A Priest's Plan.

According to a press despatch from Joliet, a Catholic priest has formulated a real practical plan to aid convicts who have served their terms and have been sent out into the world. This despatch says that the State of Illinois has accepted the plans made by the Rev. Peter A. Crumbley, O.F.M., for the amelioration of conditions for discharged convicts of the State prison. Much interest is taken in the venture, for upon its success may depend similar action throughout the country.

Father Peter, through his duties as chaplain of the Joliet penitentiary, discovered that the average convict returned sooner or later to the State prison for criminal acts. Upon exhaustive research he found that in most cases this situation ensued because the discharged convict received no encouragement; on the contrary he became an outcast and no one cared for his future. The State empowered Father Peter to visit prisons throughout the country, investigate conditions and report on his findings.

This resulted in the acceptance of his suggestion that a home be established whereby the ex-convicts might be housed, educated and placed in positions, remaining under the guidance of the priest, who after surveillance of a year or two could issue a recommendation for those meriting it, and thus be better able to secure future success. In many places during his tour of investigation Father Peter delivered lectures, his discourse on "The Human Side of Prison Life" at the Catholic University of America especially attracting widespread attention.

"Vinegar Tom"

It has remained for Rev. Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, pastor of Mulberry Methodist Church in Macon, Ga., to criticize "Tom" Watson more mercilessly than any Catholic publication we have seen has ventured to go. Speaking before 800 men in the Capitol Theater in Macon, Dr. Ainsworth said: "Some men's thoughts and speech make them veritable forerunners of infection, blasting with the leaders of the Y. M. C. A. and at present an American. In my judgment, the Hon. Thomas E. Watson, endowed by God with as brilliant a mind as any Georgian in this generation, has become so embittered that all the juices of his soul have better distributed throughout the square miles of territory. Heings and leadership constitute opines that there are too many in the Protestant Church, Georgia today. In this the Doctor is eminently right as any at all is too many. As pretty soon you will have to a solution to his difficulty the Doctor suggests that the different sections of each city should be assigned to the different denominations. When one agency is situated at the border will be envious of a field with reasonable prospect of success other agencies should let it go its work and out the waste that competition would entail. The Doctor believes how it is done in heaven and on earth. The Congregationalists have Turkey and no other church interferes with their work. Secretary Lansing should be in that benighted country. The Doctor suggests that such a system be established at home and in that way each church would have a certain district in which it might perform its work unhampered by jealousy or competition.

The Rochester soldier boys still at the border will be envious of their fellows who are home for Christmas. Governor Whitman evidently believes that one good inaugural address deserves another. The anti Saloon League plans a busy winter.

It is to be hoped that the "drive" to clear off the remaining mortgage upon St. Elizabeth's Guild House was a complete success.

Have you made your 1917 resolutions yet?

Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago now exacts a total abstinence pledge for five years from every priest he ordains.

William Jennings Bryan, so he tells the New York Rotary club, has renounced economics for moral issues.

Four of the daughters of Thomas Shannon, of Chicago, have entered the convent of the Sisters of Charity at Dubuque, Iowa.

General orders issued by Mayor Meals are to the effect that Harrisburg, Pa., policemen must not chew tobacco or swear while on duty. How about drinking and smoking on duty?

On December 8th the Oblate Fathers celebrated the centenary of their foundation. Bishop Fallon, of London, Ont., is an Oblate.

It is stated that in New York City on every Sunday and Holy-day Catholics services are held in nineteen languages.

Branch 87, C. M. B. A., has elected Charles P. Mead, jr., as its president for 1917. Mr. Mead's father served several terms as president of 87, before he was elected Grand President of the New York State Council of the C. M. B. A.

Traffic Laws.

There is no doubt that there must be a fair measure of "give and take" if the conflict between the public and motorists over what are reasonable traffic laws and regulations is to be settled with the result to be hoped for, namely, safety for the general public. There is merit in the contention of motorists in general that they are a law abiding class and that the offenders against the speed limit and violators of traffic laws are the exception and that the motorists would like to see these offenders punished even to the extent of being sent to jail. On the other hand, the motorists contended with good reason that in rural communities motorists are looked upon as fair prey and as the ones who should help in a liberal way to pay the local taxes. It is alleged that rural constables arrest and rural justices of the peace fine motorists who have not exceeded the speed limits and have not broken the traffic rule, in any way. It is figured that these persons would prefer to pay up rather than be delayed by trial and legal court proceedings. In other words, "this" practice is really a species of legalized blackmail.

It is also contended that pedestrians often disobey the traffic laws but that arrests of these are seldom if ever made, while the motorist is held to the strict letter of the law. Parents, too, are careless in that they permit their children to play in the streets and often dart out in the path of an approaching automobile the driver of which has no chance to turn out or stop. If a serious accident happens, it is the motorist who is censured or penalized. It must be remembered that motorists and pedestrians each have rights which the other is bound to respect. When this is learned and respected, we shall not have so much disputation over our traffic laws.

Chasing an ideal and a dollar are not compatible but if the two did travel together how popular would the chase become!
