3 IN ONE OILS
CLEANS, POLISHES, PREVENTS RUST

3 IN ONE

3-in-One is a light, pure oil compound that never gums. 3-in-One lubricates perfectly sewing machines, typewriters, bicycles, locks, clocks, guns, lawnmowers—everything that ever needs oiling in your home or office. No grease. No acid. A little 3-in-One on a soft cloth cleans and polishes perfectly all varnished furniture and woodwork. Sprinkled on a yard of black chess cloth it makes an ideal Dusters Duster Cloth. 3-in-One absolutely prevents rust on gun barrels, auto fixtures, bath room fixtures, gas ranges, everything metal, indoors or out, in any climate. It sinks into the unseen metal pores and forms a protecting "overcoat" which stays on.

Free—3-in-One—Free. Write today for generous free bottles and the 3-in-One Dictionary of hundreds of uses.

3-in-One is sold in all good stores in 3-size bottles: 10c (1 oz.), 25c (3 oz.), 50c (8 oz., 1/2 pint). Also in new patented Handy Oil Can, 25c (3 1/2 oz.).

The Lure of Far Lands.
With a reasonable capital, youth, strength, character and knowledge of the language, fortune can be made relatively easier on the frontier of civilization than at home. There are, however, many privations to be borne. You are away from friends. Mails at best come once a week. News is scarce. Daily papers exist only in metropolitan towns, and the data they contain are meager. In many localities fresh vegetables cannot be had. Drinking water is positively dangerous. Flies, bugs, mosquitoes and a host of winged, stinging insects are present to annoy during day and night. Most hotels are bad and the food strange, unpalatable and poorly cooked.

For women but few real opportunities exist. I know of but two women lawyers in Latin America, and there are perhaps the same number of doctors and dentists. Relatively small proportions of the fair sex follow commercial callings. In the far east and Africa, the system of "purdah" and the general belief that woman is inferior to man, have retarded her progress.—W. E. Aughinbaugh in Leslie's.

Ways of the Mole.
No animal is more wonderfully adapted to its kind of life than is the mole. Mole-skin is famous for its exquisite smoothness and softness. The mole's eye cannot bear comparison with it. This is evidently a provision of nature for enabling the little animal to pass rapidly through its narrow underground galleries without impediment or friction, going backward or forward with equal ease. It fits its burrow like a piston and pushes itself swiftly with hind feet. The burrows and nests, too, are lined with fine, soft vegetable fibers.—New York Journal.

Modeled After an Ancient Tomb.
The temple of the Scottish rite in Washington is a handsome white marble structure about 150 feet square and rises to a height of 150 feet above the street level. At either side of the main entrance is an immense marble sphinx. A row of tall Ionic columns surrounds the second story. The architects followed closely the design of the ancient tomb of King Mausolus, which stood in Halicarnassus and was one of the seven wonders of the world. It was built by the wife of the king and was decorated with hundreds of wonderful statues. This old tomb became so famous that many buildings were modeled after it, but this is the only structure in America in which the design has been used.

Conventions of Truth.
Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out; it is always near at hand and sits upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware, whereas a lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good. The crafty man is always in danger, and when he thinks he walks in the dark, all his pretenses are so transparent that he that runs may read them. He is the last man that finds himself to be found out, and while he takes it for granted that he makes fools of others, he makes himself ridiculous.—John W. Tolson.

Keep in the Sunshine.
There are only two kinds of people in the world—the people who live in the shadow and gloom and those who live on the sunny side of the street. These shadowed ones are sometimes called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament; sometimes they are called disagreeable people. But, wherever they go, their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel on before them. These people never bear their own burden, but expose all their wounds to others. They are all so busy looking down for pitfalls and sharp stones and thorns on which to step that they do not even know that there are any stars in the sky. These folks live on the wrong side of the street. And yet it is only twenty feet across to the other sidewalk, where sunshine always lies.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Making it Last.
Mistress (to chauffeur, who is crawling downhill)—Why are you driving so slowly?
Chauffeur—Well, ma'am, you told me to be as economical as possible, so I was putting the brake on to make the downhill last as long as possible.—London Punch.

In Biology.
Teacher—John, how can you tell the dogwood tree?
JOHN—By its bark.
And his answer was correct, even if it did cause a laugh.
Another bright answer captured in biology:
Teacher—What animal supplies us with ham?
JOHN—The butcher.—Chicago Herald.

Good Advice.
William—I must speak, but I'm so flustered! James Bill, collect yourself.
Baltimore American.

Cruel.
Ho—Men are descended from monkeys. She—Some haven't descended.—Judge.

Divorce in Ancient Rome.
In the earlier period of the Roman republic divorces were quite unknown and were rare right up to the time of the Sullan wars. In the old days the husband and wife who wished to separate appeared for the last time before the common hearth, a priest and priestess being present. As on the day of marriage, a cake of wheat flour was presented to the husband and wife, but instead of sharing it between them they rejected it. Then instead of prayers they pronounced formulas of a strange, severe, spiteful character, by which the wife renounced the worship and gods of the husband. From that moment the religious bond was broken, and the community of worship having ceased to exist, the marriage without further ado was forever dissolved.—Exchange.

The Dulling Touch of Age.
You can never tell. Perhaps the man who says the most fool things now used to set off something bright and sensible when he was a babe.—Hulton Post.

In youth we learn, in age we understand. To grow old is to receive sight.—Von Ebner Eschenbach.

A critic in the Berlin National Zeitung says that American men are mere "money grabbers." That explains, of course, why they are so enthusiastically welcomed in European tourist centers.

Emigration, declares a British writer, is "making a desert of England." This appears to be sagaciously unfair to the "wild women" whose strenuous activities in that direction are entitled to mention, at the least.

Banner Carried by Cortes.
In the national museum in Mexico City there is a very interesting relic of the Spanish conquest of this country known as the banner of the conquest. It is said to be the original standard carried by Cortes in his wars of conquest in the land of the Aztecs.

A Festival of Flowers.
At Genzano, Italy, near Rome, during the festival of flowers one of the streets is carpeted with genuine flowers in elaborate designs. The work and designing are done by the people who live on the street. This festival dates back to 1778.
