

Influenza May Come Back

Public Health Service Says Epidemic Caused 350,000 Deaths in United States Since Sept. 15

Grip Is Breaking Out Again in Many Sections

Washington, Between 300,000 and 350,000 deaths from influenza and pneumonia have occurred among the civilian population of the United States since September 15, according to the estimates of the public health service. These calculations were based on reports from cities and states keeping accurate records and public health officials believe they are conservative. The epidemic still persists, but deaths are less numerous, according to reports reaching here. The disease is breaking out again in many communities throughout the country, but a general renewal of severe epidemic conditions is not expected.

While the epidemic has passed, the danger from the grip germ is still here. If you catch cold or allow yourself to become weak and run down you are exposed to this danger. This is the time to keep Father John's Medicine on hand and to begin taking it at first sign of a cold. Anxious About Baby.

Harold is rather jealous since a wee brother came to his home. It was bedtime, and mother was busy with baby and could not rock Harold; as had been the custom. Coming up to his mother, he asked: "Don't you think baby ought to lay down in the bed so him can rest his back?"

Midget Volume.

The smallest printed volume in existence is a complete French translation of Dante's "Divine Comedy." It measures less than half an inch square, and, though comprising 600 pages, required only two sheets of printer's paper for its make-up.

"Wet Moon."

A "wet moon" is when one horn of the crescent of the new moon is much lower than the other, like a bowl turned up on edge and unable to hold water. The wet moon is a popular but fallacious sign of coming wet weather.

Vatican Prelates Taken by Death

The ranks of prelates highly placed in the service of the Vatican have been thinned these days and the latest loss is one of the most severe, that of Mgr. Misciatielli, vice prefect of the Apostolic Palaces. Born in 1861, his education was completed in the Vatican atmosphere, at the Jesuit College of Mondragone, near Frascati, at the Collegio Capranica, training place of so many distinguished clerics, including the most distinguished of all, and at the College of Noble Ecclesiastics, opposite Cardinal Farley's titular church, the Minerva.

It is saddening for those who were present at the memorable scene when his Eminence of New York took over his church in Rome to think that he will never be seen there again; his shield is down. Mgr. Misciatielli left the college to go to the Vatican and had been there ever since in close and trusted service on three Popes. Leo XIII made him Protonotary Apostolic, but it was Pius X who gave him the chance of the work for which he will be remembered, in creating him in 1905 sub-prefect of the Apostolic Palaces.

Under that pontificate it was he who, under the supreme direction of the Pope, carried out the changes to which we have got accustomed now, though they seemed one of Pius X's peaceful revolutions at the time. The old Vatican picture gallery was translated and transformed; the Lateran Museum was reorganized; the Borgin apartment, which was used as the residence of the Cardinal Secretary of State at first, was entirely restored; outside the Belvedere Court an entirely new building was put up for the servants of the Vatican, and the printing office was installed at its side.

At the time of the Messina earthquake it was Mgr. Misciatielli who arranged the Papal hospice of Santa Marta for refugees—an act of fatherly charity on the part of the Pontiff which met with nothing but reverent applause here, silencing the cackle of such as wanted to get material for legal disquisitions on the "Roman Question" out of it. Pope Benedict XV raised Mgr. Misciatielli to be vice prefect of the Apostolic Palaces as one of the first acts of his pontificate and cheered him by a visit during his last hours.
