TAPS IN THE ARMY

Story of the Bugle Call, "Lights Out," Now In Use.

WAS FIRST SOUNDED IN 1862.

General Butterfield Composed the Melodious Strain, Which Quickly Supplanted the Old and Unmusical West Point Signal.

In a book of personal letters and memorials printed for circulation among his friends Oliver W. Norton, a veteran of the war between the states...

In the month of July, 1862, the Army of the Potomac rested in camp at Harrison's Landing, a point on the James river in Virginia.

The old order of "lights out," which had been inherited from the earliest West Point memories, sounded a discordant and unsuitable note to the sensitive musical ear of the general.

He immediately began turning over in his mind such musical phrases as seemed to him to convey the suggestion of the peace and quiet of the camp - of rest after labor.

That same night Butterfield's own brigade was the first to listen to the lingering refrain of the new call, and the next morning the buglers of other camps near by - for its music had carried far among the hills - began to inquire as to its meaning and to ask permission to learn it.

Its use in the military burial service both by veterans of the war and by the United States regular army has added greatly to the tenderness of its associations.

General Daniel Butterfield was born in Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31, 1831. He was graduated from Union college in 1849 and joined the Seventy-first regiment of New York in 1851.

For his efficiency as an organizer he was rapidly promoted and took part in many of the most important engagements of the war.

LUCK IN AN AIRPLANE.

Curious Bit of Good Fortune That Saved an Army Aviator.

Many an army aviator owes his life to miraculous good fortune, like the British airman whose escape is described in "Tales of the Flying Services" by C. G. Grey.

To be strictly accurate, the bullet struck his trousers pocket, hit a five franc piece, broke itself and the coin flew far, in other words, could it have been stretched lengthwise before it metal about the lower part of his body parted?

Two hundred feet above ground he completely lost consciousness, but he some curious subconscious way he made a perfect landing right alongside of a British motor ambulance.

MAKE YOUR DOLLARS WORK

Heard Money Helps No One and Puts a Brake on Business.

When a manufacturer or other producer of real wealth does a profitable business and turns his profits back into the business he gives employment to men and creates more real wealth as he progresses year by year.

If a depositor takes $1,000 in gold or its equivalent to a bank and deposits it that bank can extend credit to others in five times the amount deposited in actual cash.

The worst a man can do with his money is to hoard gold or currency or decemable in gold.

NEW MIRACLES OF STEEL

What the Laboratory Has Done For the Automobile Maker.

Writers of historical fiction perpetuate the notion that the art of the old armor has perished.

But the automobile metallurgist is not the equal in that respect of a modern valve stem.

As soon as the metallurgist discovered that the properties of steel could be subtly changed by the addition of very small quantities of such elements as chromium, carbon, manganese, nickel, tungsten or vanadium - as soon, in other words, as the problem of making the automobile durable and safe had been solved by research - the designer ventured to consider the economics of motoring.

The Quintessence of Egotism

By ESTHER VANDEVEER.

One morning a carriage stopped in the Boulogne wood in Paris.

Alighting, he directed the coachman to drive on over a crest and wait. Then he began to pace idly back and forth, now turning to the east to admire the tints painted on the clouds by the coming day, now snapping off a blossoming head of clover or dandelion.

A moment later the grinding of wheels was heard and another carriage came in sight, drove to where the man was standing, stopped, a gentleman alighted and stood face to face with the first comer.

"Ah, M. Charlier," said the newcomer, "why do I find you here alone? Where are the seconds?"

"What does this mean?" "It means, M. de Musset, said Charlier, that M. Rubidoux here, having demanded satisfaction, as you have done, is entitled to it as much as you."

"Gentlemen!" exclaimed M. Tetedoux in a sonorous bass voice.

"Gentlemen!" cried M. Charlier in tones of a shrill reed instrument.

"Not at all," put in M. Tetedoux. "Gentlemen was drawn from me."

"Gentlemen," interrupted M. Rubidoux, "I think I can convince you that the portrait is intended to be when I tell you that M. Charlier sent me a copy of the book to read."

It was some time before he could convince each of the men that he was not caricatured, but they all finally gave way, and he invited them to breakfast with him.
