Battleship Fleet as a Christmas Present

By A. NEELY HALL
(Copyright by A. Neely Hall.)

Make a fleet of toy battleships like the model in Fig. 1. It will not take long, because I have designed a model made of parts that can be cut out and assembled quickly. Having built the fleet, you will have lots of fun. Because the model is mounted on wheels, you can run it upon land as well as sail it upon water.

In Fig. 2 is a drawing of every part of the toy battleship, and in Figs. 3 to 8 you will find the same parts drawn to scale with dimensions marked upon them. If you build several ships, I would suggest that you make all of the parts for one boat, first, and then, using these for patterns, mark out and cut the hulls (A) for all the other boats, then the decks (B), then the masts (C), and so on. The work of cutting and assembling will be simplified if you follow this method. A piece of soft pine, cypress, or other soft wood will be easiest to shape. In marking out the hull, draw a center-line as shown in Fig. 3, and lay off the measurements either side of it, to get the sides alike. The upper deck (B, Fig. 4) extends three-quarters of the length of the hull, and it is of the same shape as that portion of the hull; therefore it can be marked out with the hull as a pattern. The holes shown along the edge of the deck (Fig. 4) are made to receive the guns of the secondary battery, the holes along the upper face are made to receive the masts, funnels, etc. The position of each part is indicated in Fig. 2.

The masts (C, Fig. 5) can be whittled or dowel-sticks of the given diameter can be used. The fighting-tops (D and E, Fig. 6) are wooden button molds. The larger one (D) must have its hole enlarged so it will slip wise whittle a stick to the given diameter. Bore out the top of each funnel if you wish.

There are two gun turrets (K, Fig. 2) and the size is shown in Fig. 3. Whittle the guns (L) of the shape and size shown in Fig. 3, and glue their ends in holes made in the sides of the turrets. Drill a small hole through the center of each turret through which to drive nail pivot M (Fig. 2). The secondary battery guns (N, Fig. 2) are the ends of burnt matches, Fig. 8 shows the length.

Cut the fore-castle blocks H and I (Fig. 2) square, of the dimensions given in Fig. 7, nail them together, and fasten to the deck with the peg J (Fig. 2). The spool wheels (P, Fig. 2) have stick axles (Q) cut to fit snugly in their holes, and the axle ends are sup-

OVER THE HULL, THE MASTS AND FUNNELS rest on top of the mast, and in place with the nail P (Fig. 2) driven into the mast-top.

Fig. 6 shows a funnel (G). Use a dowel-stick if you can get one, otherwise whittle one.

The wireless antenna is made of wire stretched between two points. The wire is stretched between two points, one for wire antenna and one for wire antenna. When the toy is assembled, give them a try.

Bread Realm of Toys

There is nothing more intimate or inanimate, however, way to our civilization, from a pin to a complex steam engine, single seed to a forest of trees, from the lowest observable form of animal creation to man himself, that is not represented in our toys.

Forgetful.

There are presents for all the girls and the boys. And even the baby has so many toys that she doesn't quite know what to do with them all. Cause the toys are so big and her stomach is so small.

There are slippers for grandpa and grandma too. And for grandma a bowl of the brownie blue. While for father and mother and all of the rest there's exactly the present they say they like best.

And wherever I go I am certain to find Santa Claus has been there and left something behind.

But, although it is Christmas, I'm sorry because no one has a present for good Santa Claus.

Address plainly. Address the box plainly, so there can be no danger of its going astray. Packing is better than script. Unless some dreadful catastrophe happens, the gift is sure to reach its destination in perfect condition.

Christmas Is Children's Day

The message of Christmas is love. Its emblem is radiant, thankful, contented childhood. Without love and without children there could be no real Christmas. The form might survive but the substance would be lacking.

Unhappy must be the adult who cannot make himself a child again in spirit at the Yuletide. For Christmas is the universal children's day. Men and women are superfluous except as they make themselves partners with those whom the day glorifies.

Let us, then, lay aside the affectation and arrogance of manhood and womanhood and be children again. Let us adopt their point of view and put ourselves in their places—in the places of these sons and daughters of ours and of the sons and daughters of our neighbors. It was only a year or two ago, as it seems, when we hung our well-worn stockings in a row along the mantel shelf, while our fathers and mothers looked on with unfeigned pleasure at the innocent confidence we showed in what the morrow would bring forth.

Even as you and I. It all comes back in a flood of memories. Life was simpler then. Our desires were less pretentious than those our children voice now. Modest remembrances they were that bulged toe and heel of the stockings mother kept.

Life and its circumstances change, but the essence of Christmas never. The same happy childhood, the same restlessness, the same snail-like creeping of time as the holiday approaches. The same parenthood, too—the same planning across the reading table after the boys and girls are abed, the same loving consideration of what this or that child most desires and how far the family purse can properly be stretched to permit some further purchase.

Every home is assured a Christmas if it has a great, warm heart pulsating in tune with the hopes and joys of childhood.—Exchange.

His Guess.

"Who was it said to him that hath shall be given?"

"I don't remember, but I presume it was some fellow who had eight or nine necktie holders and had just received four more for Christmas."
