The treasurer of the federation is to be named by the new board of directors. One of the new policies adopted by the federation is that indicated by President Wilson in his suggested plan for a bureau of employment for women.

FOR POTPOURRI.

How to Make a Rose Jar to Last All Next Winter.

Rose potpourri is undoubtedly the favorite though it is not by any means the sweetest or only kind. To make it is simple. Collect together as many rose petals as possible, those of old-fashioned roses for preference, and be sure they are free from blight or disease.

The following potpourri, one of the most delightful possible, is easier still to make since all kinds of scented flowers can be used in it. Violets, roses, thyme, lemon, verbena, cowslips, lilacs, lilac lavender, etc.

The Thrill of Being Wet. There is something medicinal and fundamental about having water splashed down upon one and getting completely drenched. It is a great relief when a child never enjoyed anything so much as your first drenching in the ocean, and an absolute necessity when the thrill of being wet is the only thing that keeps your nose into your sleeves and down your back.

ABOUT SWEATERS.

The Popular and Picturesque Sport Garment Up to Date.

Many women like the two-tone or fiber silk sweaters. They are less glaring when in high colors and they seem to blend more colorfully into the tone of the skirt. There are models also, of pure silk which have wide borders of tartan plaid.

White and blue effects remain highly popular. There are a certain refinement and stability about this combination that give it a permanent place in the wardrobe. Sweaters of the sweaters are of white, whose knitted surface is superimposed on one of black and which has a border of gold.

Sweaters of pure silk are practically worth their weight in gold—or at least in silver. For those who cannot afford the possession of such there are sweaters of silk fiber that wear very well and which may or may not stand the intense rays of the summer sun.

JUST THINGS.

Remember These Notes and Housework Will Become More Intelligent. The secret of a good stew is to be made in a large pot. One egg will beater is worth two not well beaten.

Water boils when it gallops, far when it stags. Puttings on to be with suit should be still mixed. When hot lips is used be sparing with the salt.

White For Summer. Almost every summer white prevails as the most popular summer color. This year, like all others, is to be a white one. There will be frocks of white tulle, white organdie, white yoke and white in every other fashionable fabric.

DOGS AND SQUIRRELS.

Laddie and Brownie are adventurous collie dogs. They live in the Kansas city of Kansas City, and their play yard is a grove of trees. Every morning they fare forth to this miniature forest, and were betide the squirrel that loitered too long upon the ground.

One day the dogs frightened a squirrel that had just found a nut. With the nut in his mouth Chatterer rushed up a tree and clung to one of the lower branches. Laddie and Brownie stood beneath and barked. In his rage Chatterer opened his mouth to hurl invectives at the dogs and the nut fell out of his mouth.

It landed right on top of Laddie's head. In the display of temper that followed Laddie seized the nut between his teeth, crunched his jaws down and cracked it.

Presently, when the dogs were barking up another tree, Chatterer descended and ate the "gooey" from the nut Laddie had so obligingly cracked.

So that's the game they play. The squirrels often drop nuts and the dogs in furious rage crush the hard shells with their teeth. Both seem to enjoy it, and it saves the squirrels a lot of work.

A Fern That Walks.

The walking fern is a native of the United States. It is found in certain localities of the eastern states and westward to Kansas, usually growing on moss covered rocks, or near the bases of cliffs.

When unexpected guests arrive the hostess naturally wishes to entertain them and to get her share of pleasure from the visit. But that matter of "what to eat" makes her ill at ease.

On the emergency shelf there should be canned fish, mutton, chicken and fruits, a jar of sweet homemade cookies, packages of plain crackers, a jar of pickles, beef extract and canned soups.
