QUEER CONDUCT OF A RECRUIT

Young Soldier Sorely Perplexes His Colonel.

The Franco-Prussian war had just opened, and the German army was hurrying to the frontier. One morning before the day's march began a young recruit was brought before the colonel of the Elighty-seventh regiment of the Ifne in arrest

"This is Private Herman Meisner," said his captain. "Last night be vol untarily relieved one of the guard and counived at the escape of a prisoner under charge of sleeping on post. He admits this, but says that the man be released, Carl Meisner, is his cousin." "How long have you been in the rmy?" asked the commander.

"I'wo weeks." "Captain, this young fellow is doubt esa ignorant of the enormity of his offense, and we need every man at his post of duty. You may release him. Has the escaped prisoner been eurrested?"

"He has, colonel."

Yes, colonel. The next morning Private Meisner was again brought before the colonel for having made a third attempt to free his cousin. This time he had fail ed to even get the prisoner away from samish with hard boiled eggs in slices the guard. The colonel sent the incor rigible Herman back to take his plac with the other prisoners, to stand trial at the proper time for mutiny. "You are a little fool," said the commander "Are you sure he's same, captain?"
