

THE NORTH POINT LAW

By ARCHY CAMERON NEW

Constable Matthews stood at the door of his little thatched cottage and sniffed inquisitively at the air, when a broad smile of contentment beamed on his wide, happy face and his keen gray eyes twinkled.

"Gosh, but this weather's fine," he exclaimed to himself, and then his glance strayed down the road toward the town store and a large group of men standing in front of it.

"No, just pluggin' along," he countered, humorously, as he pointed to an empty jaw, usually filled with a quid.

And then, as he turned his back on the crowd of men, and was about to enter the store, a name came to his ears that brought him up short.

"Classon!" Always a name to be reckoned with, mused Sam, as he peered across the bridge toward Parksboro. A name either feared, hated or loved, according to circumstances.

How many of those men, mused Sam tenderly, took slices of chicken, bits of luscious fruit and the like in their lunch boxes—borne to their women folks by Dorothy Classon.

"God moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform," replied the constable, and then he turned to the clergyman. "Ain't I right, parson?"

"God moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform," replied the constable, and then he turned to the clergyman. "Ain't I right, parson?"

He recognized the couple. It was Dorothy, and he noted regretfully her happy profile as she leaned on her escort's arm and smiled into his face.

Sam shuddered now, and then he gazed apprehensively toward the store. No one was in sight. Perhaps it wasn't too late yet.

He followed the pair stealthily, and then as Dorothy entered the gate of Mrs. Waters, the widow of an old mill employee, Sam noted that Fulton waited for her.

"Why, sure," Dorothy agreed, laying a package of tea on the table before Mrs. Waters' grateful eyes.

"Let's show them," answered Fulton with alacrity, as he sprang to her side, and with his arm around her tightly, turned to face the clergyman.

"I reckon you do," said Sam a few minutes later as the clergyman handed Fulton a parchment certificate, and imitating the young man he gave Mrs. Matthews a great big hug and a very noisy kiss.

WHEN SEWING FOR CHILDREN

Let the Youngsters Help Choose Colors and Styles for Their Clothes.

Children's styles change so slightly that trying to give advice to the mother who is planning a sewing session is rather a difficult task.

The gullepe dress is a perennial favorite and it is one of the most sensible, as several separate waists of white and different colored material may be made to go with each dress at comparatively trifling expense.

One lesson that mothers of small daughters are learning is to permit the child to take an active part in determining the color and general style of her own clothes.

Our ability and our worth are first gauged by our outward appearance; if we are dressed well, becomingly, look comfortable and prosperous, we give the impression of prosperity.

SHOULD BE WELL DRESSED

Good Clothes Card of Admission Through Gates of Opportunity, Business and Social Circles.

We are all desirous of improving our position in life; we want to know more and be more; we want to live better, have more pleasure and comfort.

Our ability and our worth are first gauged by our outward appearance; if we are dressed well, becomingly, look comfortable and prosperous, we give the impression of prosperity.

This form of thrift may seem a somewhat intangible quality, but it is the indisputable thrift of a conservation of personal energy and effort. When you are dressed well, you don't have to struggle so hard for recognition.

Among simple models that are receiving commendation may be mentioned plain slip-over blouses of crepe de chine, entirely untrimmed, finished at times with a plain round neck.

The new corsets being brought out for spring and summer are generally a little more definitely corsets than have been worn for several seasons.

Very few rayon sleeves are seen. The knee-length coat is a favorite. Tailored dresses are made of taffeta.

France is for bloused effect in coats. Fur finishes the ends of some trains.

Velveteen and corduroy are materials used extensively in making cold-weather lounging robes and negligees.

Net blouses continue to be regarded favorable and the new ones are trimmed with lace frills or with finely plaited rufflings.

Of All Sounds in Nature, Few Thrill Like Bark of Squirrel, Naturalist Says

"As one pushes through the fringe of undergrowth which skirts the forest and seats himself, at daybreak, on a stump or a fallen tree to watch and listen, the woods become instanter with life."

The blue jay sounds his trumpet call, the crows hold noisy consultation over their plans for the day and a ruffled grouse whips the twigs of the pine with her wing as she leaves her roost.

Then comes the sound of the hollow maple nearby, telling you that the gray squirrel is out after his breakfast. "Away he goes toward some big oak or hickory, scattering a shower of dew from the leaves as he jumps from limb to limb, revealing his course by the springing branches he leaves behind him."

Chinese Schools in Java Established With Hope of Keeping Language Alive In the hope of preserving a knowledge of the Chinese language, literature and the Confucian ethics, Huel Kuan schools were established in every large town in Java as a bait to the youth of the land.

As further inducement to attendance, all Chinese instruction is carried on in the mandarin, or official, Chinese language, so that any student who returns to China will be prepared to talk to the educated of all provinces.

Scores of patriotic youngsters who graduate from Huel Kuan schools go to China yearly, upon their graduation, and enter military colleges there, eventually finding their way into the Chinese army.

but the Colonial style in dining-room furniture apparently goes on forever. You may buy a Colonial dining suite of standard design in either oak or mahogany with the assurance that it will be as good style fifteen years hence as it is today.

For many small dining rooms where one wishes to use mahogany furniture, the Sheraton and Adam styles cannot be improved upon to give a light and graceful effect without causing the room to appear overcrowded. We show Sheraton and Adam suites of this character in genuine mahogany as low as $150.00 and $175.00 for the complete suite.

Our showing of dining-room furniture embraces suites in Colonial, Mission, Sheraton, Adam, William and Mary, Queen Anne, Heppelwhite and Charles II design.
