Cardinal Farley.

News of Cardinal John M. Farley's serious illness came as a great shock to his many friends in and about Rochester, as well as all over the country where this venerable prelate is revered and loved.

Cardinal Farley was a typical gentleman of the old school. Cultured and refined, affable and amiable he was, nevertheless, a dignified churchman and a firm administrator of one of the largest and most important Catholic sees in the world.

It is a pity that only grim necessity will inculcate in a people those homely virtues that are so fundamentally the basis of real character and without which no nation or people can be truly great.

Are You Helping?

Are you doing all you can to help end the war and bring peace to the world?

Not all of us can do the khaki and shoulder the gun. Not all of us can do the Red Cross uniform and do nursing and the like. Not all of us can do canteen work. Not all of us can be K. of C. or Y. M. C. A. secretaries.

But there is a part and a place for each and every one in this great struggle. Those who can should go to the Red Cross or other relief stations and contribute their bit in line of war work.

Those who can should assist in bond and thrift stamp sales. We can refrain from using sugar and other scarce commodities so sorely needed by the boys and our Allies "over there."

Every little bit done, every little sacrifice, every cheering word helps and encourages those who are fighting and those who are directing the fighting to keep carrying on and that spirit will bring the war to an end sooner and peace that much nearer.

We all want peace but peace with honor cannot come until the war is won. And the greater our sacrifices now the quicker will the war be over.

Speed up coal production, Dr. Garfield! If bonuses to workers increase shipbuilding, why not apply the same method to coal mining?

Tribute to the gallantry of the American troops seems to be unanimous.

The quicker the war is won the quicker will peace come to a suffering world.

A Model Officer.

What a splendid tribute is this from the secular Kansas City Journal to a Catholic officer—the late Chief of Police Thomas P. Flahive:—

"Thirty-six years of the cleanest sort of service are marked up on the credit side of his official account and there is not a black mark on the other side. He leaves to those who survive him a record which is the finest legacy any man can leave. His family may find in it some measure of consolation for the irreparable loss sustained through his death and every member of the force may find in it inspiration for emulation. It would be impossible to point to a cleaner example of official rectitude and good citizenship than that provided by the entire career of 'Tom' Flahive— ($1,500,000,000). Doubtless, this will astonish bankers as well as laymen but these are official figures. Moreover, a great proportion of this increase is in the savings bank deposits—the poor man's banking institutions. Furthermore, the increase in deposits in the United States is only a counterpart of what has happened in England and Canada. The people have actually gained in wealth while paying for the greatest war in history.

Poor Man's Mint.

It will be news to many persons that one year of war has witnessed an increase in the banking deposits of this nation of a billion and a half of dollars ($1,500,000,000). Doubtless, this will astonish bankers as well as laymen but these are official figures. Moreover, a great proportion of this increase is in the savings bank deposits—the poor man's banking institutions. Furthermore, the increase in deposits in the United States is only a counterpart of what has happened in England and Canada. The people have actually gained in wealth while paying for the greatest war in history.

Thrift, rigid economy and increased efficiency, both individually and nationally, has made possible this truly remarkable performance.

An increase in the savings of the people has been a concomitant of the announcement of every new Liberty Loan. The Government has called and the people have not been found wanting with cold cash, (ten billions of dollars so far) and unbounded faith and patriotism. After "buying until it hurts", they have had a surplus to put into the banks. From a nation of wasters to a nation of savers in a twelve-month that appears to be one of the things that war has done for America.

Chief Flahive was never remotely suspected of the slightest dereliction along the lines which run like black threads through the history of the police departments of every large city. He was often 'hobbled' by official red tape and worse. He was deprived of rights and honors which were his due through political machination and favoritism. He could not always put into effect the policies which he would have pursued had he been given a free rein, which a chief of police should be given. But if he was often made the victim of the devious meanderings of politics in the department, he was never the victim of any situation which he himself could control.

"He came as near to being the ideal policeman as men usually become in these complex days— outside of the pages of fiction. Clean, honorable, fearless, a splendid type of citizen and an exemplary public official in every respect, his death will occasion the widest regret and his place will be difficult to fill."

It would seem that Kaiser Wilhelm miscalculated when he told Dr. Davis that he did not underestimate the part America would play in the war.

It is peculiar that all the New York city newspapers, excepting Hearst's periodicals, should have praised "Al" Smith to the skies!

Funny, how the papers do like to stir up a scrap. One of the Rochester papers editorially opined that Mr. Murphy hated to see Hearst turned down as Democratic candidate for governor! Doesn't that paper think an Irishman can have a patriotic feeling?

It begins to appear as if this Republic would impose its ideals upon the peoples of the world.

The "Times-Union" indulges in undue prophecy when it says the returning soldiers, after the war, will be strong enough politically to impose their will upon the people. Perhaps, but not if they try to impose militarism upon the United States. Even the friends of the immortal Grant could not do that.

Merton E. Lewis and his friends surely are rocking the boat. But Uncle George Aldridge only winks the other eye.

Not even the last word in scientific advance can win the war for the Kaiser. We are making a few advances in scientific warfare ourselves.

Ten per cent reduction in paper for magazines. We could mention a few to whom a 100 per cent reduction would only benefit the public at large.
