Rev. A. B. Meehan, D. D., was master of ceremonies.

Knowledge of French or Spanish is most important for Americans at the present time. We shall have intimate trade relations with French and Spanish speaking peoples far beyond anything that has existed before, and there will be a demand for young people who can translate letters in these languages and conduct correspondence.

Any persons who wish to get instruction in French or Spanish in the Rochester Business Institute Day School should come to the R. B. I. on Monday, September 30, or Tuesday, October 1, any time between 1:30 and 4:30 for consultation and arrangement of classes. Madame Kraemer, the teacher, will be present at this time.

Those wishing to take French or Spanish in the evening school may meet Madame Kraemer to make arrangements for classes on the same days (Monday and Tuesday) from 8 to 9 o'clock p. m. Rochester Business Institute, 172 Clinton Avenue South.—Adv.

Archbishop Ireland

Dies in St. Paul After Long Illness.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 25.—Archbishop John Ireland, veteran of the Catholic prelates of America is dead. The end came at 3:55 o'clock Wednesday morning after 18 hours of unconsciousness.

For several days the archbishop has been kept alive only by the administration of oxygen. Since before noon Tuesday he had been unconscious. In his last hours of consciousness he had experienced no suffering and death came quietly.

Physical decline due to Archbishop Ireland's advanced age of 80, affecting his heart, caused his death, his physicians said. He suffered a severe illness early last spring and shortly after celebrating his 80th birthday anniversary, September 11, he was again stricken.

Five days ago it became apparent to his physicians that he could not live and he sank gradually despite frequent rallies. At his bedside were his sister, Mother Superior of St. Joseph Academy of St. Paul, his only surviving relative; his oldest friend, Bishop Thomas O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Bishop James Trobee, P. R. Hebron and James O'Reilly.

Last rites were administered the archbishop by his secretary, the Rev. T. A. Welch, after the sacrament had been administered by Bishop O'Gorman.

John Ireland was born in Kilkenny, Ireland, September 11, 1838. He was brought to this country by his parents when 11 years of age. For a few years the family lived in Boston, Mass., and Burlington, Vt.

At the parochial school the future archbishop found a playmate in Thomas O'Gorman, now bishop of Sioux, S. D.

The two were marked by Bishop Cretin, famed French missionary, who sent them to France to study for the priesthood. While studying Ireland met and accepted as his model Father Cheverus. He returned to America when the Civil War broke out and enlisted with the Union Army. Rated as a chaplain, Ireland bunked, ate and fought with the privates, scoring better accommodations offered with the officers.

Archbishop Ireland was a close friend of the late James J. Hill, his work for the church fitting in with the colonization labors of the railroad maker. He was also the firm friend of President McKinley and Roosevelt. Under Roosevelt's administration he settled the Philippine Friar land controversy. He was responsible for the founding of the University of Washington, appearing before the Pepe to show why such an institution should be established. He was consecrated bishop December 1, 1875.

Among other honors the prelate held an LL.D. degree from Yale, was a commander of the French Legion of Honor and a former national chaplain of the G. A. R. He was of democratic tendencies. By choice he rode about in street cars, talking with parishioners and workmen. A monument already stands to his memory. It is the million dollar cathedral named in his honor that dominates St. Paul from the city's highest point.

John Calder Says

There is an intensified demand in industry for men who by training and ability are capable of becoming commissioned officers in the vast army of production. Mr. Calder knows whereof he speaks. He is one of the best known industrial managers of the country. He had charge of 4,000 men in the Remington Typewriter Company—of 9,000 in the Remington Arms Company. He has served as general manager of the Cadillac Motor Company and vice-president and general manager of the Aeromarine Plane and Motor Company. In France he was consulting engineer to the government in the organization of a huge munitions factory in Paris, employing 10,000 women workers. The Rochester Business Institute is to have Mr. Calder as director of the short, intensive, practical course of training in modern production methods which we shall conduct this fall. The introductory meeting of this course will be held in the R. B. I. building Monday evening, September 30, at 8 o'clock. Call at the R. B. I. office for ticket of admission.—Adv.
