Investment of One Cent Offers Big Opportunity For Profit

The Rochester Milling and Reduction Company, (Authorized Capital $500,000.00) officered and controlled by the most prominent men in the West, and well known in banking and financial circles, for the purpose of increasing the capacity of its plant, offers a limited amount of its stock (par value $1.00) at Fifty Cents a share. This stock should pay an income of at least three per cent per month, and should be worth five dollars per share in less than a year—A profit of 1000 per cent.

This is not a mining company, a gamble or a speculation, but an enterprise, the profits of which are as certain as the laws of gravitation.

Country Homes for Catholic Families

There are in this section of the country, a limited number of exceptionally desirable tracts of land suitable for general farming or for fruit, truck and dairy farms. Present prices are considerably below actual value, and will soon advance rapidly as land speculators are beginning to pour into the country.

To protect Catholic land-seekers and to furnish them with reliable information and assistance, Rt. Rev. Jos. F. Busch, Bishop of Lead has formed the County Home Association of Western South Dakota, which society will give full information by personal letters to Catholics who can furnish first class references, if the enquirers will state what kind of farm land they desire, whether for general farm purpose or for fruit, garden or dairy.

FATHER KOENIG'S NERVE TONIC

A Sister Recommends it Most Highly. A Kewaukum, Wis., August, 1912. Many of the Sisters are using Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic. I tried one bottle for nervousness and sleeplessness, and noticed not alone a marked improvement in my sleep, but felt much better since, therefore, recommend the Tonic most highly to all those suffering similarly.

Helen G. McLaughlin, of Overly, N. Dak., says that Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic is certainly an excellent Nerve Tonic, because she was badly run down from nervousness and sleeplessness, but after taking the Tonic her nerves became stronger and she slept well.

Wm. J. Riley, of Seymour, Ind., says he took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic for sleeplessness, of which he suffered since his wife's death, and he feels good and recommends the Tonic to all needing it for that purpose.

FREE A Valuable Book on Nervous Diseases and a Sample bottle in any address. Four cents also for the medicine free. Prepared by Rev. Father Koenig, of Fort Wayne, Ind., since 1876 and now by the KOENIG MED. CO., Chicago, Ill. 62 W. Lake Street, near DuSable.

Nautical Terms.

Terms used aboard ship are interesting and might, in collision, be useful. Toward the ship's head is forward (pronounced for'ard). The opposite direction is aft.

Looking for'ard and to the right is starboard; to the left is port. The quarter from which the wind blows is windward; its opposite is leeward (pronounced loo'ard).

A scuttle is a window on board ship; a stairway is a companion ladder; a bed is a bunk; a kitchen range is a galley. This term is also applied to the captain's own boat. The forecastle (pronounced for'astle) is any covered-in place in the bows. A knot is a speed of one sea mile per hour 0.660 feet. The ship wears a flag; that is the correct term. Passages are gangways.

Bollards are stout pillars round which run the hawsers—steel wire ropes. The bridge is sacred to the captain and officers—London Fit-Rits.

Perpetual Motion Cranks.

Judging from the applications for patents, one a week, all Great Britain apparently is trying to invent a perpetual motion machine, only Great Britain calls it a "self moving engine." The wires and bones of models may be found bleaching in hundreds on the shelves of the patent office. It goes without saying that not one shows the slightest inclination to move itself.

Varied and often pathetic are the histories of the inventors. Not a few of them have spent the years of their prime in the chase of this unattainable will o' the wisp; others have dropped thousands of pounds in the quest; still others have tramped the quarry into the insane asylums. If all the wasted energy spent in seeking the solution of this problem had been converted into the beaten channels of endeavor the patent office officials believe there would be few problems of mechanics left today unsolved.—New York Sun.

A Railway Across the Open Sea.

The Florida Keys railway runs from the mainland for a distance of 124 miles over what is practically open sea. Imagine a string of tiny islets stretching like the broken off pieces of some Titanic bridge right out into the great salt ocean and you have the Florida Keys. Most of them are only a few rods in extent. Here and there is one that reckons its area in acres, while four or five among them are islands rather than islets, covering several square miles. Big or little, however, they serve merely as stations for the railway, which runs over and upon them with the open sea on either side of it. Moreover, the viaducts and embankments that carry the trains, although immensely strong, are so narrow and steep that the passengers look out upon ocean only. There is no land whatever in sight during the greater part of the trip.—Exchange.

What Happened.

"Are you the man who writes all this joyous advice about scattering sunshine and giving everybody that seems worried a glad hand and a word of encouragement?"

"Yes," said the man with scarce hair and ink fingers. "I am one of the profession's optimists who do that sort of thing."

"Well, I'm not going to sue you for damages or false pretenses or anything of that kind. I just want to let you know that I tried to heed your lesson. I went to one of our great cities and tried to speak words of cheer and comfort to the overburdened souls that I saw rushing past me."

"What happened?"

"Before, I had cheered up four people I got arrested for being a confidence man."—Washington Star.

Good Excuse.

He (to his wife, who has not been feeling well and who has consulted a physician)—Well, what did the doctor say? She—He thinks it is not very serious. But, do you know, dearest, one can never tell. At all events, I shall go to Ostend.—Ellegende Blatter.

Good Luck For Him.

"Finnily is a shiftless fellow."
 "That's true. His idea of a stroke of good luck is being able to strike somebody for a loan."—Houston Post.

The Regeneration of Organs.

Many inferior animals have, as is well known, the power of replacing various parts of the body when lost, such as the tail and even in some cases the head. A worm may sometimes be divided into various sections, and each section will proceed to live its separate existence. Experiments made by naturalists to obtain a better understanding in this regenerating faculty have shown that the lungs of frogs and salamanders have grown again after being almost wholly extirpated, also the horns of snails have been extirpated with like results. Each so called limb has an eye which communicates with the outside world, and these eyes have been regrown with the horn, though practically useless for purposes of vision. It is established likewise that the caudal horn or tentacle of the silk worm if taken off will grow again, although it will be smaller than the primitive one and in some cases invisible to the naked eye. The crab and lobster, as is well known, can grow new claws.—Harper's Weekly.

The Ants' Drum Corps.

One day Professor Huxtion visited a little island on Lake Anohningodon, in Cayton. While idling about he suddenly became aware of a faint drumming noise. Turning in the direction from which the sound came, he perceived a colony of termites beneath some dry leaves that had fallen from a dead tree. The noise, which lasted for a few seconds, sounded like the very distant roll of a drum. On closer investigation Professor Huxtion discovered that it was caused by a little band of termites beating a lively tattoo with their mandibles against the bottom of the leaves. They had evidently been disturbed by his approach and were warning the working battalion of the army. On several other occasions under different conditions the same drum signal of danger by the ants was noted by the professor.—Youth's Companion.

A Noted Basso's Egotism.

Once in London four great basses singing at the same time. La blache, Marini, Staudigl and Karl Fornes. Fashionable opinion was undecided as to which of the four was the greatest, and finally the members of a leading club determined to have the quartet of singers interviewed separately by one of the members to find out to whom each of the stagers awarded the palm of being the greatest basso then in London. Staudigl answered promptly and truthfully, "La blache is the best."

Nettle Pottage.

Mr. Pepps was regaled with nettle porridge at the house of a friend and found it "very good." The same delicacy is referred to by Evelyn in his diary. The nettle in fact, which the ignorant dismisses as an unpleasant weed, is capable of doing all sorts of things for man. A Scot was able to boast that he had eaten nettles, slept in nettle sheets and dined off a nettle tablecloth. Spring nettle tops boiled in pottage, according to an old authority, "consume the phlegmatic superfluities in the body of many that the coldness and moisture of the winter leave behind."—London Standard.

Candor Gone Mad.

An English labor agitator and ex M. P. denied in New York that he had visited murder as a strike weapon. "Such advice on my part," said he, "would be candid indeed, wouldn't it? It would be candor gone mad. It would be like the well dressed lady in the department store who approached the floorwalker and said candidly: 'I have kept company. What would you advise me to take for it?'"—Exchange.
