The Old Time Spirit of Thanksgiving

The old time spirit of Thanksgiving—"Ah, those were good old days!" This with reminiscent sadness, if there was not a lurking sentiment for the splendor of good fellowship, for the charm of simplicity and the peace that comes from the contented heart that marked the old time Thanksgiving, there would be no regret for the good old days that are gone.

A WORRIER

Thanksgiving Day Brought Her a Respite By DWIGHT NORWOOD "When the great war broke out in Europe my little girl, Fredrica, was in Munich studying art. I at once became uneasy about her, and when I heard of the great number of Americans detained in Europe I lost my head entirely. I wanted John to go abroad at once and bring our daughter home.

Where the Turkeys Come From

THE great bulk of the turkey crop of general consumption on the Atlantic seaboard is produced in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan and Iowa. The adjacent states of Missouri, Kansas, Tennessee, Arkansas and Minnesota also contribute shares, but to a smaller extent.

HELPING MOTHER WITH THE THANKSGIVING DINNER

The house was aglow in joyful anticipation of the coming guests—a true hospitality, not so elaborate as it was beautiful and not so luxurious as beautiful, but replete with rare kindness and grace. All within the feast was over and the long afternoon of sport and games was spent and the shadows of evening closed round the great assembly.

Week after week passed, and we heard nothing from our chick. Worrying told on me bodily, and I was reduced to skin and bone. At last I told John that if he did not do something to end my suspense he would lose me as well as Fredrica. He went out at once to learn if he could get across the ocean, and finding that a ship would sail next day, he took passage on her and, procuring by loan what money he would need, bade me goodby.

When, true enough, I took up a newspaper and saw that this had really happened, I was in despair. It was all I could bear to think of my only child detained without means in Germany, and now I had the additional worryment of her father carried about on the ocean with no prospect of being landed anywhere, for he might be captured by a German cruiser, and they were raving the gunnet of the enemy's warships and often did not put into port for months at a time.

The Little Tip or point that often appears on the inwardly folded margin of the human ear near the top has received the name of "Wooler's tip," from the sculptor Woolner, who first reproduced it in his bust of Darwin. Other sculptors, though they must have known the tip, never reproduced it. Darwin held that this tip was a remnant of a "beak" left by the coiling up of the ear and hence a proof of man's descent from lower animals.—New York World

The Last Word. "Bix—What nonsense to say that one can't get the last word with a woman. I found it easy enough today. Bix—You don't say? How did it happen? Bix—Why, I said to a woman in the car, 'Madam, have my seat.'—Boston Transcript

The Flag Pledge. "The pledge to the flag, as taken by the children of the public schools, runs as follows: 'I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the country for which it stands; one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.'—New York American

The Surprising Part. "I was surprised to learn that Bonehead had lost his mind." "What was there surprising about it?" "Why, that his friends found it out. That's what surprises me."—Houston Post

The Largest Painting. "Paradise" by Titoreto, is the largest painting in the world. It is eighty-four feet wide, thirty-three and one-half feet high and is now in the doghouse, Venice.

The Night After Thanksgiving. "Twas the night of Thanksgiving, when all through the fat Not a creature was stirring, not even the cat. And John lay sleeping upon his small cot. He might have been dreamless, but then he was not. He saw in his vision a table piled high with sauces and dressing and pudding and pie. And there in the center, upon a long plate, He saw himself lying in elegant state. He was browned to a turn and was stuffed for a king. With his legs in the air, while each arm was a wing. And he tried to turn over and dash from the place. But he couldn't move muscle, much less win a race. And a dozen big gobblers sat there in a ring. And they pecked at his legs and they dug at his wings. He tried to call "father" and "mother," but vain. While they still kept their pecking and causing him pain. At last, with an effort, he made a big splash. And off from the table he went with a crash. And when he awakened his parents both said, "Good Lord, John Augustus, can't you stay in your bed?"—Joe Cone in, Boston Herald

Talk of minimum salaries for ministers is peculiar. They are already as minimum as they can be. A wise man thinks before he speaks, but a fool speaks and then thinks of what he has been saying. People profit more by experience in speculations in which they make than in those in which they lose. Many a man has just missed being great—but the fact never has been chiselled on any one's tombstone. Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.
