St. Mary's Alumnae Association entertained the 1920 graduating class of St. Mary's Hospital Wednesday at dinner in Rush. Recitations were given by Miss Genevieve Rehberg, and Miss Lucille Egan. Miss Norma Meagher, Miss Margaret Cunningham, Miss Margaret Lynch and Miss Gertrude Martin were the chaperones.

MT. CARMEL CHURCH

The marriage of Miss Eleanor A. Fornataro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fornataro, of 96 Walnut street, to Charles M. Dispenza, of 34 Lewis street, took place Tuesday morning at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, the Rev. Walter A. Feery, assistant pastor, performing the ceremony. A nuptial high mass was celebrated by Father Feery. In the sanctuary were the Rev. George W. Eckl and the Rev. Mario Catalano.

The maid of honor was Miss Mary Fornataro, sister of the bride, and the best man was James C. D'Aprile, of Geneseo. The ushers were Dr. Guido J. Gianfranceschi and Dr. James L. Mangano.

After the wedding ceremony breakfast was served at the home of the bride to immediate families and relatives of the bride and groom.

The wedding trip will include the cities of Syracuse, Albany, New York, Atlantic City and Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Dispenza will be at their new home, 34 Lewis street, after July 1st.

The Best Way

To get strong and to keep well is to help Nature rebuild and repair the wear and tear upon body cells. Food is not always sufficiently digested or properly used. The best medicine is that which builds up, not merely braces up. This is why Father John's Medicine secures results, which have caused its steadily increasing use for over sixty years. It contains neither alcohol nor drugs. It supplies one of Nature's great food-medicines which can be easily digested and effectively used.

It is a builder, not a mere bracer. Get a bottle today.

A. F. I. Proposes Remedies For H. C. L.

[By N. C. W. C. News Service] Wash. D. C. June 10.—The American Federation of Labor at its opening session in Montreal reports an increase over last year of about a million members. The Federation now has about four and one half million members. During the last year six million workers have had their wages raised or their conditions of work improved through the activities of the constituent organizations of the Federation.

The report of the Executive Committee was unsparing in its denunciation of profiteering and the failure of Congress to remedy the situation. The Steel Trust was condemned for its refusal to deal with its employees and the government was attacked for using a food law, the Lever Act, to outlaw the coal strike. Propaganda for intervention in Mexico was declared to harm the interests of the workers. Bolshevism and the "one big union" idea were assailed. The Cummins-Esch railroad law and the Kansas experiment with compulsory labor were both denounced. The suggestions of the President's second industrial conference were declared to be of inferior value and in parts pernicious.

As remedies for the mounting cost of living, the Executive Committee suggests the following course of action:

- 1) Purchase by the government of standard goods from producers and distribution through the regular retailers at prices fixed by the government.
- 2) Taxation to take all the excessive war profits of 1916-20, and the use of the money to extinguish the floating debt and buy up a part of the liberty and victory bonds, for the purpose of reducing the inflated credit and increasing the value of the dollar.
- 3) Extension of government credit to properly organized cooperative societies, and the protection of cooperatives against discrimination by wholesalers and manufacturers.
- 4) Control of credit by a public agency.
- 5) Government boards to investigate profits and prices, and publicity of tax returns.

The report says that industry today requires more democracy, and that the workers should have a voice in its direction. Goods should be produced for use and not for profit alone. Industry also requires bold use of the best processes and machinery but labor will continue, says the report, to resist the introduction of improved processes and machinery when done at the expense of the workers.

The features of the report that are most novel concern the recommendations for the reduction of the cost of living and the emphasis laid upon the increase of production and the participation of labor in the direction of industry.

COST OF LIVING UP 100 PER CENT IN FIVE YEARS

[By N. C. W. C. News Service] Washington, D. C.—The Federal Department of Labor reports that in fourteen cities east of the Mississippi, the cost of living went up about one hundred per cent between December 1914 and December 1919. In two of them the increase was about 92 per cent, while the remaining twelve cities showed higher prices of between 95 and 108 per cent. Since last December the cost of living has gone up several points higher.

STRIKING SUIT FOR SPRING

Here is shown a winsome suit fashioned in novelty basket weave tricot-lette in tan. Velours in matching and silk tone serve effectively as an appropriate trimming.

LONG SLEEVE IS ON HORIZON

New Style Likely to Be Introduced as Strong Feature of the Autumn Fashions.

A tendency toward long sleeves is noted in suit blouses. This length of sleeve is one of the most interesting questions in coming fashions. No doubt the long sleeve will be launched as a strong feature of autumn fashions, although it is likely that American women will hold to the short sleeve as a popular style for some months to come.

Glove buyers for the shops find this sleeve question a difficult problem, as glove orders must now be placed six months in advance, and it is too early to predict just what length glove will be most in demand in the fall.

Such blouses as have long sleeves, at the present time are fitted from the elbow to the wrist to give the effect of a deep cuff. In some instances this is done by a closely pressed pleating. The sleeve is finished at the wrist by a turned-back cuff of lace or by a full falling over the hand.

Plaid skirts are responsible for vivid colored taffeta waists. All of the colors in plaids have been matched in taffetas. These waists are nothing more than short sleeves with long sleeves. One of congenial blue and green marked off in large checks by a facing of heavy black silk is gathered on an elastic at the waist and girdled with a string belt of the silk.

VOGUE FOR FLOATING VEILS

Style is in Keeping With Use of Quantities of Net and Laces in Dresses.

With this use of quantities of net and lace in dresses, the vogue for floating veils does not come as a surprise. This fashion is entirely in keeping with the very feminine touches that the sheer materials give to dress.

Hats of the plainest and most severe type have no trimming other than a veil. The craze of the moment is the brown veil as a garniture for the black hat. The very coarse, highly glossed black braids are used for a small round turban, over which is draped a tobacco-brown veil having a medallion fitting over the crown of the hat and an embroidered border on four sides of the veil. Sometimes the veil is neatly tied in place and the border forms a tiny shadowy edge for the turban. Again, it is allowed to hang in streaming corners. When the shape is of more individuality and height a tobacco-brown ribbon in satin crepe is sometimes used in addition to the tobacco-brown embroidered veil.

For Juveniles.

Plain color materials are the season's favorites for juveniles, but some very charming English prints and calicoes are to be found. These are usually trimmed simply in edgings and bands of white organdie sometimes in narrow lace edgings. One smart calico dress, recently seen, for a girl of ten or twelve years, showed a slightly longer than normal waistline, and a plain skirt attached by belt of self-fabric, so there was no decided break in the line from neck to hem. The only trimming was a four-inch wide plaited frill of white organdie as a collar, and a similar finish for the elbow sleeves.

Much Bouffancy in Dainty Frocks. Dainty, sheer fabrics, such as voile, organdie and handkerchief linen, will be worn this summer. To enhance the bouffancy of many summer frocks, frills and ruffles in the same material and lace are used. Organdies in pastel shades with large dots of white or black and white are popular. Frocks of this material are trimmed with sashes of white organdie and with white organdie collars and cuffs.
