America's participation in the war is causing an unusual business expansion. The call of many young men to the front emphasizes the opportunity for those who are left to take care of the country's business. Young men and women with the right training will find an exceptional field for their services. To supply this training is the special function of the Rochester Business Institute.

For more than half a century this school has been building up strong, practical and effective courses of study in commercial training. It has graduated thousands of young men and women, fully equipped to make their way in the business world. It prepares men and women for efficient work as Office, Advertising and Sales Assistants, Bookkeepers, Stenographers, Secretaries, Commercial Teachers and Accountants. Day School throughout the entire year. Evening School from September 17th to Mar 16th.
