

AUNT SARAH'S MONEY

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press

No one ever spoke of her as the Widow Tyler, although she had been that for years and years. She was always referred to as Aunt Sarah.

"You tend to your business and I'll mine!"

Several weeks after receiving her money the woman walked into the local bank one day and said she'd like to look around.

"It looks risky," she replied, "and I don't want to run no chances with my thousand dollars."

"The matter was gone over again and again, and though still unconvinced, she finally decided to deposit her money. Every morning she used to walk down to the bank to inquire if anything had happened during the night.

"I've just heard of you as an honest man," replied Aunt Sarah, "but if you put that in writin' I shan't worry so much."

It was put in writing and duly witnessed, and for a few weeks the woman felt easier in her mind. One day a stranger came to town with a patent churn.

"You just keep your eyes open. I never seen a bank burglar in all my life, but if that feller with the churn ain't one then I don't know black from white!"

She had been told that bank burglars generally began operations about midnight. At midnight that night she left her house and took a walk down to the bank.

"I about give it up this way. I know that 'churn man is a bank burglar, and if he ain't burglarizin' tonight it's because he ain't ready."

"That was what she did, and although disappointed again she was there on the third night at the same hour. This time she met with better luck.

"Ilt him in the solar plexus, kid, shouted the second. 'Ilt him in the solar plexus, an' you'll put th' big tub out!"

"Where's his solar plexus at?" asked the thin one.

"'Aw, hit him anywhere—you can't miss it!" answered the thicker one. "Clear land plain den'er."

Early Italian Surgery. Benvenuto Cellini (1500-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye.

"Trouble bout these here poets," said the Georgia farmer, "none of 'em make good field hands."

"Wire you insuliate?" the electrician's wife inquired when he made his appearance at 3 a. m.

OYSTERS LIVE AND DEAD.

And the Big Difference It Makes When They Are Eaten Raw.

Speaking about keeping hotels, Sirre on Ford, who won fame and fortune in that profession, had this to say about the succulent oyster:

"People have come and sworn to me that we had the finest oysters in the world. Now, that was all tommy rot. We had the same oysters any one else could buy, although we always bought the best we could.

"There is a whole lot of difference between a dead oyster and a live one. When an experienced opener puts his knife into an oyster he can tell in a second if the oyster is really alive.

"A dead oyster isn't fit to eat raw. But the live oyster that is opened right in front of you and stays on the plate just long enough to squeeze a drop of lemon on, he goes down your throat a juicy and a palpitating treat.

"Why, in some of our shelled palaces they begin to open oysters after breakfast and you get them for dinner. Well, you get them, that's all, and they're dead. A corpse is a corpse, even if it is kept on ice."

METHOD OF TEACHING.

Wherein Our Educators Often Put the Cart Before the Horse.

This simple principle (spirit before discipline) we sometimes seem to lose sight of in our education.

In the days of the renaissance, when people had caught a vision of a new world, they studied Greek with avidity because they believed it was a path into that world.

We set them to cutting up earth-worms when what they wanted first was to have their thoughts turned toward the mystery of physical life.

An Old English Custom. In the northern counties of England there was practiced at Easter up to at least half a century ago the curious custom of "lifting."

Hard to Miss. "I oversaw and overheard this delightful little thing in an alley running north from Payne avenue yesterday," says a more or less cryptic correspondent.

Early Italian Surgery. Benvenuto Cellini (1500-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye.

Where's his solar plexus at? "Where's his solar plexus at?" asked the thin one.

Early Italian Surgery. Benvenuto Cellini (1500-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye.

Where's his solar plexus at? "Where's his solar plexus at?" asked the thin one.

Early Italian Surgery. Benvenuto Cellini (1500-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye.

Where's his solar plexus at? "Where's his solar plexus at?" asked the thin one.

Early Italian Surgery. Benvenuto Cellini (1500-1571) tells of early Italian surgery. He had got a bit of chipped steel in his eye.

HEART STRAIN.

Unusual Exertion May Cause It, and So May a Fit of Temper.

To keep your temper is rather a good idea, said Dr. Strickland Goodall in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene. Every time the heart contracts, he said, its force would raise a weight of two pounds to the height of one foot, and it does this from 70 to 140 times every minute.

Acute heart strain was difficult to produce in a young, well nourished and healthy adult, but it was very easy to produce if the heart muscle was anemic or poisoned or was the seat of degenerative disease.

Running to catch a train increased the heart's work by 228 foot pounds a minute. Ascending a staircase slowly increased the heart's work by 112 foot pounds; ascending quickly by 152 foot pounds.

The enormous amount of total extra work done by the heart was shown in the experiment of riding a bicycle uphill, the gradient of which was one in ten and the length 2,000 feet.

"A rest of half an hour daily would save in a year 210,000 foot pounds of work on the heart.—London Chronicle.

OUR LOPSIDED BODIES.

Legs, Arms, Hands and Ears Are Rarely Perfectly Matched.

"I venture to assert that if you measure the legs of every one in this court, you will not find a person who has a pair of equal length," said Dr. C. W. Cooke in giving evidence in a London court.

The human body is not symmetrical, as is commonly believed, said a widely known doctor. "The legs vary in length and circumference, and the arms as well. The right hand is usually larger than the left, because it is used more. The head is by no means regular in form—in fact, it is often not lopsided."

The left leg is generally a little longer than the right, presumably to counteract the overbalancing effect on the body of the right arm, which is usually somewhat heavier and longer than the left, since ninety-five out of every hundred people use their right arm more than their left.

An Old English Custom. In the northern counties of England there was practiced at Easter up to at least half a century ago the curious custom of "lifting."

Worry and Selfishness. Worry, when you come to analyze it, is not a social vice. We work chiefly over those things which concern the "me."

Scott and His Secretary. Sir Walter Scott's amanuensis and much esteemed friend, Willy Laidlaw, often found it difficult to keep up with the rapidity of his dictation.

Know More Than Pa. "Say, pa, what was the longest day in Adam's life?" "I am sure I don't know."

A Broken Promise. "Did she promise to obey?" "That was in the marriage platform. I understand but when she found how easy he was to boss she rescinded it."—Detroit Free Press.

Good Reason. Maud—You seem to like Jack's attentions. Why don't you marry him? Marie—Because I like his attentions.—Boston Transcript.

Not Her Fault. "It is the duty of every man and woman to be married at the age of twenty-two," said the lecturer.

Liberty is the right to do what the law allows, and if a citizen could do what the law forbids it would be no longer liberty because others would have the same power.—Montesquieu.

Hard Luck. Binks—That chap pitched three years at Yale. Winks—What's he doing now? Binks—President of a bank. His arm went back on him.—Chicago News.

Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men, but there is no gulf stream setting forever in one direction.—Lowell.

HOMEMADE TROUSERS.

With a Ward to the Woman Who Makes Her Own Gowns.

Would men ever get anywhere, do you think, if they fussed around with so many disconnected things as most women do? And the worst of our case is that we are rather inclined to point with pride to what is really one of the most vicious habits of our sex.

Suppose that a man should point proudly to his nether garments and say: "Lo! I made these trousers." I have not a mental picture of even the most economical of his fellow clerks or mail carriers, or clergymen, or school-teachers, crowding around to admire and cry: "What a splendid way to spend your time out of business hours! And it looks just like a tailor made."

Why It Does Not Appear Absolutely Dark When You Wink.

When a person winks his eyes he momentarily covers the entire eyeballs and everything therefore should turn absolutely black and be in total darkness for the instant.

The reason he is unconscious is that the eye is incapable of removing a certain view from itself until an eighth of a second has elapsed.

He Escaped. He was standing at the counter of a gun store waiting for a clerk when an acquaintance came in.

"Do you keep the Maxim silencer?" asked the waiting man.

"Yes, sir."

"Is it any good—will it stop the noise?"

"Give you one for a large bore?" "We have them for all sizes."

"They'll work on anything."

"Then put one on Bill here and charge it to me."

Thoroughly Equipped. Small Girl—Please, Mrs. Jones, mother wants to know if she can borrow a dozen eggs.

Not Her Fault. "It is the duty of every man and woman to be married at the age of twenty-two," said the lecturer.

Liberty is the right to do what the law allows, and if a citizen could do what the law forbids it would be no longer liberty because others would have the same power.—Montesquieu.

Hard Luck. Binks—That chap pitched three years at Yale. Winks—What's he doing now? Binks—President of a bank. His arm went back on him.—Chicago News.

Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men, but there is no gulf stream setting forever in one direction.—Lowell.

VACATION DAYS—HAPPY DAYS

ARRANGE your vacation or business trip to include our palatial lake steamers. Every detail that counts for most convenience and comfort has been provided.

Daily service between Detroit and Cleveland, and Detroit and Buffalo. Day trips between Detroit and Cleveland during July and August. Four trips weekly from Toledo and Detroit to Mackinac Island and every port. Special Summer Cleveland to Mackinac Island two trips weekly June 25th to September 10th, making no stop enroute except at Detroit every trip.

DETROIT & CLEVELAND NAVIGATION COMPANY. Philip H. McMillan, Pres. A. A. Schantz, Vice Pres. and Genl. Mgr.

THE COAST LINE TO MACKINAC, DETROIT, CLEVELAND, BUFFALO, NIAGARA FALLS.

TOLEDO, ST. HURON, ASPENA, ST. IGNACE.

3 IN ONE OILS. CLEANS, POLISHES, PREVENTS RUST. 3-IN-ONE is a light, pure oil compound that never gums.

The proud are always most provoked by pride.

England has beaten us at golf—putting it all over us.

Danger is never mitigated by viewing it with contempt.

A theatrical manager is known by the company he keeps.

Some people regard life as a perpetual indignation meeting.

Of course opportunity never knocks as hard as the other knockers.

There is no use of being born great if you do not intend to work at it.

A perfect dream of a bonnet is often followed by a nightmare of a bill.

A cruel story runs on wheels, and every hand oils the wheels as they run.

You never can tell. The weaker a man is the stronger his habits grow on him.

Many a man who strives to emulate the busy bee only succeeds in getting stung.

Words were made to express ideas, but they are not always used for that purpose.

It isn't enough to pay as you go. You ought to save enough to pay your way back.

Experience is a good teacher, but experience cannot put sense in the head of the pupil.

London is to get the late dance steps from Broadway. So it's also feet across the sea?

Usually the man who has no thought for time is the same chap who has no time for thought.

Half the world doesn't know and can't understand where the other half gets its fool opinions.

The pearls of song become commercialized when a Nordica leaves a million in precious gems.

Many a man's cordial handshake is due to the fact that he has designs on that dollar in your pocket.

Marriage is only another form of speculation in which women participate on equal terms with the men.

The simplified spellers claim to have reformed 3,000 words. But so far the rest of the nation has not caught up.

When the ladder to success is pointed out to you, do not waste time in looking around for a moving stairway.

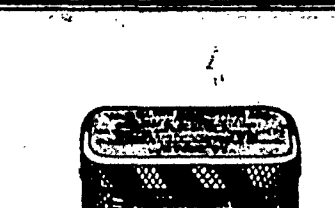

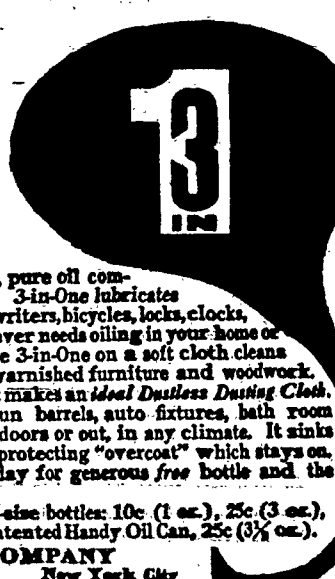

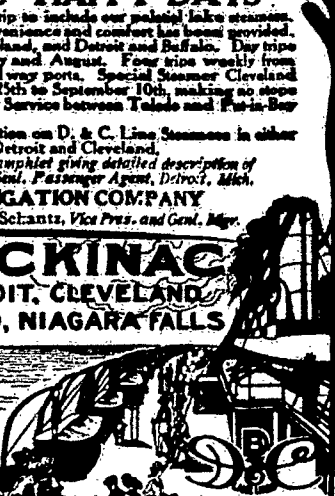

Warning by medical experts against the "debutante slouch" is calculated to make some of 'em sit up and take notice.

There are many things going on all around now to divert attention, but don't let that prevent you from swatting the fly.

When Paris hears of the American movement against tight skirts it may try the other extreme and overload the fashionable woman.

It all depends. Wages are too blame high when you want some work done. And they are too blame low when you are hunting for work.

Blonds are again becoming fashionable in Paris, says an exchange. It must be great to be light headed and stylish at the same time.

Send 5c for trial size.

For Chapped Hands and Lips Vaseline Camphor Ice

Especially good for the children. Insist on VASELINE Camphor Ice. Put up in tubes and boxes. 10 cents. Drug and Department stores everywhere.

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO. (Consolidated) 41 State Street New York City

Some men are capable of neither putting up a job nor holding one down.

Those who have loved and lost are never sure how much they have lost.

Perhaps Argentina is remorseful. It gave us the Tango and now wants to give us peace.

We haven't reached the point where we refer to any of them as "rich as a radium mine."

A New York man wants to know if all men are liars. Well, some have not been caught yet.

If a man were as smart when he grows up as he was when he was a schoolboy he would never write a love letter on anything but a slate.

The inconsistency of man is proved by the fact that he objects to the extreme fashions of the day only when worn by some member of his own family.

All expenditure has to be considered from two points of view, what goes out and what comes in. A dollar spent on a lunch may mean victor or merely indigestion.

The celebration of the centenary of Norwegian independence from Denmark only goes to show that there are lots of important things in the world that Americans never think about.

Forestry experts are using goats to eat up the underbrush with the view of preventing fires. One by one the great American jokes die and disappear. Even the versatile appetite of the goat is being taken seriously.

An Englishwoman who is giving readings in this country boasts that during twenty-three years she never accepted a farthing from her husband without promptly repaying him. If that husband doesn't boast that he has a model wife he must be a queer one.