THE SANDMAN STORY

THE FIREFLIES

ONE night when the fairies came scampering out to play at the last sound of the last stroke of midnight they found their queen talking with a moonbeam fairy.

Instead of joining in the revels as was her custom, she kept on with her chat with the little silvery-fairy who seemed to have much to tell her.

All the hithering, skittering little winds were tumbling over one another in a game of tag with the Dust Fairies, and the Water Fairies were flying hither and thither playing at hide and seek.

But after a while they began to wonder what the Moonbeam Fairy was and Fairy has been telling me about the Star Fairies who watch us all down here and want to visit us at night and join in our revels.

"They are very bright little creatures," said the Moonbeam Fairy, "but they are very lonely for you. See even the Moonbeam Fairies they down on the earth at night and they have no one up there to visit.

"So I stopped on my way home last night to chat with them awhile and it was when they asked me if I thought the Queen would take them into her big family and let them run down the Moonbeam path with us each night to the earth."

"What do you say, my children?" asked the Queen. "Shall we welcome the Star Fairies into our family?"

"Oh, yes, dear Queen, let them come," said all the little Fairies, clapping their hands and dancing about their Queen; "and why not send for them tonight while the Moonbeam path is bright and then they will not trip coming along?"

"Very well," said the Queen, "tell the Star Fairies that I will welcome them for the summer months. That is when we have our gayest revels."

So the little Moonbeam Fairy hastened away to tell the lonely little Star Fairies the good news, and down they came flickering and twinkling with joy over their good fortune.

All this happened a very long, long time ago, and if you have any doubt about this story being a really true one watch the stars smiling up in the sky as the Star Fairies fly hither and thither during the summer for though we mortals call them fireflies, the Earth Fairies call them their friends from far-away Land, the Star Fairies.

telling the Queen, and when she beckoned to them, as she did just then, they ran to her side eager to listen to what the little visitor was saying.

"It was last night that I decided to tell you about them," the Moonbeam Fairy was saying, "for I did not know before how lonely they are."

"How would you like some new playmates?" asked the Queen when the fairies gathered around her. "Moon-

The House Surgeon

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

NEED FOR NURSES

THERE are not enough trained nurses to meet the demand. On the other hand nurses are saying that they cannot make both ends meet unless their pay is increased. Many women who might take up the work are deterred because of this fact.

To meet this, the alumni societies of the training schools are combining with a view to settle on a proper advance. The new rate of pay would be $8 a day for 12-hour periods, and $50 a week for contagious cases.

Nurses are going to be asked for by communities to do public work. District visiting and prenatal care at the expense of the community, where circumstances demand, will be put into the hands of trained nurses. It will be worth doing, and sure to appeal to certain types of women who like nursing, but who do not care for private or hospital work.

A girl who wants to study for this profession should select her hospital with care. She will have to expect to do hard and disagreeable work. But in a number of institutions the eight-hour schedule is being adhered to, more salary is being paid, and other matters that have given rise to discontent are being improved.

A trained nurse is one of the most important members of the community. There is now a great need for more of her. Most hospitals accept only college-bred women, and no women without the equivalent of a high school training will be accepted. If you who read this feel a call for nursing, get the address of a good hospital, write to the matron of nurses there, and follow her directions. You cannot enter upon a finer walk of life.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE LITTLE VALLEYS.

THE little valleys lie so far From where the busy cities are That men may live and men may die And never find them where they lie, The little valleys near the sky.

Shut in by plain and sturdy hills That feed the grasses with their rills, The little valleys do not seem A part of all life's roaring stream— But just a landscape and a dream.

A few green acres, that is all, The mountains like a garden wall In quiet peace to shut them in, To shut away the dirt, the din, And all the world of noisy sin.

And, oh, I wish that weary feet Could find the little valleys sweet— And, oh, I wish the weary heart That feels the bruises of the mart Could find this little world apart!

"God's gardens," so I call the valleys Up yonder by the mountain trails; And you who cry for heaven's aid You will not find it, I'm afraid, Where man his busy world has made.

You must come tramping over hills, Come following whipl-poor-wills, Must journey long and clamber high To where God's hidden gardens lie— The little valleys near the sky.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"COUNTY."

WHEN a Saxon king created an earl, it was the natural thing that he should be endowed with a certain section of land over which he held jurisdiction, therefore a "share" of ground was assigned to him to govern—a custom to which the English "shire" is directly traceable. But, at the time of the Norman conquest, the Saxon earls were replaced by Norman counts, titles borrowed from the later Roman empire and originally meaning "companion," one who had the honor of being closest to his leader. The "shares" or "shires" therefore became "counties" or lands governed by the counts.

In that singular fortune of words which causes some to disappear, even under circumstances most favorable to their life, while others hold their own when everything seems to oppose them, the title "count" has vanished from the roster of British nobility and "earl" has recovered its place, though the wife of an earl is still known as a "countess," thus proving the essential identity of the two words. In England the "shire" and the "county" still survive, while county is the accepted American term and shire remains only in names, which, like New Hampshire, have been imported bodily from across the Atlantic.

WORSE THAN ANY HURRICANE

Arabian Desert Storm Obscures the Sun—Bitter Cold is Followed by Intense Heat.

In the World's Work Thomas E. Lawrence describes the action of a desert storm as follows:

"There had been long rolls of thunder all morning in the hills, and the two peaks of Serd and Jasim were wrapped in folds of dark blue and yellow vapor that looked motionless and substantial. A few minutes after we had marched again, I looked back at them, and noticed that part of the yellow cloud off Serd was coming slowly in our direction, against the wind, raising scores of dust devils before its feet. The cloud was nearly as high as the hill, and as it approached it put out two dust-spouts, tight and symmetrical columns like chimneys, one on the right and one on the left of its front.

"When it got nearer, the wind, which had been scorching our faces with its hot breathing, changed suddenly, and blew bitter cold and damp upon our backs. It also increased greatly in violence, and at the same moment the sun disappeared, blotted out by thick mists of yellow air over our heads. We stood in a horrible faint light, ochre-colored and fitful. The brown wall of cloud from the hills was now very near, rushing changelessly toward us, making a loud grinding sound, wrapping us in a blanket of dust, with large stinging grains of sand in it, twisting and turning in most violent eddies, and meanwhile advancing eastward at the speed of a strong gale."

OLD WAYS OF TELLING TIME

Early Methods Were Primitive, but Some Sort of Reckoning Always Has Been Kept.

Today when we glance at our watches and ascertain to the second the correct time, we do not stop to think of the first awkward methods used by primitive man. In the earliest days, man divided the time into two periods, the day and the night. The day was then separated into sunrise, noonday and sunset, and then the morning and afternoon were further divided by the length and position of the shadows. Our first sundial was a stick set upright in the ground and the time was told by the length and position of the shadows. Nearly all ancient peoples of the world had sundials and with them the time was told to the hour and the minute. The Chinese had them, the Romans set up tall shadow columns with officers to watch them and report hourly on the length of the shadows. Even in the Middle Ages the sundial was still used by those poor people who could not afford such luxuries as water clocks or hour glasses.

Chinese Shoes.

Making shoes is the interminable task of Chinese women from youth to old age. Travelers see them busy in every moment, when necessity does not require attention to some other work, plying the threads back and forth, in and out, in their endless effort to keep the men of their household supplied with footwear. Where there is a surplus, the shoes are sold to the shops.

Only cloth and paper are used. The thickness of the soles, of alternating layers of cloth and paper held together by paste, often indicate in variations of from one-half to two inches, the wealth of the wearers. The shoes are noiseless and comfortable, but on rainy days China stays indoors because the shoes readily absorb water. The women make their own tiny shoes in the seclusion of their quarters, even the husband being forbidden to watch their manufacture.

Buffalo Bill's Quick Wit.

Col. William F. Cody, while traveling in Europe in 1891 with his Wild West show, was on quite intimate terms with royalty. On Buffalo Bill's advent into Berlin Emperor William was entertaining three kings of smaller German powers. One feature of the Wild West performance was the exhibition of an antiquated Deadwood coach, containing passengers who were attacked by Indians and rescued by cowboys. The Kaiser asked that he and his guests be allowed to ride in this vehicle during a performance, and of course the request was granted. After the usual attack and rescue the emperor remarked:

"Colonel Cody, I don't suppose this is the first time that you have held four kings?"

"No, your majesty," replied the scout, "you are right, but it is the first occasion that I ever held four kings and the royal joker at the same time."

Colonel Yell of Yellville.

Yellville was named in honor of a gallant soldier, Colonel Archibald Yell, who went to his God like a man on the field of Buena Vista. Archibald Yell was a man of parts, a gentleman who in time of peace did his share in politics and in time of war did his share as a soldier. He resigned as a member of congress to enlist as a private at the outbreak of the Mexican war. When the Arkansas troops were organized at Washington, Hempstead county, he was elected colonel of the regiment in which he had enlisted as a private. Albert Pike was a captain under him. At the battle of Buena Vista Yell's command stood against a sweeping charge by a great force of Mexican lancers. Archibald Yell died there fighting hand to hand with the Mexicans.—Arkansas Gazette.

Viola Dana

Perhaps out of consideration of the feelings of her parents, Viola Dana, the dainty star, waited until she was quite grown up before going on the stage. Her first public appearance—she made her debut as a dancer—did not come, therefore, until Miss Dana was fully five years old. She was born in Brooklyn; has two sisters, both on the screen—Shirley Mason and Edna Flugrath.

WELL, dat frien of mine wo; no feela good, lasa week gotta plea more trouble now. He been dead for tree, four day alla ready. I dunno wet's matter, but he gotta some kinda trouble weath da stom. Everyday he tella me he no eatz yer mooch. I tella heem see gratta stuff eef he can do dat so moocha he like. I feegure eef he no eatz yer mooch he no gotta mooch expense for da leaving. Tree meal everyday costa me dolla zeefaty cent for da breakfast. And righta when da guy feegure out system for beata da high costa for leaving da son-of-a-gun go dead. I tink eef he keepa da stum on da bum heelle while and no eat he gotta penta money.

But he keeka too mooch bouta da pain een da stum. Da physish geeva heem da pill and he no feela so good. Nexa day he go see da chiroprax and he gotta fight weath dat guy when he puncha hees back.

Da chiroprax say da physish maku meestake and da physish say da chiroprax dunno somating. So wet my frien can do for da pain een da stom?

One day he gotta deesagut and go veesit da hospitaal. Dat place tella heem he gotta have da operash eef he wanta feela good. So he lets da operash and seen few day he begin feela awell. He no gotta da pain and he say he gonna go home leaffe while.

But jusa before he gonna leava dat place he getta da bill. He geeva one look at da bill and go dead. Mebbe he feegure would take alla hees life for pay da expense so he go dead righta queek and cutta da bill down. I dunno.

Wot you tink?

How It Started

THE UMBRELLA.

THE modern umbrella is a direct descendant of the gorgeous canopy which slaves carried to shield the royalties of old from the sun. The folding umbrella, to protect against rain was not generally used till about 1752. Even then it was an object of ridicule. James Hanway, who died in 1786, is credited with being the first Englishman habitually to carry an umbrella. The modern steel rib was invented by Samuel Fox in 1852.
