True Enough.

It was a hot day and the teacher was endeavoring to teach his unappreciative class the rudiments of geometry.

"With the point as center," he began placing one leg of the compasses on that point. Then he turned to the boys to make some remark, inadvertently letting the compasses slip.

Immediately the black sheep of the flock raised his hand and waved it wildly.

"Yes, Johnson!" said the master. "Please, sir," came the prompt reply, "you're off your dot!"—London Tit-Bits.

Right View of Life.

It is time to get over the idea that we have to be comfortable because we were brought up that way, while others were predestined to misery and are so hardened to their condition that we needn't bother. One effect of travel—if the traveler is impressionable, and some travelers are not—is to show us that no country has a monopoly of certain homely virtues that take root and flourish in the bleakest, as in the richest soil. Nor is any other country particularly interested in our introspective studies of how good we are and our ingrowing imagination of our greatness. Boastfulness is a posture as unlovely for the millions as it is for one. Let us give credit to others for possessing some of the qualities we admire so much in ourselves.—Exchange.

The Business of Electric Fans Is to Keep You Cool

If you think it is YOUR business to keep yourself cool, just start right in with the filmiest hand-fan the market affords and note what happens. At the end of five or ten minutes you'll be hotter than when you started and the filmy fan will seem to weigh a ton. Is that the way to keep cool? No siree!

JUST TRY THIS RECIPE

Get an Electric Fan. Place the fan so that the cooling, soothing air currents it sets in motion will play upon you. Then place yourself on a couch or in an easy chair and then—well!
