

DAWN

By JACK LAWTON

(Copyright, 1919 Western Newspaper Union) Jerome Harris in the hour of his great success was but a disillusioned, disappointed man.

During his years of struggle and need none of these friends, who flow so eagerly to share his triumph had made an effort to stretch forth a helping hand.

Now that the dream of Jerome Harris was realized he smiled contentedly at this same woman's proffered notes of reconciliation.

At 10,000 feet above sea level natural phenomena seem strangely different. The stars look larger and brighter.

To Harris this small place, with the sea stretching out before, was home, his one sure haven.

It was here that his great picture was born—the picture which had won for him fame and fortune. Years ago, when his heart was sore with its disappointment, he had gone after reading the announcement of the one girl's marriage.

Impulsively he had called her as she drifted by, and had run down to draw her boat in to the shore. The girl, who was perhaps fourteen or fifteen years of age, acceded readily to his request.

"I'll make the arrangement with your people," Harris suggested. "I have no people," the girl told him, and as she went on with the strange story of her own life he knew what had brought the shadow to her young eyes.

When upon his return later from the city Harris learned from his old housekeeper that Dawn's invalid charge had died he sent at once for the girl and bade her make her home in his house.

On the west coast of Ireland stands a castle bearing the euphonious name of Carrig-a-Hooley. Several centuries ago this was the favorite castle of Grace O'Malley, an Irish amazon.

"Dye Ken John Peel!" "Some songs are immortal, and 'Dye Ken John Peel' is one of them. The fitting tune of it was infectious on the fields of France, and many a British soldier learned the words, too, for the first time.

"After that came to the artist regularly small checks in the name of the village bank, with notes in a girlish hand. 'Of course I can never repay what you have done for me,' wrote Dawn.

"And I wish I might give you that," said Dawn. "I hope I believe—that you will," Harris answered softly, and they looked into each other's eyes.

CRATER IMMENSE IN SIZE

Extinct Volcano of Haleakala, in Hawaiian Islands, is One of the World's Wonders.

The Hawaiian Islands possess an extinct volcano so immense that a large city could be set down inside the crater.

The view from the crater of Mt. Haleakala is accounted one of the most wonderful in the world.

At 10,000 feet above sea level natural phenomena seem strangely different. The stars look larger and brighter.

Standing by the crater of Haleakala, at sunrise you perhaps recall the old Hawaiian myth which goes back to the beginning of things.

At last is explanation made as to why Does a Hen Cross the Road?

ANSWER TO OLD CONUNDRUM

At last is explanation made as to why Does a Hen Cross the Road?

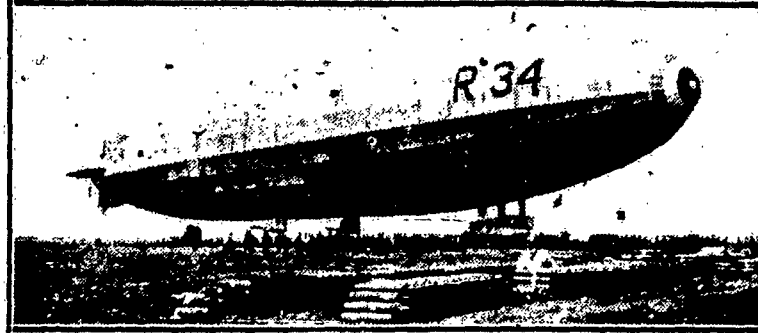

Now that a savant has given serious thought to the behavior and motive of a hen crossing a road, an ancient conundrum, one of the best known in the world, receives plausible solution.

Castle Carrig-a-Hooley. On the west coast of Ireland stands a castle bearing the euphonious name of Carrig-a-Hooley.

"Dye Ken John Peel!" "Some songs are immortal, and 'Dye Ken John Peel' is one of them. The fitting tune of it was infectious on the fields of France, and many a British soldier learned the words, too, for the first time.

"Franklin's Discovery." On June 15, 1782, Benjamin Franklin "discovered" electricity by demonstrating his theory that lightning and electricity were identical.

The R-34 "Anchored" at Mineola, L. I.

The history-making British dirigible R-34 was moored at Mineola, N. Y., by hundreds of United States soldiers, and it cost fourteen Thrift Stamps a day for each soldier.

ASK TRAVELLING SALESMEN TO AID

U. S. Treasury Eager to Spread Doctrine of Thrift Throughout Country.

America's vast army of commercial travelers are expected to be the latest auxiliary of the peace time forces that will continue to spread the war-taught spirit of thrift.

The Savings Division of the Treasury Department has taken the initial step toward enlisting the members of this big organization.

"To give permanent value to one of the great lessons which the war taught us, the Treasury Department is conducting a campaign to make thrift a universal element in American life.

"1. To put aside, as their first obligation and before they spend at all, part of their income for future use; 2. To invest the money that they save out of their incomes in some security which pays a reasonable rate of interest, and is absolutely safe, preferably Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

"The more thrifty the people are, the more promptly they pay their bills; and the more promptly bills are paid, the more stable and prosperous are business conditions. It is, therefore, good business for the commercial traveler to join in a campaign to promote thrift.

"We call upon you to perform a great national service by carrying the message of thrift to all those with whom you come in contact, and by ascertaining whether or not Thrift and War Savings Stamps may be easily purchased in the communities you visit and reporting the results of your investigation to us.

W. S. S. SLOGANS.

A stamp in time saves dime. Buy W. S. S.

War Savings Stamps work Bank Account Wonders.

Opportunity knocks but once. It's knocking now. Buy W. S. S.

Most capitalists began in a small way. Invest in W. S. S. and insure a comfortable income for your children.

BARGAIN DAY.

Buy War Savings Stamps while they are cheap! You can get them for $4.18 up to midnight, July 31.

The price arbitrarily advances in August to $4.19. Be thrifty! Save a penny!

Turn in your Thrift Stamps on July 31. Add eight cents.

Get a War Savings Stamp, which increases in value until it is worth $5.00.

Advertisement for W.S.S. Thrift Stamps featuring a woman's portrait and the slogan 'Remember! July 31 is a day for bargains in W.S.S.'.

THRIFT TABLE. 25 Pennies—1 Thrift Stamp. 16 Thrift Stamps—1 W. S. S. 20 W. S. S.—1 Hundred Dollar Stamp. 5 Hundred Dollar Stamps—1 First installment on your home.

OLD BELIEFS STILL SURVIVE

Queer Marriage Customs and Superstitions Extant in Many Parts of the Old World.

It is an old belief that marriage should take place when the moon is waxing and not waning. If it is to be a lucky match, and in many northern districts a strict inquiry is made as to the state of the moon before the wedding day is fixed.

In the highlands it is taken as a terribly unlucky sign if a dog should run between the bridal pair on their wedding day; while in Derbyshire prospective brides still tell the bees of their wedding and decorate the hives for the occasion.

None of these marriage manners, however, compare with the Chinese custom which causes lacon and sugar to be hung on the sedan chair of a Chinese bride, in order to keep the deities from molesting her on her wedding journey.

TAKE NO JOY IN PRODUCTION

Workers in Quarries From Which Famous Carrara Marble is Taken Lead Dull Lives.

Carrara marble is associated with the silent beauty of great cathedrals and monuments. There is none of that dignity about the place, or its origin.

The Pyrenees mountains have been supplying this marble for centuries. The quarry workmen have for years toiled, as their ancestors before them toiled, to keep up the steady outflow of Carrara marble for the hand of sculptor and architect.

"Proud of its distinction of being the first War Savings Society to be organized on the Pacific Coast, its members are making elaborate plans to exceed their splendid record of sales last year, when they purchased more than $1,000,000 of stamps.

"We are the first permanent society to be formed on the coast," writes Mr. Carlisle, "and we are all very proud of this honor. We are now working on a plan which we hope will exceed the sale of Stamps of last year, and always have before us the word Thrift, and I can assure you we have started quite a few on the road to Thrift."

Daniel Webster.

The ponderous strength of his powers strikes us not more forcibly than the broad individuality of the man. We were unacquainted with the history of his life, we could almost infer from his works.

Invented Pneumatic Caisson.

William Sooy Smith, builder of the first all-steel bridge in the world and inventor of the pneumatic caisson, was born in Ohio July 22, 1830.

"He was also a pioneer in moving big buildings and in the construction of skyscrapers. He was retired from the army with rank of brigadier general and died January 17, 1912—Chicago Tribune.

Oblivion.

But the iniquity of oblivion blindly scattereth her poppy, and deals with the memory of men without distinction to merit of perpetuity. Who can but pity the founder of the pyramids? Herodotus lives that burned the temple of Diana, he is almost lost that built it; time hath spared the epitaph of Adrian's horse, confounded that of himself.

A Real Remedy.

A soldier went to a "quack" doctor and complained of a sharp pain after sitting on damp grass for some hours, during which he had frequently sucked the point of a lead pencil. "The quack" told him that he was suffering from "plumbism" and gave him some pills.

Smallest Honey Bees.

In some of the East Indian Islands, and on the mainland of Hindustan, are to be found the smallest race of honey bees in the world.

The "Flying Dutchman."

Perhaps the best known of all sea ghosts is the Flying Dutchman. The tradition goes that a Dutch sea captain, Cornelius Vanderdecken, was homeward bound from Batavia.

Learning What to Kill.

Did you ever stop to think when you put your foot down to crush a little insect that you might be taking the life of something very valuable?

Only One Way.

The mild young gentleman, having read that every man ought to have a knowledge of self-defense, betook himself to an instructor of boxing.

Quotations for Self Advertiser.

"I do advertise. Why not? etc. etc. etc."—W. L. George.

"And here I value not their censure that pretend it is foppish and affected for any person to praise himself; yet let it be as silly as they please, if they will but allow it useful; and indeed what is more befitting than that folly should be the trumpet of her own praise, and dance after her own pipe?

Of Course She Knew.

Ruth and her papa were sitting on the back porch watching the birds, when a woodpecker flew to a nearby tree. "Do you know what kind of a bird that is?" her papa asked.

Advertisement for The Best Remedy: Jackson's Cough Syrup 25c, George Hahn, Prescription Druggist, 551 State Street.

Advertisement for Lawn Mowers: Repaired and Ground by an Expert at L. F. Wilder's Machine Shop, 291 Mill Street.