Beginning with the month of September, there was a slight increase in the death rate for influenza and pneumonia, not enough, however, to warrant the conclusion that the epidemic conditions of last year would be repeated.

Public health officials, and the health service of the life insurance companies, are watching carefully the current mortality returns with a view to controlling, so far as possible, any unfavorable mortality situation. should it arise. The United States public health service has suggested that local and state health departments outline an adequate program for the control of epidemics of respiratory disease. The life insurance companies are urging their policy holders who have had influenza or pneumonia to consult with their family physicians frequently in order to combat any of the effects of such diseases upon the heart, kidneys or lungs.

New Medicine Discovered In France Is an Extract From Popular Mistletoe

There is a brand new medicine, just discovered in France; it is the extract of our old friend the mistletoe. Dr. Charles Green Cumston, Swiss correspondent of the New York Medical Journal, in reporting it to that paper, says, however, that the American mistletoe will not do, as its effects are different from its French sister.

The new preparation is called viscum album. It was discovered by Dr. Faultier, and he and Dr. Doyen have had great success with it in checking certain forms of hemorrhage. It is given either in the form of pills or injections into the veins. Its effect is to dilate the blood vessels by paralyzing the vasomotor centers of the nervous system; to increase the systolic energy of the heart and slow the heart beats: to cause contraction of the unstriped fibers of the muscles.

Intestinal hemorrhage due to typhoid fever is checked by it, and it is said to magnificent groves of fine old deodars, be admirable for use in hardening of
