

Saves Eggs

Royal Baking Powder makes it possible to produce appetizing and wholesome cakes, muffins, cornbread, etc., with fewer eggs than are usually required.

In many recipes the number of eggs may be reduced and excellent results obtained by adding an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, for each egg omitted. The following tested recipe is a practical illustration:

SPONGE CAKE
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup water
 3 eggs
 2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
 1 cup flour
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup cold water
 1 teaspoon flavoring

The old method called for 6 eggs and no baking powder

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Holy Redeemer.

Sunday morning at all the mass-annual envelope collection to be taken up and at 8 o'clock mass, the Young Ladies Sodality will receive Holy Communion in a body.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Stations of the Cross in German by Rev. Father Baier and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be held.

The requiem masses this week were for Mr. Maier, Sister Angela, Mr. and Mrs. Englert, Mary Boff and Maria VanderLinden.

Wednesday evening at 7:45 a sermon in English and Friday evening the Stations of the Cross in English and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be held. After the service Friday night there will be a lecture by Rev. Father Heisel before the Wind-thorath Study Circle. We hope there will be as large an attendance as there was last week.

Monday evening, April 16th, there will be a variety shower, held by all the societies of our parish for the Bazaar which will be held in Convention Hall.

The funeral of Camille Heintz of 11-2 St. Jacob St., was held Saturday morning at 8:30 from the house and 9 o'clock from the church. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Heintz, three daughters, Mrs. Jacob Nes, Matilda Heintz; six sons, Paul, George, Albert, Robert and Bernard of this city and Charles of Colorado.

St. Andrew's Church

The masses on Sunday will be at 7:30, 9:15 and 10:30 o'clock.

Services were held Sunday at 3:30 o'clock consisting of the Rosary, instructions for the children and the Way-of-the-Cross.

Monday evening the C.M.B.A. held their regular meeting.

A meeting was called Tuesday evening to make preparations for a Minstrel Show to be given some time during the month of May.

A requiem high mass was said on Wednesday morning for Mr. Anton Sadler.

Our Lenten services are being very well attended. The Question Box has proven to be quite a feature at the Friday evening services. Rev. Louis Edelman will deliver the sermon on Wednesday evening, March 21st, at 7:45.

Next Sunday is the regular communion day for the St. Rita Young Ladies' Sodality.

Our motto for the "Weekly Debt Fund" is "When Everybody gives a little to the Church regularly—it counts." Every working member of St. Andrew's is giving a little weekly towards the Debt Fund and this what will count at the end of the year. A splendid spirit of enthusiasm and good-will is shown by the people of the parish.

Organists

The masses at this church on Sunday will be as follows: at 7:30, 9:30 and 11 o'clock.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane Rielly took place Monday morning at 8:30 from her home, 41 Grand

McFadden's Flight

A Story For St. Patrick's Day

By ELINOR MARSH

Mike McFadden was the most popular young man in all Ireland at the time of the revolution. He rode about on horseback, carrying a green flag with a harp on it, calling on the people to arm and shake off the yoke of England.

This was very well so long as the revolution lasted, but when it was put down Mike was one of the persons marked for punishment. But his popularity stood him in good stead. Where there was one person to hunt for him there were a hundred to conceal him. He was talking to a crowd of listeners in his native town, exhorting them "not to give up the ship as long as there was a stick of timber left in here," that St. Patrick was with them and would grant them the victory, when a woman from an upper window cried out:

"The soldiers! They're coming!" And so they were. They were coming for Mike and there was a beautiful chance of their taking him, and if they took him he was sure to hang.

The question of the moment was how to protect Mike. Ireland was forgotten. Mike was all in all. One of the girls present beckoned him to follow her and darted into a house. As soon as Mike was inside she shut the door. A few minutes later the soldiers rode into town and began to look for the rebel.

"All the men come into the street!" cried the sergeant in command. Some of the men were already there, and the rest thought it best to obey the order. They were lined up, and the sergeant said:

"Let Mike McFadden step to the front!" Mike did not materialize.

"If Mike McFadden doesn't step to the front, every mother's son of you will be taken to Dublin and lodged in jail!"

This produced no effect. Mike, dressed in petticoats, was circulating among the girls and when called on to step forth was standing between two girls with an arm around each in true feminine style.

With the sergeant was one who had seen McFadden, and he told the sergeant that the culprit was not in line.

Then the order was given to search every house in the place, the men meanwhile being obliged to stand where they were.

"I'll show ye where Mike McFadden is," said one of the girls whose waist Mike was encircling.

"Do it and I've got something nice for you!"

The girl led the sergeant a short distance down the street, and as soon as they reached open ground Mike pulled his skirts above his knees and ran like a deer.

Unfortunately for the fugitive, he had been too hasty. He should have slipped a way quietly before making an exhibition of his masculine legs and what they could do. But Mike was never given to forethought. One of the soldiers who had been left to watch the men standing in line took after the sergeant.

Mike was a wife of foot and except for the lamplight of the street, was more than a match for the soldier, who, perched a knapsack on his shoulders and a musket in his hands, he didn't know why the girl was running. He supposed that there was some plan on foot to outwit himself and his comrades. Not getting in the chase, he called on the fugitive to stop or he would fire. Mike kept on, and the soldier, not relishing shooting a woman, desisted.

During his flight Mike saw a stout cudee in his way, and, picking it up, he began to think of a more manly device than flight. Reaching a slight rise in the ground, he stopped, turned about and faced his enemy.

A number of the girls had broken away and run after the sergeant, eager to learn the result of Mike's flight. Those in advance were finally treated to the sight of a man in woman's apparel, crouching with a cudgel a soldier with a musket. But while the latter was far better armed than the former, he was handicapped by the belief that his prey was a girl. When a short distance from Mike he paused and said:

"Come back with me. I don't want to hurt you, young woman."

"If you're a bit do-I go back with ye I'll be sure to get you!"

The girls who had followed, seeing that Mike had been mistaken by the soldier for one of them, now came up and, receiving the soldier for fighting a woman, threw themselves between Mike and the soldier. Fortunately for their protection, Mike was on the edge of the wood, and, there being enough women to screen him, he darted away, between the trees and this time made good his escape.

While he was doing so the women gathered round the soldier and began to push him back toward the village. One of them finally got his musket and after that he was helped along by means of its bayonet.

The sergeant, when it was evident that he had been sent on a fool's errand, hurried back to where the men were still standing in line. He was assured by every man and woman that there was no such person as Mike McFadden among them, and, being convinced he took him off and his men away.

Mike never stopped till he reached the coast and stepped to America. He has always attributed his escape not to the girls, but to St. Patrick.

St. Vitus Dance, Pastor Procop recommended to me Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic against St. Vitus Dance, with which I was afflicted since 3 months. 3 bottles of the Nerve Tonic brought me out all right, am strong and can work again—for which many thanks. Mrs. H. Feiertag, E. J. Schmidt of Mott, N. Dak., writes Sept. 1915—that Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic had an excellent effect against St. Vitus Dance, which troubled him since 2 years. Therefore recommends it to all such sufferers.

John Glammann writes from W. Point, Miss., that he had to work so hard on his farm that his muscles and nerves became exhausted. For this trouble he used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, which done him so good that he recommends it highly.
