The Largest of These Kinds... The greatest bank in the world is the Bank of England; the largest library is the National in Paris, containing nearly 3,000,000 volumes; the largest theater is the Paris Opera House, covering three acres; the largest bronze statue is that of Peter the Great in St. Petersburg, weighing 1,100 tons; the biggest stone statue is in Japan, forty feet high; the largest church is in Cairo, with over 10,000 seats; and 310 members.

Getting Specific... Bitterly—When you and your wife were first married you used to call each other "birds," didn't you? McSwat—Yes, Bitterly—Do you still do it? McSwat—Well, I call her a parrot and a couple, and she usually refers to me as a Jay.—Exchange.

Cheerfulness... If a person determines early in life that a cheerful disposition is worth having and strives to obtain it and does so that person is a success in the business of the world.

Your real influence is measured by your treatment of yourself.—Alcott.

THE WAY THEY STRUCK... A company of Italian laborers engaged in the construction of a railway in Germany had their wages reduced. They said nothing, but during the night each of the men cut an inch of the end of his shovel. In reply to the foreman who took them to task about it, one of them said, "Not so much pay, nobility so much earth. So much longer last work. Italian not fool like German, Italians not strike!"—London Mail.

Another Way to Put It... "After all," said the moth, "the almighty dollar is man's greatest enemy. I!"

"If that's so," interrupted old Rocky, "I guess that young wife of mine merely loves me for the enemies I've made."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Discrimination... "Did you ever tell that young man that late hours were bad for one?" asked the father at the breakfast table. "Well, father," replied the wise daughter, "late hours may be bad for one, but they're all right for two."—Yonkers Statesman.

Blot out your pump check tonight! Keep reason under its own control!—Marcus Aurelius.

TATTERSALL'S IN LONDON.

The most famous horse mart in the world is Tattersall's in London. A romantic history attaches to the establishment.

In 1778 a certain John Tattersall, a wool comb of Yorkshire, who had lost his fortune, started the Tattersall's, obtaining a license from the crown to sell horses and carriages in London and (thereby) to be the only person for the sale of horses and carriages.

Tattersall's was a very successful business with the sale of horses and carriages, and he was very rich. He died in 1810, and his son, John Tattersall, continued the business.

In due time a son of John Tattersall, John Tattersall, continued the business, and he was very successful. He died in 1840, and his son, John Tattersall, continued the business.
