WHAT WILL THE NEW YEAR BRING?

NEW YEAR! New year! Little spirit of the new year! At my portal waiting near, so near. My trembling heart says if I speak that you will hear, will hear.

New year, new year, what will you bring to me?

Joy or rainbow pinions wing to me. Love, with voices sweet, to sing to me.

New year, new year, I beseech you, Let my tender longing reach you!

New year, I fear not your morrow-day

Sweetest joys may still strow sor-

In December I shall borrow May

New year, smiling I shall meet you

New year, welcoming I greet you!

New year, new year, you and God

Hear my heart thus speak in humble

Grant me deeper life for living,

Give me greater love for giving.

Mary Gow Wainworth.

A GREETING TO NEW YEAR.

We Can Live It but Once, So Let Us Spend It Worthily.

We are on the "threshold" of a new year. We do not know what the year holds for us, but we are not afraid of it

We have learned to look for kindness and goodness in all our paths, and so we go forward with glad hope and expectation.

It is always a serious thing to live.

We can pass through any year but once. If we have lived negligently we cannot return to amend what we have slurred over. We cannot correct mistakes, fill up blank spaces, erase lines we may be ashamed of, cut out pages unworthily filled. The irrevocableness of life ought alone to be motive enough for incessant watchfulness and diligence. Not a word we write can be changed. Nothing we do can be canceled.

Another element of seriousness in living is the influence of our life on other lives. We do not pass through the year alone. We are tied up with others in our homes, our friendships, our companionships, our associations, our occupations. We are always touching others and leaving impressions on them. Human lives are like the photographer's sensitized plates, receiving upon them the image of whatever passes before them. Our careless words drop, and we think not where they fall but the lightest of them lodges in some heart and leaves its blessing or its blight. All our acts, dispositions and moods do something in the shaping and coloring of other lives.

It is said that every word whispered into the air starts vibrations which will quiver on and on forever. The same is true also of influences which go out from our lives in the common est days—they will go on forever.

This should make us most careful what we do, what we say and what quality of life we give to the world.

It would be sad, indeed, if we should set going unholy or hurtful influences.

If we should touch even one life unwholesomely, if we should speak even a word which starts a soul toward death.—E.

"Dipping" on New Year's.

In the midland counties of England the "Sortes Sanctorum" obtained great credit on New Year's in the olden time.

A Bible is obtained at random and the finger of a blindfolded person placed upon the page. The text so pointed out refers to events which will happen during the year. This is called "dipping."

An old lady once "dipped" into the book of Job and avowed she had trouble to the 31st of December following.

If the "dipping" is not done before 12 o'clock noon the charm will have no efficacy.

Two New Year's Days.

Lord Dundas, being wished a happy new year, replied, "It had need be happier than the last, for I never knew one happier day in it." Witherforce said:

"The last year has been the happiest of my life." Romaine's New Year's wish for his people was, "God grant that this may be a year famous for believing."
