HOW PROPER SENSE OF

SMELL MAY BE RESTORED TO HUMANITY. At Etretat, noted French port, If to the custom for each herring local to take on board a rinn whose Setise of smell is so neute that he din detect the presence of a shoul of herrings by its means, and can even, so Cup-'am Irwan jeds us in Fishad badette, discriming he tween herrings and dogtish! Such a nose would be simply inveluable to entomologists, engaged in investigating insect scents, work in which a keen, discriminating nose is absolutely essential. The experimenter first lightly breathes on the butterily or other insect, or else strokes it with a camel-hair pencil. Then he holds it with open wings close to his nostrils, and inhales gently, but is careful not to sniff. A bewildering number of scents has thus been detected.

Naturally the power of smell varies much in different people. and would appear to be particularly developed in the Chinese. to whom Europeans are said to smell like sheep. Efforts are beginning to be made to train the sense of smell in little children by making them guess the names of flowers, etc., from the scent alone, and it will be interesting to see how far it is possible to educate this faculty, which through neglect we have permitted to deteriorate. Whether a highly developed nose will prove an unmixed blessing must be left to the coming generation to decide.
