for half an hour, then skim out the tomatoes and boil the sirup until quite thick. Add one teaspoonful of vinegar and boil a few minutes longer; then pour over the tomatoes. Put spices in bag. Made with the small yellow tomato it is delicious.

Piccalilli.

One peck green tomatoes, four peppers and twelve onions chopped fine and drained through cheesecloth. Add a ten cent package of mixed pickling spices, one tablespoonful ground muslard, four cupfuls sugar one-half cupful salt and cover with cold vinegar—about two quarts. Boil slowly nearly two hours. Put into jelly tumblers and cover with paraffin.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Soldiers and Sailors Game.

The players, leap hands, forming two rings about fifteen feet apart. One ring is composed of soldiers, while the other is made up of sailors. In the center of which they cooked the liquor of the sailors' ring there are three sailors standing as prisoners, while in the middle of the sailors' ring there are three soldier captives. A soldier in the per turn in the center cover the dish and soldiers' ring throws a soft rubber ball slimmer for twenty minutes. Before over to one of the imprisoned soldiers sending to the table sprinkle minced parsley over the top of the dish and garnish with bits of toast. Some persons add to the seasoning a little lemon juice and a bunch of sweet herbs. A little rich cream may be turned over them before they go to the table.

Aunt Dorcas' Rag Carpet.

The children stand in a ring, holding hands, with one in the center, who begins the game by giving the name of a different color to each player and then says: "My Aunt Dorcas is making a rag carpet—First she sewed a red stripe and a brown stripe together."
At this the two children to whom the colors "red" and "brown" were given leave their places and try to run around the outside of the circle and regain their places before the one in side can break through and catch either of them. If they both succeed in getting back the one inside the ring goes with her story, saying, for instance, "Next she sewed a green and orange stripe together." Without regard for color effects, instantly "green" and "orange" leave their places and make the same attempt as did the first two runners. So the game goes on until one is caught and takes the place in the center.

Hop Over.

This is a game that most children under thirty seem to get very much fun out of. All the players stand in a ring about two feet apart from each other, except one, who takes the place in the middle, holding a long stout string, to the end of which is firmly tied a small book wrapped in paper. Some other small object, not too heavy, would answer as well.

The person in the center then whirls the book around near the floor, holding by the string and each time coming closer to the feet of those standing in the circle, who as it nears them must jump up and let it pass under their feet. As the book is whirled more and more rapidly the jumping becomes quite lively for if it touches the foot of any one that person must take his or her turn in the middle and try to hit the feet of some one else who is not sufficiently alert or active.

Parlor Match Trick.

Have, say, 100 matches. Lay them on the table and agree with some one to take alternately from the heap any number not exceeding ten, and wager that the last match will come to you. Then remember the numbers 1, 12, 23, 34, and so on, increasing by eleven each time. Supposing you have the first draw. You take one match only, and your opponent can never have a chance, for if he draws as many as possible the first time (ten) you take one more and make the total twelve. Say he then draws eight, and you will immediately draw three. When you have got to eighty-nine you will see that the other player has no chance. Should your opponent insist on having the first draw he will make it possible for you to attain one of the numbers—12, 23, 34, etc. Then the game is yours.

A Music Loving Mouse.

Mice are decidedly musical little creatures, not only occasionally singing themselves, but displaying great enjoyment in the performance of others. One evening a gentleman who was playing on his flute saw a mouse creep out of a hole and slowly approach him. He stopped playing, and the mouse scuttled back to its hole, but when the air was repeated the little animal appeared as before, laying itself down near the performer and shutting its eyes in a kind of ecstasy. It fairly trembled with delight and forgot everything else, but whenever the music ceased, which it did frequently, by way of experiment, it was the same ordinary frightened mouse, whose sole object in life was to get back to its hole.

A New Definition.

"What is conscience?" asked the teacher.
"An inward monitor," answered Hairs.
"And what is a monitor?"
"An ironclad boat."
