MEMORIAL DAY

So still they sleep,
Beneath the verdure deep,
On hill, on vale, by brook and lonely farm!
A scattered army they
Until the day
The bugles of the angels sound alarm
And they awake for the last reveille.
By ford and sea,
On grassy mounds, abounds
A host of fluttering flags that mark
The soldier's grave.
How brave their colors bright
But who can tell
How each stern hero fell?
On sea, on land,
We understand they died,
But of their dying agony
We may not know or see
In what heroic way they breathed their last.
How sped their choking breath
When Death
Folded his arms about.

Their dying eyes gazed on the foe,
And, lo,
They slept,
Unknowing that the day was won or lost,
Amid the fray they fell,
And Israel
Wept at the sight
And gave them night and rest.
They dwell in silent camps,
The damps
And dews weep o'er their mound,
With us they live
And give
Joy at their victory,
We grieve, but honor;
Weep, but praise,
And raise
A shaft in memory eternal
For a nation's sons
Who by their guns
Fought and in fighting died.
They died to save,
And but their grave
Is left to us, the living,
We who bow
And place a chaplet on each brow.
—Kest Packard in Philadelphia Ledger.

CIVIL WAR FIGURES.
In the course of the civil war in round numbers 2,000,000 men enlisted on the Union side and about 1,000,000 on the Confederate. The total number of deaths in the northern armies was 200,000. 100,000 men were killed on either or mortally wounded in battle. Of those killed on the field of battle the total was 75,000. It is not known how many Confederates gave up their lives, but it is believed to range between 250,000 and 300,000 from all causes, of whom 200,000 lost their lives as a direct result of battle. The cost of the war to the United States government, not including pensions, was $3,250,000,000. The Confederate government spending perhaps $1,500,000,000 less than half. The total number of soldiers surrendered by the different Confederate commanders in the closing campaign was 175,000. In addition the north had taken 90,000 other prisoners in the course of the previous years, of whom one third were exchanged and two thirds released.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT
Ed Pfeffer, Brooklyn's Great Pitcher.

Ed Pfeffer, sometimes nicknamed "Lefty," is considered by many fans the best right hand pitcher of the Brooklyn baseball club even better than Wheeler Bell. So far this year he has pitched only four ball, but he is a hotheaded pitcher and has not reached his best form. Pfeffer joined the Brooklyn club in 1911 and immediately attracted attention. At the beginning of the 1914 season he did not make much of a show, but toward the end of the season won many of the games that kept Brooklyn a pennant contender almost to the end of the race. He is a brother of Frank Pfeffer who helped with several pennants and a couple of world championships for the Yankees.

Harness Racing's Half Century
Light harness racing, as now conducted, celebrated the season the close of its first half century. It was in 1860 in Buffalo that the first meeting was held. The originator and executor of the scheme in that well known town was E. T. Bedford, General R. L. Howard, C. J. Webb, W. G. Fargo, J. Hamlin, Lewis Richmond and M. P. Bush. They did things on a big scale, having prizes ranging $12,500 a day sum for the full and experimental race meet and thereby luring to Buffalo the cream of the dog and mule and gallop stars. In that meeting in Buffalo the first race resulted in a victory for Dexter, which defeated George N. Paterson Jr. and Tom Goldust in straight heats, times 1:27, 1:23 and 1:25. This was amazing and the horseman talked of the feat constantly until the last day of the racing, when Dexter, in a special event under saddle, did the three heats in 2:27, 2:26 and 2:18. That four heat was the source of wonder throughout the land.

Jack Monkley a Great Trainer.
Despite efforts that have been made to belittle the ability of the "only" Jack Monkley Cornell's track trainer, he stands out above any other college trainer in the country from the viewpoint of success with his men. Monkley has shown for more than a decade that he knows an athlete and better still, knows how to bring out his best ability. He has trained some of the world's greatest athletes and has developed more winning track teams in the inter-collegiate championships than any other college trainer in the United States. Monkley taught John Paul Jones many of the finer points of endurance path competition, despite some opinions to the contrary. He did not make Jones to be sure, because Jones was born a wonderful runner, but he certainly kept the former world's record holder for the mile in shape to retain his superiority while he was in competition.

Seek Gold Challenge Cup.
Albert I. Hudson, president of the American Power Boat association, recently announced that instead of allowing the gold challenge cup of the association to remain in the custody of the Detroit Yacht club, an eastern yacht club will challenge for the trophy this summer with a new hydroplane. The new challenger is now in progress of construction and will be novel in design. Her builders believe she will be a genuine surprise to those interested in the construction and sailing of these high powered boats of extreme speed. Construction is to be of aluminum, which have already been proved successful and the men who are building it are confident that she will beat the Detroit Miss Detroit or any of the other which have as yet been shown.

Willard May Meet Fulton.
Fred Lutes, the Minnesota giant may get a run at the heavyweight championship next July 4. Tom Jones, champion of Jess Willard, has made an offer to Fulton to meet Willard. Willard is now with a circus touring the west but it is believed he has a contract which will permit his withdrawal whenever he is called upon to defend his title.

McPherson was Beloved by His Men and Idolized by His Officers.
Among the men whose names are cherished by Union veterans and who are recalled to mind in loving remembrance every Memorial day few stand higher than General James B. McPherson who was killed near Atlanta in 1864. Some years ago the late General Andrew H. Koopner of Cincinnati gave some interesting reminiscences of General McPherson. He said: "I was chief engineer of McPherson's corps at Vicksburg and saw much of both McPherson and Grant during the siege. I have seen many armies of men, but never one like McPherson. There never was anybody like him. Young handsome and full of enthusiasm he was the idol of his soldiers. I never saw anything like it at his headquarters. He seemed a brother or a simple, good natured to his officers. He was one of ourselves. I cannot describe to you the feeling we had for him. It was something more than the strongest friendship between man and man. The general passed a moment and dropped his head. Memory was busy.

"GENERAL McPHERSON CALLED ME."

weaving in his brain the images of many years ago. Looking up presently, he spoke again: "One thing happened that I shall always be sorry for. It is the only thing in the years I knew General McPherson that I have to regret. I had been out all day hard at work in the line of my duties. I came in late to headquarters and felt as though I was too tired to move. "I thought I would go to bed early. I did so drawing my blankets up around me. But I had no more than touched the ground and got quiet when General McPherson called the "Oh, Heck!" "Now, I heard him, and I'm ashamed to remember it, but for the only time in my life I didn't answer. I lay quite still. There were others about the quarters, who had been doing nothing that day. Let the general call one of them. I thought to myself: "Petering, I did not answer, General Strong spoke up for me and said: "He has been out all day and is just as I suppose he's asleep. "Oh, yes, said General McPherson, "I suppose he is. He must be tired poor fellow. I didn't think of that." "The general called some other officer and sent him on the errand. And I lay still, and McPherson never knew but I was asleep. But I was ashamed of it next day, and I have been so ever since. I might have answered him, might have gone out in the night again, tired as I was. McPherson was killed not long after that, and I shall always carry with me the regretful recollection that once he called me and I did not answer."
