"Peaceful Valley" a three-act comedy drama as played over 5,000 times in the foremost theaters of this country by Sol Smith Russell, was presented with great success by the St. Boniface Foot-light Club on Monday and Tuesday evenings at our parish hall, under the direction of Edward F. Hettig.

The play abounds in wit and humor mingled with the pathos and hardships which tend to bring out the finer points of acting of deep emotion. Each player produced their lines in true fashion, the cast being well balanced and adopted for their assigned parts. Special mention must be made of the newly painted scenery by the brush of Louis Binnert. The "Aytrop House" a lodging place in the White Mountains, with its beautiful and natural surroundings, was true in every detail. The stage direction was capably handled by Eugene Grievet, and the property man appointed to handle the important details was Frank Eberwein. A three-piece orchestra furnished incidental music. Those in the cast were as follows: George Gansler, Frank Eberwein, Joseph Volzner, William Munding, William Kreckel, Carl Schoenherr, George Klose, Mae Weider, Catherine Kreckel, Ruth Weider and Agnes Jaeger.

A Little Chat on the Bell Telephone Directory

There is one man in Rochester whom telephone operators universally dislike. He's the man who so prides himself on his memory that he seldom uses the Telephone Directory for anything but a paper weight. He will call for "Main 456" with all the assurance of a tradesman calling stations, when he really wants "Main 546." Then he'll blame the operator, the telephone company and the weather, when he finds that the subscriber he really called for is not the one he wanted to talk with.

The memory has a way of playing queer pranks with numbers sometimes. Besides, telephone numbers are frequently changed. So it's a pretty good rule to consult the Telephone Directory before making a call. It takes only a few seconds and often may prevent needless annoyance, both to yourself and to the person called by mistake. Why not make it a rule to consult the Directory on every call you make?

Next week we are going to tell you about "the best informed girl in Rochester."
