Honor To The Chief!

Chief of Police Joseph M. Quigley deserves and should receive the commendation of all decent, self-respecting citizens...

Whatever may be the demerits or merits of the original play, produced on the theatrical stage, this much may be said: the price charged for admission to the regular theaters was sufficiently high to prevent indiscriminate attendance...

No moral lesson was intended by the producers. All they were after was the shekels of the curious. They cared not one whit for the wrong that might be done...

Because the health officer of Buffalo passed the films was no reason why they should be put on a moving picture house in Rochester...

The time has long since passed when intelligent people can be influenced by the cry that the liberties of this country are threatened by any religious body...

Take It Easy!

Automobilists who are safe and sane drivers should not permit themselves to be led into the position of condoning the reckless and lawless motorists in their demands that the Legislature let down the bars in regard to speed limits and reckless driving.

To be sure, all motorists should resist the outrageous way in which many local authorities try to trap really law-abiding motorists...

to break down all regulations as it appears from some injudicious expressions by those who are to frame the laws of 1916 for certain organizations of automobilists.

The Legislature.

Within a very few days the New York State Legislature will convene for the 1916 session. In all probability, many of the propositions contained in the proposed new Constitution which was rejected by the people in the November election by a tremendous majority will be submitted to the incoming Legislature in the form of proposed changes in present statute laws...

In view of the direct and indirect onslaughts made in the Constitutional convention upon personal and religious liberties, it would be well if we paid close attention to proposed legislation during 1916. Let every bill introduced be scrutinized carefully and sharp attention be paid to the progress of all proposed statutes.

While it is unlikely that the Legislature of 1916 will do anything of a flagrant nature, if it is informed, nevertheless clever tricksters might slip in the statutes laws of a mischievous character if a close watch is not kept on all the doings of the Legislature of 1916.

Two Brands.

Down in Jacksonville on Columbus Day, a bigoted editor undertook to belittle the Catholic Church before a small audience while in a nearby hall Catholic and non-Catholic's assembled to listen to real patriotic addresses.

In Jacksonville there is a non-partisan paper called "Dixie" which administered a stinging rebuke to the bigot. Commenting upon this the Miami Herald says:

It is to be regretted that there is an editor in Florida who would spend his time in sowing discord in this country, especially at a time when peace and unity are most desirable.

The time has long since passed when intelligent people can be influenced by the cry that the liberties of this country are threatened by any religious body. For considerably more than one hundred years, and beyond that, for that matter, the different religious bodies of this country have given their undivided allegiance to our democratic government.

Dixie used its trenchant pen in just the right way to put an end to this budding intolerance.

Judging from the publicity stories sent out from the Rochester office of the Employment Bureau of the State Industrial Commission, unemployment in these parts must be on the decrease.

We beg to repeat:—It is not too late to present your friend with a subscription to the Catholic Journal for 1916.

No:—We did not and do not agree with the genial secretary of the Chamber of Commerce that Christmas candles should be suppressed. There is one season in the year when purely utilitarian ideas must give place to sentiment. We are a trifle too much commercialized, in every walk of life. For pity's sake let us forget commercialization for thirty minutes at least, once in the year.

If you did not shop early, just include that in the "good resolutions" of 1916. Perhaps, you might keep it, too.

Another proof that we are up on a new year:—The Rochester News Writers' Club is beginning preparations for its Roastfest of 1916.

Calendars, blotters, memorandum books, and all the other paraphernalia incident upon the new year have made their appearance.

It is still a matter of wonder if the President does not wish he had not been so hasty in his decision to recognize Carranza in Mexico.

They do say the cheap magazines have felt the effect of the European war rather more than the munition manufacturers.

In the death of Miss Lura Aldridge the community loses a noble woman, whose life was spent in extending a helping hand to her fellows, in all walks of life. Her services on the State Industrial School board were of a kind that endeared her to both inmates, their parents and the entire community.

Good reading matter is a fine adjunct to any home. This is especially true of Catholic homes. We, above all people, should see to it that the reading we do and place in the hands of our children is clean and wholesome.
