M., on the day of the convention.

Bishop Conaty Dead.

San Diego, Cal., September 18. The Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, and former rector of the Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C., died today in a cottage at Coronado, where he had been for the last week. Bishop Conaty's health had steadily declined since his arrival at Coronado and his death was not unexpected.

May Apply.

Possibly the following from the Minneapolis Daily Journal may convey a subtle hint to the New York state faddists who would pamper and coddle the criminal, whether he be first offender or a habitual and hardened offender, but we have our doubts:

There is legitimate prison reform and there is such a thing as rational treatment of criminals, making for their welfare and moral betterment. But the prison should not be so comfortable for the prisoner that he is better off in it than out of it, as in France. Nor should the prison merge its function as a place of punishment in its function as a place of reform. After all the criminal goes to prison to be punished primarily and only to be reformed secondarily.

If a criminal is not to be punished, what is to be done to him? Is he to be pampered and petted and sentimentalized over, to enjoy a better living and much more consideration than the average respectable citizen who has to hustle? Is he to be appealed to as a gentleman, a man of honor, and by his sympathetic response to avoid the major or harsher portion of his punishment? Is explanation to be omitted because a man repents or seems to repent, because he promises never to murder or to steal again? Nevertheless is there not food for serious reflection in the editorial quoted?

Why Omit God.

Clifford Roe, president of the American Bureau of moral education, announced this new purity plan, speaking at the International Purity Congress in San Francisco last month: "Some insist the solution must be medical and psychopathic, others say that laws and police only are efficient in the matter, while still others put their whole faith in economic education and social hygiene. While all these are necessary and helpful, the supreme appeal must be greater than all these, it must be appeal to morality—moral education."

In the past our efforts have been largely centered upon the school teacher, the doctor, the lawyer and the minister. Our plan is to bring the facts before the great masses of the people—the farmer, the business man and the laborer. The message of purity, therefore, is not only preached today from the pulpit, but likewise from the Chautauquus and lecture platform and in club rooms and the auditoriums of great commerce associations.

One cannot resist asking this question: Have Mr. Roe and his ilk never heard of God?

How It Works Out.

"I'll never forget the favor you have done me," said the man who doesn't mind asking for what he wants. "Don't say that," replied the cold blooded person. "When a man keeps brooding over an obligation he's almost sure to get resentful instead of appreciative."

He Was.

"Jane, what time is it?" called down the late father. "I don't know, pa. The clock isn't going." "But I am," spoke up the young man who would take a hint—Detroit Free Press.

Paradoxical.

She—These functions are so unnatural, people pretending to be something that they really aren't. He—Well, that's natural—Puck.
