Red Eagles Not An Assessment Or Religious Organization

It having been called to the attention of the Red Eagles Organization department that on account of the words "Secret Society" appearing in some of the literature that possibly there might be some who would think part of the ritual or services might be objectionable to certain religious views. We wish to state that all can rest assured that there are no religious services in the Red Eagles, and nothing that in any way conflicts with anyone's religion or irreligion.

The Red Eagles do believe in pleasure; they teach that we should look on the bright side of life, not dwell on its gloomy aspects. The true Red Eagle stands ever ready to speak a word of cheer to the sorrowful, of courage to the fainting brother, believes in smiles instead of frowns and says there are none all good and none all bad, that we are all good and all bad, differing in these respects only in degree.

The Order of Red Eagles teaches most emphatically the principle of the brotherhood of man. It recognizes the universal fatherhood of God, and we are all His children, no matter where or under what creed or condition we may have been born, and reared. It does not question a brother's religion or nationality, with the single exception that it is a white man's order.

This broad principle may not appeal to some, but to all minds of modern development it must and does appeal.

There is no room for the bigot or the fanatic in the Red Eagles, neither is there in any truly fraternal organization. The great mission of fraternities is to break down barriers that have divided human beings into classes, created by the narrow-minded teachers of the past, and bring all men into better acquaintance with one another, make all more familiar with one another's needs. This is emphatically the highest mission of the Order of Red Eagles, and its members, if they heed its admonitions, must practice fraternalism in its highest and purest sense.

The Red Eagles is not an assessment organization. The local councils dues are 75c per month, and a majority of councils pay a weekly benefit of $7 per week and $100 funeral benefit. Members can elect physician for care of themselves and family. Adv.

Men's Dollar Shirts for 69c

We told a shirt story last week - an interesting one. It was a great sale, practically all the shirts gone in two or three days. We have a sequel to it. To be exact, here are 325 dozen shirts. We bought them from a maker last Friday. He needed the money. They are not leftovers from the other sale.

A hundred dozen of these shirts are madras and pique with French cuffs. Patterns could hardly be excelled. The rest are percales, standard cloths, with plain and plaited fronts. There isn't a shirt in this lot that would ordinarily sell for less than a dollar, not a few for considerably more. They are all 69c.

FURS

Superior in Quality

You may never again have an opportunity to buy "Meng & Shafer" Quality at so low a price.

We have made greater reductions in price than ever before - for we must effect a speedy clearance of the surplus stock we have on hand - the cause of this surplus being the unfavorable weather this fall and early winter. At the original prices these garments were the best values to be had in Rochester - and these original prices are now reduced by from one-fourth to one-third, presenting an unusual opportunity.
