

"MAKING GOOD"

By LEE VERONE HAMMOND.

"Do something worth while," advised Judge William Brader, to his nephew, Verne Bartley. "Go away."

Now, Verne resented this. He realized that in the estimation of his relative he was shiftless and a never-nowell.

"I've done nothing to disgrace him or the family," mused Verne recently, after this last interview, "so why should I go away? Yes, I will!"

"Yes, there was Elsie, Elsie Todd and she was well worth thinking of."

He had secured board and lodging at a third rate hotel, mostly patronized by the cheaper grade of stage people and circus entertainers.

Two evil faced fellows had Haily tied to a chair and gagged. One was ripping up the pillows and the mattress on the bed.

"You scoundrels!" roared Verne, and he seized the man with the candle by the knaps of his neck and hurled him headly ten feet across the room and into the outer corridor.

"You have saved my money and maybe my life," spoke the trainer with genuine gratitude. "Reach down that clock hanging over the table."

"The big elephant, Samson, became a real favorite with Verne. He was older than the others, but his feats were far more marvelous."

Emperor and Czar.

The Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, notwithstanding his numerous visits to Vienna, never succeeded in making himself welcome to the Austrian aristocracy.

Ferdinand sent to this favorite a jewel box with a note: "I desire to offer to you the earrings that my mother wore until her death. Delight to accept them and interest in my favor with the emperor."

Mme. Schratz used her kindly offices, and Francis Joseph consented to receive the king of the Bulgars. Her husband had brought a napkin filled with papers that he wished to show to the emperor.

When Clothette Chatteroux said good-bye to Alphonse Brissot on his departure for the war of the nations, he seemed almost broken hearted at parting with her.

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.

What was her disappointment to see only a friendly recognition. Nevertheless she advanced, bent over him and kissed him. He received her caresses with indifference.

Clothette was not a girl to reproach Alphonse for having become cold to her. She repressed her feelings of disappointment as well as the exuberance natural to her reunion with the man she loved.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue.

Purity is for man, next to life, the greatest good. That purity is procured by the law of Mazda to him who cleanses his own self with good thoughts, words and deeds.

The first session of the continental congress was held in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774, with forty-four members present.

An Extinguished Love

By OSCAR COX.

Before scientific truths become reality scientific they sometimes fall into the hands of quacks, who make money out of them by practicing them on the credulity of the public.

When Clothette Chatteroux said good-bye to Alphonse Brissot on his departure for the war of the nations, he seemed almost broken hearted at parting with her.

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.

What was her disappointment to see only a friendly recognition. Nevertheless she advanced, bent over him and kissed him. He received her caresses with indifference.

Clothette was not a girl to reproach Alphonse for having become cold to her. She repressed her feelings of disappointment as well as the exuberance natural to her reunion with the man she loved.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue.

Purity is for man, next to life, the greatest good. That purity is procured by the law of Mazda to him who cleanses his own self with good thoughts, words and deeds.

The first session of the continental congress was held in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774, with forty-four members present.

"It's easy to find out what time it is," said a married man. "If the hall clock says 5.20, and the drawing room clock says 5.30, and the dining room clock says 5.55, and my watch says 6.15, and my wife's little dinky watch says 6. It's 6 o'clock in our house."

Lava Is Slow to Cool.

Peasants on the slopes of Mount Aetna can still boil water over the lava that flowed from the volcano during the eruption of 1910.

Even the ancient poets recorded the tenacity with which lava retains its heat, and Borelli, describing the great eruption of 1600, says the lava took eight years to cool.

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.

What was her disappointment to see only a friendly recognition. Nevertheless she advanced, bent over him and kissed him. He received her caresses with indifference.

Clothette was not a girl to reproach Alphonse for having become cold to her. She repressed her feelings of disappointment as well as the exuberance natural to her reunion with the man she loved.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue.

Purity is for man, next to life, the greatest good. That purity is procured by the law of Mazda to him who cleanses his own self with good thoughts, words and deeds.

The first session of the continental congress was held in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1774, with forty-four members present.

"It's easy to find out what time it is," said a married man. "If the hall clock says 5.20, and the drawing room clock says 5.30, and the dining room clock says 5.55, and my watch says 6.15, and my wife's little dinky watch says 6. It's 6 o'clock in our house."

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.

WARMING A SERPENT

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the middle of the nineteenth century the Mississippi river was a thoroughfare for palatial steamboats plying between the south and the north-west.

One morning several young men from St. Louis were standing about a table at which sat a professional gambler and a rawboned countryman from the interior of Missouri.

Then his would be benefactors concluded that they would ask him to play a small game with them before sitting down with the gambler, designing to win his money and hand it back to him, exacting his promise not to risk it again to any one during the trip.

As soon as the dinner dishes were cleared away the St. Louisans and the countryman sat down at a table and began their game.

The men who had taken pity on the countryman began to feel that they had warmed a serpent in their bosoms. Where the man's splendid hands came from they could not divine.

There is God's gift of youth, inexpressible, beautiful, glorious, divine. It is for youth that the rest of us live. It is for them that we labor, suffer and endure.

"Grandma," asked six-year-old Paul, "what makes Helen such a pretty little girl?"

"She is pretty," grandma replied, "because she is such a good little girl."

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.

Economical Roasting.

The following will recommend itself as an economical way of roasting a small quantity of beef without heat or smoke.

Place in a saucepan large enough to hold the meat chosen about a cupful of dripping and or margarine. The dripping, place meat into it and well on both sides.

Three undivided cups done in this way require a cupful of cold water added to the chops are put on a fire and the chops are put on a fire and the chops are put on a fire.

That famous politician, orator and man of fashion, the fourth earl of the terfield, was on one occasion at a grand assembly in France where Voltaire was one of the guests.

One hundred million dollars are lost to the United States every year due to the ravages of insects in crops. Half these insects were imported, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

The threatened destruction of California's orange groves was arrested by the importation from Australia of a certain species of ladybird.

There are two Manilas now. One is the old Spanish city, inclosed by picturesque and massive walls, with narrow and tortuous streets.

The years of American occupation have made Manila the cleanest and healthiest city in the orient, with the possible exception of Hongkong, where British sanitary science has accomplished wonders.

In the very hottest districts in the world—the shores of the Persian gulf—there is no rain, whatever, nor rivers, nor oases. Yet water is not from the bottom of the sea.

When Alphonse and Clothette met again he was in a hospital recovering from a wound in the head. Clothette, hearing of his condition, went to him that she might assist in his recovery.