to the races, but many of the best people were absent and the midinettes failed the dressmakers at the last mo ment, so that there were fewer new frocks than had been expected. Happily most of the troubles are over and the best houses have promised interesting and important changes. However, we are left to guess what the changes are to be, though a few of the models give some important clews and the assurance that whatever the changes may be one may be certain that they will be interesting.

The elegance of the pre-war toplettes is repeatedly mentioned and there is every indication that eventually the more elaborate manner of dressing will return. Lace, which has long since been discarded, is considered one of the most important materials for afternoon wear,

Many and conflicting were the comments on its use at the races, but in splite of adverse opinion it was noted that as the days passed by and the makers had an opportunity of showing new models the lace dresses in creased in numbers.

It is fortunate that there is a vogue for hats of black tulle and Chantilly or the smart Paristan would be doomed to wear nothing but velvet on the warmest of days unless she resorts to the glycerined paper hat-a late innovation. The white velvet is, of course, very much smarter than black, if one must wear velvet on a summer day. Lewis put forth some charming models in leghorn and millan, but they proved :00 commonplace for the Parislau, who refused to wear them.

One of Lewis' best liked models is of white velvet in a rolling brimmed allor shape with a huge "pouf" of marabou in white also. It had the merit of looking summery, at least in color, and does not look as out of place as did some of the velvet tam-o'-shan-
