Bismarck's Unique Park.

Bismarck, the capital of North Dakota, is to be congratulated upon its plans for the construction of a historical park, adjacent to the state house. It is proposed to employ 15 acres, a feature being a replica of a Mandan Indian village of pioneer days, with other appropriate historical elements. This is an exceedingly commendable idea and its originator is to be felicitated upon it. In various museums Indian relics are preserved, but nothing is recalled which is comparable to the village symposium carried out as proposed.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Fads Hygienic Necessity.

As Walter Dill Scott suggests, every business youth, on beginning his or her business life, should adopt an avocation, a fad, some outside interest, only less absorbing than his business, and should continuously cultivate it as a foil, a rest, a saving grace to his business. Provided this fad or unbusinesslike interest be one not too narrow and one not too difficult and fatiguing, the recipe is fundamentally an important one for this matter of business hours as well as for personal hygiene in general.—G. V. N. Dearborn, M. D., in the Scientific American Monthly.

PLEA FOR PERSONAL PRONOUN WAS CENTER OF INTEREST

Argument of Humane Education Society Relating to School Children and Animals.

The Humane Education society of Pennsylvania is seeking to have the school children taught to speak of animals with personal instead of impersonal pronouns. The society fears that if children say "it" and "which" and "that" for their pets they will regard them as they do the lifeless train of cars, the soulless box of blocks, the witless ball or drum or sailboat. They will regard a tender little animal as though "it" were stuffed with invulnerable leather or sawdust; they will drag "it" about and bully-rag and maul "it" as though "it" had no feelings; they will degrade the animate creature to the level of the mere automaton started with a key and active only till the cogs run down.—Philadelphia Ledger

Modern Walter Raleigh.

Sir Walter Raleigh came to life the other day in the person of a young man escorting a young woman across a street corner in New York city. They were half way over when the modern Sir Walter noticed a motor-truck coming down the street and a mud puddle directly before him. Unable to retreat, he held his overcoat in front of his partner.

As the truck passed it left behind a young woman covered with bushes and a young man covered with mud.

His Views.

"A 'zoo' is a place to reflect on the superiority of mankind," remarked the bumptious citizen.

"I don't agree with you," answered Mr. Grumpson. "I've never visited a 'zoo' but two or three times in my life, but the thoughts that struck me was that all the animals were attending strictly to their own business and if mankind had less curiosity and more consideration for dumb creatures none of them would have been there."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Saw Both Sides.

Little Roy doesn't care for dancing and at the party the other night he held aloof as much as possible. His sister said, "Roy, don't you realize that every time you don't dance there is some little girl not having a good time?"

"Yes," said Roy, "and don't you realize that every time I do dance there is a little boy who isn't having a good time?"

STUDENT QUITE UNWITTINGLY FURNISHED AMUSEMENT FOR A LARGE NUMBER OF PEOPLE.

While I was a student in college I think I amused the largest number of people it was ever my fortune to entertain at one and the same time.

I know I came nearer to wishing to vanish off the face of the earth at that moment than ever before or since.

The morning schedule in this college consisted of four periods for recitations with five minute periods of intermission between classes. All classes were dismissed and summoned from and to classrooms at the same time by a small bell operated exactly like the ordinary doorbell. This bell was installed in the entrance hall of the building—where most of the students congregated during intermissions.

For the convenience of the students a telephone was likewise placed in this hall. One morning the usual crowd of students was gathered in the hall waiting for the signal to call them back into classes. When it came, mistaking it for a telephone call, I hastily picked up the receiver and called "Hello." No answer—so I repeated my "Hello" louder.

By this time I had the attention of most of the students—they stopped their chattering and were intent on watching me wake up. It was a rude awakening.—Exchange.

With Remarks From the General.

While I was a lieutenant in the army at a western training camp we had a parade and divisional review before a well-known general, and I invited some girls to see it. We were marching along in a column of fours with another company on each side of us. We were to keep on this way until we got in front of the general, when we were to turn left and go forward, the command to be "Squads left." I must have been excited, for I shouted "Squads right," and, like good soldiers, my company obeyed. There was great confusion, of course. The general saw it all and sent an orderly to get me. When I confronted him I received some cutting censure. During the most heated part of his lecture I saw my friends standing at the fence not five feet away, taking it all in.—Chicago Tribune.

REALLY FLOWERS OF SPEECH

Sayings, Witty and Wise, That Are Worth Being Preserved in an Anthology.

Professor Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, in the course of his lively lectures "On the Art of Reading," gives some examples of Irish peasants' sayings with the large simplicity, the cadence, the accent of Scriptural speech. The best is the benediction bestowed upon one of the two authors of the incomparable "Irish R. M." by an old woman in Skibbereen: "Sure ye're always laughing! That ye may laugh in the sight of the Glory of Heaven!" The writer once thought of making an anthology of such wild flowers of wayside speech. He would have included in it some far-traveled sayings, such as that of the freighter in the alkaline districts of Alberta, who said, pointing with his whip to an intensely blue lake on the horizon, "Blister as a dyin' man's sweat is that same water," and the perfect definition of a ghost implied in the words of a Newfoundland fisherman, "There I sees 'em warnin' themselves in the moonlight."

WHY MRS. LOT LOOKED BACK

Reason Explained, but Today It Is the Man Who Usually Does the Turning.

The mystery of why Lot's wife turned around, womanlike, after being warned specifically not to, was explained by Alexander Black, novelist, at a dinner of the Society of Arts and Science, New York.

Mr. Black said Mrs. Lot merely wanted to see if she was being followed by a man.

The subject of profound debate was "Marriage Is a Success. Yes? No?" It was discussed with lights turned low under red shades.

Mr. Black said it is now the man who does the turning around and looking back, "usually slightly down, 'Over their faces come curiously mingled expressions of bewilderment and amazement."

"I have seen them turned into cynics or into poets. I have seen them turned from their direction and struck by automobiles."
