

The Catholic Summer School

Intellectual Life at the Catholic Summer School.

(Special to The Journal)

Too little attention has been given by the press to the real importance of the Catholic Summer School as a force for education. The physical activity, the sports and social functions have been enlarged upon, exciting and interesting accounts have been given of dances, receptions, excursions, bridge parties, baseball games, athletic meets and tournaments, and in this bestowal of attention on the purely social and physical aspect of Summer School life, the intellectual has perhaps been slighted.

But physical activity in the Summer School at Cliff Haven by no means bespeaks intellectual stagnation. Education here is by no means at a standstill and we use the term not in the sense of mere drudgery with the object of mastering some one particular subject, but to designate the generous, broadening and enlightening influence of a lecture course, that for diversity of matter and lucidity of treatment is seldom equalled.

The courses of lectures this season have been such as to reflect credit on those who arranged them, especially the Rev. John Driscoll, S. T. L., Chairman of the Board of Studies, the curriculum of many a one of our modern universities might be considerably improved by the consideration and imitation of the Summer School lecture courses.

The school's chief activity is necessarily confined to the summer session of ten weeks, and when one considers that Summer Schoolers are gathered together from such widely separated localities as Canada, Mexico, Cuba and South America, the difficulty of the fulfillment of attempting to conduct winter courses which would keep the intellectual life of Summer Schoolers from lying dormant will appear to anyone who takes the trouble to consider. The Catholic Summer School of America is as the name implies a Summer School and the courses conducted during the winter are supplementary, held not with the purpose of keeping up the tradition merely. They are held in the large central cities, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Albany and Buffalo, where the greatest number of Summer Schoolers can be reached. Their purpose, aside from their intellectual values, the preservation of the common bond of membership among Summer School folks. Too much cannot be said in praise of the unceasing labor and rare judgment which enabled the Summer School to arrange such a magnificent course of lectures. There was no branch of education, philosophy, history and travel, political and social sciences, literature and fine arts, that was not adequately and intelligibly treated.

The two courses this week were delivered by John H. Haaren, Ph. D., Associate Superintendent of Schools of New York City who lectured on "Education," and by Prof. Arthur Remy, Ph. D., of Columbia University, New York City, who discussed "The Life and Growth of Language."

Last Saturday evening the Cliff Haven Dramatic Company gave its last performance of the season, the favorite old English comedy, "David Garrick". The feature of the play was the acting of Mr. Hugh Jeffrey in the title role. The performance in the opinion of all Cliff Haven theatergoers was by far the finest of the season.

Improvements in The Belgian Congo.

We find in a London magazine called Progress this appreciation of work done by the Catholic missionaries in the Belgian Congo:

"At Kisantou, the principal post of the mission, the Jesuit Fathers teach the natives agriculture, trades, and the breeding of valuable animals, chiefly the horse and the mule.

"In fifteen years the aspect of the country has entirely changed—forests have disappeared and fertile fields taken their place. Brick buildings have superseded the native huts, the bricks being all made by the Blacks under the direction of the Jesuit Fathers and Brothers.

NOTABLES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Archduke of Austria, Who May Be King of Poland.

Since the final partition of Poland in 1795 between Russia, Austria and Prussia that one time kingdom of central Europe has been a nation only in name. Long before that time however, it had begun to decline. In the partition Russia got her share of more than three-fourths of the original kingdom, which in the third quarter of the sixteenth century was the most powerful in central Europe, with an area of 250,000 square miles and a population of 85,000,000.

The archduke, a cousin of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, was born in Vienna on Sept. 21, 1890, the son of the Archduke Charles Ferdinand. He married Maria Theresa in 1918 in Vienna, and they have six children, the eldest son being Archduke Charles Albert, who is an artillery officer in the Austrian army.

Archduke Charles Stephen holds the rank of an admiral in the German navy and is honorary colonel of the Eighth regiment of infantry. He is a knight of the Order of the Golden Fleece and holds the Golden Cross of Honor of the Order of Maria. He is a knight of the Order of the Elephant and of the Order of the Black Eagle.

He was a locomotive fireman and an engineer on the Burlington railroad and then traveling salesman. As the originator of the pneumatic tool industry in the United States and Europe he made a fortune, and retiring from business, established a country home at Wheaton, Ill., and engaged in farming and stock breeding. When made a member of the commission he was president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, a machine company and a national bank.

Keep Your Clothing Tidy.

By advertising in this issue of the Catholic Journal, Marriott's French Dry Cleaning Works invites the patronage of the Catholic people and their families.

Marriott's Dye Works, which was established at 414 Genesee street in 1900, where the headquarters is at present, has been enlarged by operating a branch store at 35 Elm street—the latter place formerly known as the Parisian Dry Cleaning Works.

The Marriott process of cleaning and restoring garments to their original color without injuring the fabric is such that brings pleased patrons.

Goods are called for and delivered anywhere in the city without delivery charge.

Prices are extremely low, considering the high class work. Spruce up this "Fall" after consulting Marriott regarding your old clothing.—Adv.

Tough on the Joker.

The contractor who took about a plumber whose bills were always normal. "That" said the editor, rejecting it as not a joke, possibly a lie.

The contractor tried again with a story of the plumber whose charges left nothing to be desired on the score of size. "That," said the editor, who had suffered, "is not a lie. Neither is it a joke."—London Scraps.

Slow Delivery. Mrs. Gotham—Who spoke at the dinner tonight, dear? Mr. Gotham—Well, one of the speakers was the owner of that big department store.

No wonder you're late then. "Why?" "I happen to know his delivery is awfully slow."—Yonkers Statesman.

HONESTY.

If honesty is the best policy in business it is also the best policy when one has done wrong and is confronted with the question whether he shall confess everything frankly or make excuses. A transparent excuse is worse than none at all.

HURRICANE, THE TROTTING OSTRICH.
