Art of Salesmanship.

Why [illegible] No. You [illegible] make money [illegible] that is all you do. The [illegible] son for every customer [illegible] is to give satisfaction [illegible] money, that money [illegible] Every customer is a good friend or a poor customer with his friendship and his purse will open itself. An authority on selling declares you need not expect to make a sale while you have the money thought in your mind. You can always sell to the man who knows you will serve him, and you should not sell to any other man. Recently the head of a great insurance company died. His daughter, hardly more than a girl, with no business experience, took his place and the foolish wiseacres chortled gleefully. The girl not only held the business together; she [illegible] the first year. She [illegible] rule of success. I always try to benefit the customer without regard to my fee." [illegible] your profit [illegible] company [illegible] to her? [illegible] customer [illegible] and [illegible] self-help [illegible] manship.

Stretch When You Wake

Most of us [illegible] morning, have a bath [illegible] and, having breakfasted, wonder why we are feeling tired and depressed.

The reason lies in the fact that we do not know how to wake up. We have omitted the morning stretch which helps to circulate the blood and stimulates the action of the heart.

Animals stretch and yawn and go through exercises when they wake, and so should man.

By yawning we stretch the lungs and this shows that the body is in need of oxygen.

When you get up imitate the animal—stretch, yawn, do a few exercises, have a bath and brisk rubdown and try and cultivate a pleasant state of mind, and you may be sure you will not experience that feeling of heaviness and depression at the start of the day.

Courtesy In Business

A little [illegible] neatly printed [illegible] wrapping paper [illegible] It uses modest [illegible] words and carefully phrased and declamatory [illegible] It appears under the heading [illegible] and reads:

"We take pleasure in thanking you for your patronage. We believe the goods bought of us today will give you entire satisfaction and that you will come to us again when you need anything in our line. However if for any reason you are not perfectly satisfied with your purchase we ask as a favor that you report to us at once and we assure you that we will gladly adjust the matter to your satisfaction. We want you to make this store your store, and if you trade here we shall make it our business to see that whatever you buy is entirely satisfactory."

The fellow who claims that business is a cold blooded proposition isn't going to succeed in business. The human element [illegible] you" is [illegible] fancy that [illegible] vised the [illegible] ers has done [illegible] thing. If only [illegible] promise by [illegible] son to be [illegible]

Friendship.

The disputatious person never makes a good friend. In friendship men look for peace and concord and some measure of content. There are enough battles to fight outside, enough jarring and jostling in the street, enough discord in the workaday world without having to look for contention in the realm of the inner life also. There, if anywhere, we ask for an end of strife. Friendship is the sanctuary of the heart, and the peace of the sanctuary should brood over it.—Hugh Black.

Self Control.

If, taxed by obnoxious affairs, you feel like giving away to anger or revolt, then hasten to get away from your own self and do not yield to impressions that are liable to rob you of your self possession. The more we exercise our will in maintaining our mental equipoise the easier this control becomes for us.—Marcus Aurelius.

GROWTH OF THE BODY.

It Comes In Alternate Periods of Fulness and Stretching.

[illegible]

[illegible] Dr. Stratz [illegible] this growth [illegible] first [illegible] best [illegible] and boys.

His opinion is as follows: Period of [illegible] fulness, two to four years; period of [illegible] stretching, five to six years; period of retarded growth, boys eight to twelve years, girls eight to ten years; period of second stretching, boys thirteen to eighteen years, girls eleven to fifteen years; periods of retarded growth, boys fourteen to twenty-six years, girls sixteen to nineteen years; period of standing still and of the second fullness, twenty-six to twenty-nine to fifty-one years; period of decline, fifty-two to seventy-six years.

Among other interesting features of this growth it is noted that the changes are [illegible] and that the results of a year's [illegible] depend upon the season.

A Lament From Japan.

The opening of Japan has brought many new trades but it has driven others out of existence. One handicraft which is making a long but a losing fight is that of making fude or writing brushes. It might have been expected to increase, seeing that education is ten times as prevalent as in the old days, but the steel pen and the lead pencil are formidable competitors and, with their vulgar efficiency, are gradually making the use of fude obsolete. In the primary schools young [illegible] is taught to wield the brush. [illegible] in the middle schools they care [illegible] for the elegance of the characters [illegible] of writing and the models [illegible] Japan Weekly Mail.

Commodores In Our Navy.

[illegible] of some [illegible] in the United States navy who had commanded a squadron, but no actual rank higher than that of captain existed. In July, 1862 the first captains to hold a higher office were commissioned as commodores. In 1882 the number of commodores on the active list was reduced from twenty-five to ten, and in 1899 the grade was abolished, and the ten commodores on the list promoted to the rank of rear admiral, the numbers in that grade being increased from six to thirteen.

Something Wrong.

There was a story in Parliament on [illegible] which [illegible] of fact. [illegible] Mrs. Partington [illegible] a big borough [illegible] car fare [illegible] by riders. I was between Seven and Charybdis."

"Hold on," interrupted the interested listener. "You told me just now you were on the road between Perkinsville and Jackson's Gap when this accident happened."—Spokane Review.

The Greatest of These.

Pride, Truth and Ambition once met upon the Highway of Life and as often is the case, when Immortals come together, dissention arose in the form of a heated discussion as to which of the three were of greatest benefit to Man. The argument, at last, assumed such proportions, and so remote was the possibility of their reaching an amaciable agreement, that they decided to take the matter before the great Juror, Common Sense, and let him decide the issue. And the following took place:

Pride: Without me, Man's chance for ascendency to Fame would be small indeed. For I am the incentive and the driving power behind the Party or Implement ever onward. I recognize no distinction nor classification of his person in life, they are one and all close to me.

A woman who has a order book and call most of the better things of life, sighs over a fancied grievance and frets herself into semi-hysteria, while just around the corner, a blind worker sings at his task, happy in the knowledge of realizing that his mite of performance has lifted him from the despairing vale of dependence, to the contented heights of independence.

The great man of finance, the author, the artist, the artisan, sit in fond reminescence of what they, with their own hands, have wrought, while out of the primeval forests of unknown country comes the tale of a man, humble of origin, humble of mien, but gifted with the Wisdom of God who carried a message of Hope to his people and made them [illegible] the body of their constitution, they are spurred on to accomplish greater and better things.

Satisfaction that is never satisfied, the goal of Endeavor that is never reached. I am the open seasame to Progress.

Truth—Ponderous, slow-moving, yet ever sure, I travel the long, straight road of Virtue.

The Primrose Paths of Temptation beckon to me on every hand but I pause only at the Stile-Paths of Rightousness, to greet those who would seek me and bid them follow me.

I builded the Churches, the best creeds in Art and Literature, and brought into the world every Ideal.

Sometimes my enemies, I read, Envy and Jealousy combine their forces against me and think to effect my complete annihilation. I am crushed to earth and half obliterated by the mists of Falsehood. But, I rise again, and in the [illegible] Shown thousands the sands [illegible] I have fought and won. [illegible] the Far East I shall continue.

Ambition: I am the sponsor of almost all accomplishment; I am the life and breath and soul of man, himself; I but reach out my hand and five-thousand miles across the sea, a young man throws aside the shakles of bondage, and emigrates to The Land of Promise, and 'midst strange customs, strange faces, and a stranger language, overcomes all obstacles and eventually succeeds.

I journey on the wing of a vagrant thought into the home of the humblest and lo! over night a new Hope is born in the breast of the dweller and he, too, will strive to climb.

I crook my finger and from scenes of peace and plenty a young man or woman is drawn into the maw of the great city, beset by temptation on every side, unworldly wise and unsophisticated, nine times out of ten, they trample precedent, in the form of forgone Failure, under foot.

I am Progress personified; I am all that makes Failure bearable; I am the Spark of Fire that smolders even in a Vacuum.

Common Sense—You ask me to decide upon a question for which there is no answer; for as yourself, contained in yourself, you are invaluable to Man, but when you stoop to petty jealousies and envies, you then become Ego, which in the world of things, of its-self alone, is a nonentity and of no value whatsoever. Your Fortes lie not in single nor signal distinction, but, in continuing allied against the forces of evil to bring out the best that is in Man and to make better men and women.

Bell Wanted.

It is Fr. Francis Rudiferia, of Tibiao, P. I., who wants a new church-bell for his church, the present one being cracked and unable to summon the far-away Catholics to their Sunday duty. Nor is this demand by way of being a luxury.

"A bell," says the Father, "means a good deal in a country where there are no watches or clocks, and where the people seek any excuse in order not to come to mass. I have now four broken church bells, and they make a noise when rung, that serves for nothing but to amuse the Aglipayans. Can I not get a friend who will be willing to buy a new bell, or to pay for the recasting of one of the bells?"

It seems a pity to amuse the Aglipayans instead of impressing them. Why not send the price of a sweet-toned bell to this earnest apostle?

TOWERING EFFECT

Renovating an Old Rug.

An excellent method of freshening [illegible] with the following: Scrape a pound of [illegible] white soap [illegible] a gallon of boiling water and [illegible] the fire until completely dissolved. Take from the range and stir well then leave for half an hour to cool. At the end of that time add half an ounce of sulphuric ether, an ounce of alcohol, two ounces of ammonia and a half of [illegible] Stir and let the whole stand for twenty-four hours [illegible] then rinse well with clear water and [illegible] with a sponge [illegible] dry with a rough cloth. This not only cleans the rug, but [illegible] the colors.

Avon Theater

Some two thousand years ago there was born at Nazareth, He whose teachings have enlightened the world. The events of Jesus' life, from the manger to the Ascension, make the most stirring story of all time to all the races of mankind. The Pathe Company, to fill a long felt want, organized a company of [illegible] and produced "The Life of Our Savior," an elaborate superfeature, dramatic visualization of Jesus' journey on earth. The compilation of this chronology of Jesus is truly an achievement worthy of the highest praise as it truthfully and geographically portrays with grace and dignity His sufferings and final achievement. This work represents a lifetime of careful study and an immense financial outlay, and because of its tremendous subject is The World's Greatest Drama. The picture is colored and exquisitely arranged so as to bring to the vision a graphic realization of the infinite simplicity, yet monumental strength of Jesus.

This dramatic masterpiece in seven reels will be shown at the Avon Theater for one day only on Sunday, Dec. 31st Continuous from 1.30 to 11 p.m., at the regular prices.
